THIRD AND FOURTH ASHTAKAS, OR BOOKS,

OF THE RIG VEDA.

INTRODUCTION.

As the third volume of the printed text finishes the third and fourth Ashtakas, and commences the fifth, I have thought it advisable to publish, on the present occasion, the translation of the third and fourth Ashtakas, completing one half of the entire Rig-Veda.

The third Ashtaka comprehends the conclusion of the third Mandala, the fourth, and the commencement of the fifth: the rest of the fifth, and five of the six sections of the sixth Mandala, are comprised in the fourth Ashtaka.

It was remarked in the Introduction to the first Ashtaka, that the fifth Mandala was ascribed to Atri and his sons, who were of rather equivocal nomenclature: this will be confirmed by the actual translation: and if the authorship of the Sūktas be rightly defined, Atri must have had a large family, as the names exceed forty, besides groups, as Prayaswats, Gaupáyanas, Lnapáyanas, and Vasúyus, each consisting of an indefinite number: several of the names, as Pratikshatra, Pratiratha, Pratibhánu, Pratiprabha, are of evident fabrication: we have also, in Archanánas and Šyáváswa, father and son, who could not both have been sons of Atri: there is likewise the unusual occurrence of a female author of a Sūkta, the lady Viswavārā. The common epithet of these persons, Átreya, does not, however, necessarily imply a son or daughter of Atri, and may be interpreted descendant or disciple: the latter is rendered most probable, as the list includes three Rājās among the Rishis, or Tryaruna, Trasadasyu, and Aṣwamedha, who are the joint authors of a Sūkta (p. 272): to one of them, Trasadasyu, a preceding Sūkta also is ascribed. In all probability, however, there is little or no authority for the authorship of the Sūktas of this Mandala, and their ascription to individuals is as arbitrary and unreal as that of any other portion, whether termed Ashtaka or Mandala.

Of the hundred and twenty-one Sūktas of the third Ashtaka, those addressed to Agni, either alone, or associated with some other deity, are forty-four; those to Indra, singly or with others, forty-eight; making together ninety-two: of the rest, five are addressed to the Viswadevas, five to the Aswins, five to the Ribhus, three to Dadhikrā, three to Ushas, two to Savitri, and one each to the Yupa, or sacrificial post, to the Ápris, to Mitra, to the Śyena or Hawk, to Heaven and Earth, to Váyu, and to Kshetrapati, or, the lord of the field, and the implements of agriculture.

The fourth Ashtaka comprehends one hundred and forty Sūktas, of which Agni and Indra have a large proportion, although rather less considerable than in the third: the former is the deity of thirty-six Sūktas, the latter, singly or in association with others, of forty-six, together eighty-two: of the remainder, the Viswadevas have twelve Sūktas dedicated to them, rather a larger number than usual, besides which, five other hymns are addressed to various divinities, much the same as the Viśwadevas: twelve Śūktas have the Maruts for deities, and eleven Mitra and Varuṇa conjointly, which is something unusual: the Aswins have six Śūktas; Pūshan four; the Dawn and Savitri two each; and Parjanya, Prithivi, Varuṇa, Saraswatī, and the Cows, have one each.

With very few exceptions, there is little of novel interest in the Śūktas of these two divisions, as regards their mythological bearings: the same attributes are ascribed to the same divinities and the same legends are repeated, which have occurred in the preceding Ashṭakas; the legendary exploits being sometimes, however, transferred to different actors, as in the case of the death of Vṛitra being ascribed to Agni, instead of, as usual, to Indra, (p. 21, v. 4.); and again, where Dadhyanch, the son of Atharvan, is said to have kindled the slayer of Vṛitra, the destroyer of the cities of the Asuras, the exploits of Indra are obviously assigned to Agni, (p. 410, v. 14.): the observation made in the Introduction to the translation of the second Ashtaka may be here repeated, that the Śūktas addressed to the principal divinities, especially to Agni and Indra, in these two divisions, deal more in general solicitation and panegyric, and are less rich in legend, than the Śūktas of the first Ashtaka, with very rare, though not altogether unimportant exceptions.

In the hymns addressed to Agni the same attributes and allusions occur that are found in preceding Śūktas, and enumerated in the Introduction to the first volume. We have perhaps more distinctly asserted his character of creator of the universe, (p. 8, v. 5., p. 17, v. 4., p. 120, v. 15.), and in his universality, as intimated in one hymn with more than ordinary mysticism (pp. 28, 29, v. 7, 8. and note), we have the rudiments probably of the pantheistic notion, which, as the word Vedânta imports, are based upon the Veda: the identification of Agni with other divinities, his being Indra, Vîitra, Varuṇa, Aryaman, Rudra, is of the same tendency, (p. 237; v. 1.).

In like manner the attributes and exploits of Indra, his slaying of Vîtra, his recovery of the stolen cattle, his destruction of various Asuras, and of their cities, and his patronage of individual princes have all been told before, in general more fully: his drinking of the Soma-juice is the subject of very many uninteresting stanzas, and most of the hymns of which he is the hero suggest little that is of additional value. In the sixteenth hymn of the first section of the fourth Ashtaka some novel circumstances are narrated of the Asura Na-Muchi: mention has been made of him in the first and second sections, but here, for the first time, it is said of him, that he sends an army of women against Indra, as if a nation of amazons were alluded to: the passage, however, is obscure, and the explanation imperfect (p. 279, v. 9.).

In the sixth Sûkta of the fifth section of the third Ashtaka there is also some additional legend which may be suspected of a historical bearing, however exaggerated, when it is related that Indra was followed by a large host, thousands, in his attack upon the Asura Kuyava; and that, on another occasion, he destroyed fifty thousand Krishnas, or dark-complexioned Râkshasas, according to the scholiast: one inference from these numbers is, that the Rishis of the time of the Veda were not unfamiliar with the levy of numerous bodies of combatants; and another, which is more important, is the probability that by Asuras and Rákshasas, nothing more is meant than hostile tribes or nations: the mortal Rájás, Kutsa, Rījiswan, Sudás, and others, in whose defence or for whose benefit these adversaries are demolished, could scarcely have waged war with superhuman beings, could scarcely have incurred their enmity, except in their character of disturbers of sacrifices offered to the gods, meaning thereby, very possibly, the yet unconverted races of India opposed to Brahmanical rites: that we are to look upon them as principally if not exclusively human beings is most consistent with their being engaged in contests with human princes; and the identity is further established by the appellation of Dasyu being assigned to the Asura, Śambara, (p. 444, v. 4. n.) Like Agni, Indra is identified with various persons and divinities; and in one hymn it is intimated that he is the only real object of adoration, to whomsoever else it may be nominally addressed, taking whatever manifestation he pleases, whether that of Agni, Vishnu, or Rudra (p. 473, v. 18.): he is also represented in the same hymn as of a capricious temperament, neglecting those who serve him, and favouring those who pay him no adoration (p. 473, v. 17.); a notion somewhat at variance with a doctrine previously inculcated, that the ceremonial worship of Indra is able to atone for the most atrocious crimes (p. 289, n.).

The Súktas addressed to the other deities propitiated in the third and fourth Ashtakas are for the most part mere repetitions of those which have been given in the first and second: one of the two dedicated in the third Book to Savitri (S. IX. 3rd Adhy. 3rd Asht. p. 110.) contains the verse that constitutes an essential part of the daily prayers of the Brahmans, and is especially known as the Gāyatrī: the commentators admit some variety of interpretation, but it probably meant, in its original use, a simple invocation of the sun to shed a beneficent influence upon the customary offices of worship, and that it is still employed by the unphilosophical Hindus with merely that signification: later notions, and especially those of the Vedānta, have operated to attach to the text an import it did not at first possess, and have converted it into a mystical propitiation of the spiritual origin and essence of existence, or Brahm.

The hymns addressed to Dadhikrá, or Dadhikrávan, contemplate the sun under the type of a horse, and in one of them (p. 199) occurs a stanza known as the Hansavati Rich, in which, under various appellations, the sun is considered to be identified with the supreme Spirit, or Parabrahma, although it may be questionable how far the terms bore originally the significations which commentators have subsequently assigned them.

In the third Ashtaka are two Súktas, of which the Syena, the hawk or kite, is said to be the deity of part of one, and of the whole of the other: the style of the hymns is rather mystical, and one interpretation identifies the bird with the supreme Spirit:
the general tenor, however, merely alludes to a legend told in the Aitareya Bráhmaṇa, as mentioned in a note (p. 71), of the Soma-plant having been brought from heaven by the Gáyatrí, the metre personified, in the form of a hawk; a possible allegory connecting the use of hymns in the Gāyatrī measure with the early or original offering of the Soma libation at the worship of the gods.

Another novel Sūkta in the third Ashtaka has for its object the sanctification of the lord of the field, and of the implements of agriculture: the spirit of mysticism identifies them with divinities, as Agni, Indra, Vāyu, but whether the terms be understood literally or typically, the inference will be the same; the great importance attached by the Hindūs of the Vaidik era to the operations of agriculture, and the fitness of the means used by them in the cultivation of the land. Of the hymn that follows this it is not easy to understand the purport, but it is chiefly in the praise of clarified butter, or Ghī, and may connect the labours of the herdsman with those of the plough: a Sūkta addressed to the Cows (p. 439) may be regarded as of a similar class, but it contains nothing peculiarly characteristic: the short hymn to Prithivi, the Earth (p. 374), might be classed with the agricultural, but it is very general and unmeaning.

In the two Ashtakas the Viṣwadevas are the divinities of seventeen Sūktas, or, if we add the five addressed to various deities, who are, however, much the same as the Viṣwadevas, twenty: they are for the most part the same deities as occur in their individual capacities elsewhere, Agni, Indra, Varuṇa, Aditi, the Ádityas, the Maruts, and offer only their usual properties and allusions: some of the hymns deal in mysticism, and are accordingly obscure; and scattered through them are references to circumstances of general interest, but for the most part they add little to what has been elsewhere described. The same may be said of the Sūktas to the Maruts, the Aświns, the Ribhus, whose attributes and exploits are mere repetitions of what has gone before: the Sūktas dedicated to Pūshan more explicitly describe him as the guardian of roads and protector of travellers, indicating an interchange of domicile and intercourse of traffic that could prevail only amongst a people advanced some way in civilization: Pūshan appears also in a new character as the patron of conjurers (p. 495), especially of those who discover stolen goods, an order of professors still familiar to the people of India.

A solitary passage, and one of which the commentator has given no satisfactory explanation, raises the number of the deities to an extent which is wholly incompatible with the ordinary enumeration: it is said at the close of the ninth Sūkta of the first chapter of the third Ashtaka, (p.7) that three thousand three hundred and thirty-nine deities, devas, have done homage to Agni, and appointed him their ministrant priest. Sāyana refers for the confirmation of this statement to the Brihad Aranyaka, where something of the kind is found, but which cannot be regarded as authority for the text of the Veda: the ordinary enumeration of the classes of the subordinate divinities makes them but thirty-three, and the Veda is cited as the authority for this enumeration as repeated in the Purāṇas: Vishnu Pur., p. 123, note.

Although the texts of the Rig-Veda, more or less detached, are extensively employed in the ritual of the Brahmans, yet the allusions to ceremonial offices are very rare, and not always very explicit: of course commendations of the offering of the juice of the Soma plant are constantly repeated, and its effects upon those who drink it, especially Indra, are described in the usual exaggerated strain: there is also occasionally a palpable confusion of attributes with those of the moon, arising out of identity of name (p. 453). Clarified butter, or Ghṛ is also not unfrequently named or alluded to; and in one instance we have a hymn to the Yūpa, or post to which the victim is fastened, as typical of the Vanaspati, the lord of the wood, the tree out of which it has been fabricated. The practice of animal sacrifices on an extensive scale is affirmed in two places, in one of which (p. 276) it is said, that three hundred buffaloes have been offered to Indra as a burnt-offering, and in the other (p. 410) it is prayed that one hundred may be so offered: the phrase in both passages is, dressing or cooking, (root, pach); so that the offering, like that of other nations of antiquity, was no doubt partaken of by those presenting the holocaust: another Sūkta (p. 22) is considered by the scholiast as appropriate to an animal sacrifice, as it repeatedly specifies the presentation of the marrow or fat from the interior of the victim to Agni.

There is scarcely any indication of doctrinal or philosophical speculation, no allusion to the later notions of the several schools, except those expressions above noticed suggestive of the identity of all gods and of all beings; nor is there any hint of the metempsychosis, or of the doctrine which is intimately allied to it, of the repeated renovation of the world: on the contrary, there is one remarkable passage which denies this elsewhere unquestioned proposition. It is there emphatically affirmed that the heaven and the earth were generated but once, as was the milk of Prisni, or the nourishment of the winds, that is to say, the rain; and that nothing similar was successively produced. (p. 481, v. 22.)

Various intimations are given, although less frequent or decisive than in the preceding Ashtakas, of the social condition of the Hindús of the Vaidik period: they confirm the conclusions previously drawn of the advanced state of civilization: cities are repeatedly mentioned, and although, as the objects of Indra's hostility, they may be considered as cities in the clouds, the residences of the Asuras, yet the notion of such aggregations of any class of beings could alone have been suggested by actual observation, and the idea of cities in heaven could have been derived only from familiarity with similar assemblages upon earth: but, as above intimated, it is probable that by Asuras we are to understand, at least occasionally, the anti-vaidik people of India, and that theirs are the cities destroyed. It is also to be observed, that the cities are destroyed on behalf or in defence of mortal princes, who could scarcely have beleaguered celestial towns, even with Indra's assistance: indeed, in one instance (p. 173) it is said that, having destroyed ninety and nine out of the hundred cities of the Asura, Śambara, Indra left the hundredth habitable for his protegé, Divodása, a terrestrial monarch, to whom a metropolis in the firmament would have been of questionable advantage.

That the cities of those days consisted, to a great extent, of mud and mat hovels is very possible: they do so still: Benares, Agra, Delhi, even Calcutta, present numerous constructions of the very humblest class: but that they consisted of these exclusively is contradicted in several places. In one passage (p. 180), the cities of Śambhara that have been overturned are said to have consisted of stone: in another (p. 470), the same cities are indicated by the appellative ḍehyāh, the plastered, intimating the use of lime, mortar, or stucco: in another, we have specified a structure with a thousand columns, which, whether a palace or a temple, must have been something very different from a cottage; and again (p. 288), a supplication is put up for a large habitation, which could not be intended for a hut: cities with buildings of some pretence must obviously have been no rarities to the authors of the hymns of the Rig-Veda.

Notice has already been taken of the large scale upon which, even allowing for exaggeration, wars must have been carried on: a similar passage occurs (p. 180), in which it is said that Indra, for the sake of Dabhíti, destroyed thirty thousand Dásas, slaves, or anti-vaidiks: the scholiast says Rékshasas and others, but the text has only dása, and Dabhíti is a mortal. It is not, however, only with Dásas and Dasyus that we find hostilities prevail, and the Áryas seem to have been equally at variance amongst themselves. Indra is said, in one passage, to have slain two of their leaders on the Saryu river (p. 179), and in another to have destroyed alike both Áryas and Dásas (p. 446): there seems, indeed, to have been considerable animosity prevailing amongst the people, and the gods are not unfrequently solicited to protect the worshipper against his own neighbours and relations. That the religion or the government did not always feel secure may be inferred from a passage in which Indra is requested to protect the worshipper not only in war, but in peace, or amongst or against the people (p. 455).

Of progress in the useful arts we have, as before, occasional exemplifications. The practice of agriculture has already been noticed: the art of weaving is very particularly mentioned (p. 386), although in connexion with some mystical reference to creation or sacrifice: the sharpening of the edge of iron weapons makes it likely that steel is intended; and there is nothing surprising in this, as Indian steel was known to the Persians in the days of Ctesias: the melting of metallic substances was practised (p. 386), very possibly of gold, for golden ornaments, golden cuirasses, are repeatedly mentioned: it might be thought that even coins were current, for amongst the presents made to the Rishi of a Sūkta ten purses are specified (p. 474): the term kosayīḥ may be interpreted, however, bags or chests, and they may have contained only a certain weight of precious metal.

The same familiarity with the sea that has been previously commented on occasionally occurs, with sufficient explicitness to leave no doubt of the meaning of the text: thus, in one place the rivers are said to rush to the ocean eager to mix with it (p. 59); and again, the rivers disappear in the ocean (p. 221), where also it is said that those desirous of profit are engaged in traversing the ocean, clearly indicating maritime traffic: the Maruts, or personified winds, are said to toss the clouds like ships, or as the scholiast amplifies a rather elliptical phrase, as the ocean tosses ships: in another place (p. 425), although the particular expressions may be equivocal, yet it is undeniable that the passage is intended to convey the

There are one or two curious passages relating to the laws of inheritance, and of simple contract, or buying and selling: they may not be very precise or altogether intelligible, yet they are sufficiently so to shew that legislative enactments were in existence, and that, with respect to these two subjects, the law was essentially the same as that which is laid down in the reputed writings of ancient legislators, and, to a certain extent, is still in force. A son, by virtue of holy acts, that is, it may be inferred, the worship of the manes, although not so specified, is the heir, to the exclusion of a daughter, as she, by marriage, conveys the property into a different family: she is, however, to be enriched with gifts, upon her marriage, it may be supposed by way of dower: in default of a direct male heir, the son of a daughter is to perform the rites, and consequently inherit the property; but this applies only to the son of an appointed daughter, who, according to all the oldest authorities, was considered equal to a son; and the term used in the passage in question evidently comprehends this stipulation or appointment: the Sásadvahni is the transferrer of his daughter to another family, under agreement or stipulation, and thereby proceeds to, or establishes, the affiliation of a grandson; or as the scholiast, no doubt quite correctly, states it, the father stipulates, I will give you

1 "The son of an appointed daughter is equal to the son of the body: he shall inherit as a son the estate of his father and of his maternal grandfather, who leaves no male issue." Devala: see Colebrooke's Digest, 3. 161., and other texts. Ibid.
my daughter, who has no brothers, on condition that the son who may be begotten on her may be my son also: now this, although ancient law, is a refinement upon the rules of inheritance, and is an unquestionable evidence of advanced civilization.

The law, that if a person have sold a commodity for less than its value, and repents of having done so, he cannot reclaim the commodity sold, from the buyer, is apparently the law of the present day, though there be some difference of opinion: what has been sold, it is said, at a low price by an idiot, or one inebriate or insane, may be resumed compulsorily, if need be, from the buyer; but it is then reasonably inferred, that if it be sold for a low price by a man sound of mind, the sale is valid: this is so far qualified, that if the sale have been made by mistake it may be cancelled; and in general, rescission of the sale or purchase of things not perishable is allowable within ten days, at the will of either of the parties: this is considered by Mill (History of India, vol. i. p. 232) as altogether incompatible with an age in which the divisions and refinements of industry have multiplied the number of exchanges: and he would therefore have looked upon the law, as it is laid down in the text of the Veda, making a sale and purchase, once concluded, unalterable, as a proof of an advanced era in the interchange of marketable commodities.

So far, therefore, the allusions to the social condition of the Hindús are in harmony with those that have been previously noticed; and the same may be said of the references made to the tracts occupied by them, which were in the north-west and west of India, from the Punjab to the mouths of the Indus, their outlet to the ocean: we have the Yamunā mentioned once, the Ganges once: the Saraswati is often named in both her characters as a goddess and a river, and the Drishadvati, is in one place associated with her as in Manu, along with another river not met with elsewhere, the Apayā: the Vipāsa and Satudrí, or Beyah and Satlaj, are interlocutors in a Sūkta with the Rishi Viśvāmitra, in which he entreats them to allow him to ford them with his attendants and waggons, being bound to the north-west, as he states, to collect the Soma plant. Other rivers are named, as the Rasā, Anitabhā, Kubhā (p. 330), Purushnī, and the Hariyupiyā, or Varyavatī, the positions of which are no longer known, but which were probably in the west, and were feeders of the Indus. On the eastern bank of the Hariyupiyā dwelt a people called Vrichivats, or Vārasikhas, who were subjugated, with the aid of Indra, by the Rajas Abhyāvarttin and Prastoka; (p. 438), and who we may suppose, therefore, not to have been Hindús.¹ A people called Rusumas, inhabiting, it is said, a country so called, must have been an orthodox race, presenting valuable gifts to the Rishi of a Sūkta in which their liberality is eulogised (p. 288): on the other hand it seems to be intimated, that the Hindúism of the Vedas had not spread into South Bahar, when it is asked, what do the cattle for thee (Indra), among the Kīkatas (p. 86), Kīkata being the ordinary appellation of that province; and it is not incompatible with the apparent limitation of the Hindūs in the time of the Vedas to the western countries, that their religion had not extended so far into the interior, especially into a country which is still partly covered by forest, and inhabited by barbarous tribes. Besides the rivers and races thus named, and for the most part peculiar to the Veda, we have a number of names of Rajas which are not met with elsewhere (pp. 272, 288, 439): the intermarriage of royal and saintly races, of which the Purāṇas afford examples, is of Vaidik authority, and is curiously illustrated by the story of Śyāvāśwa (p. 344).
INTRODUCTION.

A few legends of an interesting description occur in the Āśṭakas now translated: thus, in the third (p. 83), we have a hymn of some length by Viśvāmitra, which is usually regarded as authority for the existence of a violent feud between the author and the Rishi Vasishṭha, and their respective descendants, and to be the vehicle of such an imprecation upon the latter, that Brahmans, who profess to belong to the gotra, the traditional family or school of Vasishṭha, will not read or transcribe the passages: the cause of quarrel is not alluded to in the Veda, but it is repeatedly detailed, with some variations, in the heroic poems and Purāṇas. The oldest form of the legend is, no doubt, that of the Rāmāyana, repeated in the Mahābhārata, Ādi Parva, where Viśvāmitra, whilst yet in his original or Kshatriya character, attempts to carry off by violence the all-bestowing cow from the hermitage of Vasishṭha, typifying, no doubt, a quarrel between the Brahmanical and Kshatriya races for the dominion of the all-yielding earth; in which, however, it is very remarkable that the forces summoned to take the part of the Brahman are all foreigners, Śakas, Yavanas, Pahnavas, and Mlechchhas, or unconverted tribes, as Dráviras, Paundras, Kirátas. Vis-wámitra afterwards, by the force of penance, becoming a Brahman, appears in the Rámáyána, and in the dramas thence derived, on very friendly terms with Vásiṣṭha, as the Purohita or family priest of Daśaratha, but in the Mahábhárata Adi Parva, vol. 1. p. 243, and Śalya Parva, vol. 3. p. 361, we have repeated incidents of offence given, especially by Viṣwámitra by which Vásiṣṭha is reduced to despair, and endeavours in vain to destroy himself. Some of these circumstances are subsequently alluded to.

Another legend worthy of notice is that of Váma-deva, who, whilst yet unborn, insists on coming into existence by his mother’s side, an incident that may have been suggestive of the subsequent similarly marvellous birth of Buddha. Another incident adverted to is that of Váma-deva having, when hungry, cooked for his food the entrails of a dog, a circumstance repeated in the tenth book of Manu. Several allusions seem to indicate that the followers of the Vedas were not very scrupulous as to the articles of their diet: it appears, for instance, that the flesh of the wild cattle was allowable, (p. 163); and, in one passage, even that of the cow is said to be the best of food (p. 453).

The story of the Raja Tryárúṇa, his Purohit, and the boy over whom the latter drives the former’s car, involves a legal argument, which is amongst the subtleties of Hindu legislation: See Law Questions, Ballantyne's Synopsis of Science, vol. 1. p. x: the consequence, however, the cessation of the use of fire, is more remarkable, intimating possibly a sort of interdict, during which the performance of burnt-sacrifices was suspended: the story is rather obscurely narrated. We may advert to one more legend, as it is more particularly given by Manu (10. 107.): the Veda merely states the fact that Bharadwaja, the Rishi, accepted presents from a person named Tribu: in Manu and in the Niti Manjari he is said to have been a carpenter or woodcutter; and in both these authorities the moral of the story is the legality of the acceptance of presents from persons of inferior caste, by Brahmans in time of distress: the latter qualification was probably unknown in the days of the Veda, when questions of impurity, whether of food or of caste, had not come to be entertained.

At the same time it may be doubted whether there are not in these two portions of the Rig-Veda, some intimation of the institution of caste, although not yet fully developed: the five classes, which sometimes signify different orders of created beings, can, in one or two passages, apply to human beings alone; whether to the four usual distinctions with the Nishada for the fifth is not explicitly asserted in the text, although it is so understood by the commentator. The designation of Brâhmaṇa not unfrequently occurs, although its specific application may be questionable: in one passage (p. 203) we have the term Kshatriya, as the immediate dependant upon a Raja: Vis, meaning people in general, offers the rudiments of Vaisya, although not precisely the same word; we have not, however, met anywhere with the term Śúdra, although the thing may be intended by the words Dása and Dásth, slave and serviles: the absence of the appropriate appellation is, however, a reasonable argument against the recognition of the order to which it belongs; and it must be admitted that the indications of the four recognised castes are imperfect and inconclusive.

Whatever may be the case with the specification of caste, however, the same entire abstinence that has been heretofore observed from all allusion to the objects of worship consecrated by the Purá纳斯 and Tantras continues to prevail in the two additional sections now translated; and the personified triad of divine attributes, Brahmá, Vishnu, Šiva, in their capacities of creator, preserver, destroyer, with the popular forms of the two latter Krishna and the Linga, and all the manifestations of the bride of Mahádeva, continue to be utterly unknown to the primitive texts of the religion of the Hindús.

the divine (rivers), bearers of sweet (water.) One sacred sound glorifies thee (Agni), who art desirous of repose, pacifying (thy flames) in the abode of the water (the firmament).

3. Their lord has mounted on his well-trained mares; the sagacious selector of treasures, the black-backed, many-limbed (Agni) has granted them a place of rest for the cherishing of (their) rapid speed.\(^1\)

4. The flowing (rivers) invigorating him, bear along the great son of Twashtri, the undecaying upholster (of the world), radiant with various forms in the vicinity (of the firmament): Agni is associated with heaven and earth, as (a husband with) one only wife.\(^2\)

5. Men comprehend the service of the uninjurable showerer (of benefits), and exult in the commands of the mighty (Agni): their frequent and earnest hymns of praise, bright and radiant, are illuminating heaven.

6. Verily (men) bring great delight to Agni by glorifying aloud the mighty parents (heaven and earth), when the shedder of rain approximates his own radiance to the worshipper, (wherewith) to invest the night.

7. Seven sages with five ministering priests\(^3\) attend the station that is prepared for the rapid (Agni): the undecaying divine (sages), with their faces to the east, sprinkling (the libations), rejoice as they celebrate the worship of the gods.

8. I propitiate the two first divine offerers of sacrifice; the seven (priests) rejoice with the libation; the illustrious celebrators of holy worship, reciting (his) praises, have called Agni the true (object) of every rite.

9. Divine invoker of the gods, the vast and widespread rays shed (moisture) for thee, the mighty, the victorious, the wonderful, the showerer (of benefits): do thou who art all-knowing, joy-bestowing, bring hither the great gods, and heaven and earth.

10. Ever-moving (Agni) may the mornings rise for us, abounding with oblations, with pious prayers, and with auspicious signs, and conferring wealth; and do thou, with the might of thy (diffusive flame), consume all sin on behalf of thy respectable (worshipper).

11. Grant, Agni, to the offerer of the oblation, earth the bestower of cattle, the means of many (pious rites), such that it may be perpetual: may there be to us sons and grandsons, and may thy good-will ever be productive of benefits to us.1

1 This verse is the burden of several Sūktas in the preceding Āṣṭāka, see vol. ii. pp. 323, 334, 336. Sātyaṇa rather varies his interpretation in some respects upon this recurrence of the verse: thus he translates in the former, Ilā, by Bhūmi, earth: here he calls her a female divinity in the form of a cow, gorśpam devatām, and he connects vijāvā with anumati, good-will, explaining it abandhyā, may it be not barren, productive: see Introduction, vol. ii. p. xxvi.
Sūkta VIII. (VIII.)

The deity is considered to be the Yupa, or sacrificial post, diversified as single or as many: the Viṣṇudévās are the deities of the eighth stanza; the Rishi is Viśvāmitra; the metre of the third and seventh verses is Anuśṭubh; of the rest, Trishtubh.

1. Vanaspati,1 the devout anoint thee with sacred butter at the sacrifice; and whether thou standest erect, or thine abode be on the lap of this thy mother (earth), grant us riches.

2. Standing on the east of the kindled (fire), dispensing food (as the source) of undecaying (health) and excellent progeny, keeping off our enemy at a distance, stand up for great auspiciousness.

3. Be exalted, Vanaspati, upon this sacred spot of earth, being measured with careful measurement, and bestow food upon the offerer of the sacrifice.

4. Well clad and hung with wreaths comes the youthful (pillar): most excellent it is as soon as generated: stedfast and wise venerated of the gods, meditating piously in their minds, raise it up.

5. Born (in the forest), and beautified in the sacrifice celebrated by men, it is (again) engendered for the sanctification of the days (of sacred rites): stedfast, active, and intelligent (priests) consecrate it with intelligence, and the devout worshipper recites its praise.

1 Vanaspati, lit. forest lord, is here said to mean the post of wood to which the victim is tied: the verse is quoted in the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa, ii. 2, and is similarly expounded in the Nirukta, 8, 18.
6. May those (posts) which devout men have cut down, or which, Vanaspati, the axe has trimmed, may they standing resplendent with all their parts (entire) bestow upon us wealth with progeny.

7. May those posts which have been cut down upon the earth, and which have been fabricated by the priests, those which are the accomplishers of the sacrifice, convey our acceptable (offering) to the gods.

8. May the leaders of the rite, the divine Adityas. Rudras, Vasus, Heaven and Earth, the Earth, the firmament, well pleased, protect our sacrifice: let them raise aloft the standard of the ceremony.

9. Arrayed in bright (garments), entire (in their parts), these pillars ranging in rows like swans, have come to us erected by pious sages on the east (of the fire); they proceed resplendent on the path of the gods.

10. Entire in all parts and girded with rings, they appear upon the earth like the horns of horned cattle; hearing (their praises) by the priests: may they protect us in battles.

11. Vanaspati mount up with a hundred branches, that we may mount with a thousand, thou whom the sharpened hatchet has brought for great auspiciousness.

Sūkta IX. (IX.)

The deity is Agni; the Rishi Viśwamittra; the metre Brihatti, except in the last verse, in which it is Trishtubh.

1. We thy mortal friends have recourse for our protection to thee, the divine, the grandson of the waters, the auspicious, the resplendent, the accessible, the sinless.
2. Desirous as thou art of the forests since thou hast repaired to the maternal waters, Agni, thy tarrying so far away is not to be endured; (in a moment) thou art here with us.¹

3. Thou wishest exceedingly to convey satisfaction (to thy worshipper) and art thereto well-disposed; of those in whose friendship thou art cherished, some precede whilst others sit around.²

4. The benignant and long-lived deities have discovered thee, Agni, when required to go against their constant and assembled foes, hidden in the waters like a lion (in a cave.)

5. Mātāriswān therefore brought for the gods from afar, Agni, hiding of himself, and generated by attrition, as (a father brings back) a fugitive (son).³

6. Bearer of oblations, men apprehend thee (thus concealed) for the service of the gods, and that thou, youngest (of the deities) and friendly to mankind, mayst recompense by thy acts all their pious rites.

7. Auspicious is thy worship for it prospers the ignorant (worshipper), wherefore animals\(^1\) reverence thee, \text{Agni}, kindled in the beginning of the night.

¹ That is, according to the scholiast, although not yet kindled, yet as soon as the attrition of the touchwood takes place Agni appears.
² According to Śāyāṇa allusion is made to the sixteen priests, of whom the Adhvaryu and eleven others take an active part in the ceremonial, whilst the Udgātrī and other three are sitting by, engaged in the recital of the prayers and hymns.

8. Offer oblations to the object of holy sacrifice, the brilliant purifier, who is dormant (in fuel): worship quietly the pervader (of the rite), the messenger (of the gods), the rapid, the ancient deity who is entitled to laudation.

9. Three thousand three hundred and thirty-nine divinities have worshipped \text{Agni}:\(^2\) they have sprinkled him with melted butter; they have spread for him the sacred grass; and have seated him upon it as their ministrant priest.

The deity and \text{Rishi} as before: the metre is \text{Uṣṇīṣh}.

1. Thee, the king of men; \text{Agni}, the divine: prudent mortals kindle thee at the sacrifice.

3. He verily who presents oblations to thee, the knower of all things, he acquires (Agni) excellent progeny: he prospers.

4. May (Agni), the banner of sacrifices, offering oblations on the part of the worshipper through (the ministry of) the seven officiating priests, come hither with the gods.

5. Offer to the ministring Agni as if to the Creator (of the world), the great praise recited of old, for the sake of animating the energies of the pious (worshipers).\(^1\)

6. May our hymns exalt Agni, so that he may be born more worthy of praise, and may become manifest for (the purpose of bestowing) abundant food and riches.

7. Agni, thou art to be especially worshipped at the sacrifice: worship the gods (on behalf of) the devout (worshipper): thou shinest the invoker (of the gods) the exhilarator (of the pious) overcoming thy foes.\(^2\)

8. Do thou, our purifier, light up for us a brilliant progeny: be ever nigh to those who praise thee for their well being.

9. The wise, intelligent, and vigilant (worshippers) kindle thee, such as thou (hast been described), the bearer of oblations, the immortal, generated by strength.¹

Súkta XI. (XI.)

The deity and Rishi as before; the metre is Gáyatrí.

1. Agni, the invoker of the gods, the minister (of the gods), the supervisor of the sacrifice, understands the solemn rite in its due course.

2. That Agni, who is the bearer of oblations, the immortal, the desirer (of offerings), the messenger (of the gods), and is the receiver of sacrificial viands, is associated with understanding.²

3. Agni, the ancient banner of sacrifice, knows (all things) through understanding: his radiance traverses (the darkness).³

4. The gods have made Agni, who is the son of strength, the eternally-renowned, the knower of all that is born, the bearer (of oblations).

5. Agni, the preceeder of human beings,⁴ (ever) alert, the vehicle of their offerings, is ever new, is unsusceptible of harm.

6. Agni, the most liberal contributor of food, is able to resist all assailants unharmed, the nourisher of the gods.

7. From Agni of purifying radiance the mortal presenter (of offerings) obtains by his conveyance (of them to the gods) abundant viands and a dwelling.\(^1\)

8. May we, endowed with intelligence, obtain all good things by our praises of Agni, to whom all is known.

9. May we obtain, Agni, all precious things (as booty) in battles, since the gods are concentrated in thee.

Súkta XII. (XII.)

The deities are Indra and Agni; the Rishi and metre as before.

1. Indra and Agni come to this acceptable libation, (brought) by our praises\(^2\) from heaven, and induced by (our) devotion to drink of it.

\(^1\) This and the two preceding occur in the Sáma Veda, ii. 906—908.

\(^2\) Gír bhír Nabho vareṇyam; sambhajaniyam somam prati asmadiyabhíh stutirúpabhír, vágbhir, áhutau: Nabho, nabhasah swargasthánád áyátam: called by our praises, come you two from the place of Swarga to this enjoyable Soma, is Sáyana's explanation: the verse occurs both in the Sáma-Veda, ii. 19. and Yajur-Veda, vii. 31: Mahidhara tries to give a different sense to Nabha, which he identifies with Āditya, and conjectures a comparison understood, as, come to the Soma which is like the desirable sun, or it may mean, he says, those dwelling in heaven: Nabhaḥ stháh the gods: Come to the Soma that is sought for by the gods.
2. Indra and Agni, the conscious sacrifice associated with the worshipper proceeds to you: (summoned) by this (invocation), drink the libation.

3. Urged by the energy of the sacrifice, I have recourse to Indra and Agni, the protectors of the pious: may they be satiated with the Soma here presented.

4. I invoke Indra and Agni, the discomfiters of foes, the destroyers of Vritra, the victorious, the invincible, the bestowers of most abundant food.

5. The reciters of prayers, the repeaters of praise, who are skilled in sacred song, worship you both: I have recourse to Indra and Agni for food.

6. Indra and Agni, with one united effort you overthrew ninety cities ruled over by (your) foes.

7. Indra and Agni, the pious ministers, are present at our holy rite, according to the ways of worship.

8. Indra and Agni, in you, vigour and food are abiding together, and therefore in you is deposited the dispensing of water.

1. Jarituk sāchā yajno jīgāti chetanah: the expression is rather obscure: yajna and chetana are both applied by Sāyana to the Soma, as the material of the sacrifice, yajna-sādhanam, and the animator or giver of consciousness to the organs of perception; indriyānām chetayitā, and the co-operator with the worshipper in obtaining heaven or other benefits—jarituk sāchā svargādiphalapráptau sahāyo bhūtah: this and the next stanza occur in the Sāma, 11. 20, 21: Professor Benfey has understood it differently.

ANUVĀKA II.

SŪKTA I. (XIII.)

The deity is Agni; the Rishi is Rishabhā, a son of Viśwā-mitra; the metre Anushṭubh.

Varga XIII.

1. (Priests) utter devout (praises) to this your divine Agni, that so glorified he may come to us with the gods, and sit down on the sacrificial grass.

2. The observer of truth, of whom (are) heaven and earth, and whose vigour the protecting (deities) assist: him, the offerers of oblations adore, and those desirous of riches (have recourse) to him for protection.

3. He, the sage, is the director of those (who sacrifice), he is (the regulator) of sacrifices: worship him your (benefactor), the donor, who is the bestower of wealth.

4. May that Agni bestow upon us prosperous dwellings for our maintenance, so that from him infinite wealth, whether it may be in heaven or from earth, or in the waters (may come to us).

5. The devout kindle (the fire) with his wealth-obtaining rites, (to worship) the radiant, unprecedented Agni, the invoker (of the gods), the protector of men.

6. Perfect our prayer, Invoker of the gods, as well as our hymns: Agni, who increaseth with the winds and art the giver of thousands, augment our felicity.

7. Grant us indeed, Agni, wealth (that may be counted) by thousands, and comprising offspring, nourishment, brilliant treasure,\(^1\) and vigour, and be infinite and inexhaustible.

Sūkta II. (XIV.)

The deity and Rishi as before; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. The invoker (of the gods), the exhilarator (of his worshippers), the true, the offerer of sacrifice, the most wise, the creator, is present at our sacred rites. Agni, the son of strength, whose chariot is the lightning, whose hair is flame, manifests his glory on the earth.

2. I utter to thee the words of adoration, be pleased by them, observer of truth: endowed with strength, (they are addressed) to thee who art the expounder (of sacred rites): wise (as thou art) bring (hither) the wise: object of sacrifice, sit down in the midst upon the sacred grass for our protection.

3. May the food-bestowing day and night hasten to thee whilst thou, Agni, meetest them on the paths of the wind: since (the priests) ever worship thee preceding (them)\(^2\) with oblations, whilst they (united) like the pole (and the yoke of a waggon), abide successively in our dwelling.

4. Vigorous Agni, to thee Mitra and Varuna, and all the Maruts, offer praise; since, son of strength, thou standest a sun,\(^1\) shedding (thy) rays with lustre on mankind.

5. With uplifted hands,\(^2\) approaching thee with reverence, we present to thee to-day our oblation:\(^3\) do thou, who art wise, worship the gods with most devout mind and with unwearied praise.

6. From thee, verily, son of strength, many and various benefactions and various kinds of food devolve upon the devout (worshipper): do thou grant us, Agni, infinite wealth, and (a son) observant of truth, with speech devoid of guile.

7. Divine (Agni), mighty and omniscient, these (are the offerings) which we mortals present to thee in the sacrifice: do thou be cognizant of every respectable worshipper,\(^4\) and partake, immortal, of all (his offerings) on this occasion.

\(^1\) Tishtáh súrya: the latter is variously explained by the scholiast as, su, good, and aryá, master; or as, urger, impeller, preráka, or vigour, energy, virýya.

\(^3\) Kámam: both commentators consider this synonymous here with oblation, puródásádihavis, as that which is desirable to the gods, kamanìyam.

\(^4\) Viñayasya suratasya bodhi: the scholiast explains the verb, know that I am his protector, gopáyitá bhavámi-ití budh-yasva: Suratha is literally one who has a good chariot, and is so rendered in the commentary sobhanayánopetasya.
The deity is Agni; the Rishi is Utkīla of the Kata gotra, or family; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. Radiant with great glory, repel the hostile Rākshasas and Pišáchas: may I be in (the enjoyment) of the favour of the great (Agni), the giver of prosperity, and in the service of (him who is) easily invoked.

2. Consider thyself our protector at the breaking of the dawn to-day and when the sun has risen: Agni, who art engendered with (embodied) form, be pleased with my constant praise, as a father (is pleased with) his son.

3. Showerer (of benefits), beholder of men, radiant amidst darkness, shine, Agni, with abundant (rays) in due order: granter of dwellings, conduct us (to good), keep off all ill, and youngest (of all the gods), gratify our desires for wealth.

4. Agni, who art irresistible and the showerer (of

5. Destroyer (of the world), do thou who art endowed with intelligence and radiant, celebrate many faultless sacred rites in honour of the gods, and restraining (thy impatience), convey to them like a waggon our (sacrificial) food: illumine (with thy rays) the beautiful heaven and earth.

6 Be propitious, showerer (of benefits); grant (abundant) food, Agni; (make) heaven and earth yield us milk: divine (Agni), associated with the gods, shining with bright radiance, let not the ill-will of any mortal prevail against us.

7. Grant, Agni, to the offerer of the oblation, earth the giver of cattle the means of many sacred rites, such that it may long endure: may there be to us sons and grandsons, and may thy favour, Agni, be productive of good unto us.²

Súkta IV. (XVI.)
The deity and Rishi are the same; the metre of the odd verses is Brihati; of the even, Sato-brihati.

Varga XVI.

2. \textit{Maruts}, leaders (of rites), associate with this augmenter (of our prosperity), in whom (abide) riches contributing to felicity, ye who (are victorious) over (your) enemies in battle, who daily humble (your) foes.

3. Do thou, opulent Agni, showerer (of benefits), prosper us with riches comprising vigour, numerous progeny, health, and happiness.

4. He who is the maker pervades all worlds; he the enduring maker (of all) bears our offerings to the gods: he is present with the devout (worshippers) and amidst the heroism and the devotions of men.

5. Consign us not, Agni, to malignity; (doom) us not to the absence of posterity; nor, son of strength, to the want of cattle, nor to reproach: drive away (all) animosities.

6. Auspicious Agni, bestow (upon us) at the rite, food (the source of) happiness and renown.

\textbf{Súkta V. (XVII.)}

The deity is Agni; the Rishi is Kata the Son of Viśwamitra; the metre Trishtubh.

1. The righteous (Agni)\footnote{\textit{Prathamānudharmā}: dharmā may be considered as a synonyme of Agni; or the construction may be anudharma, according to law or religion.} when first kindled on the several (altars) the object of adoration by all, whose hair is flame, and who is cleansed with butter, the purifier, the worthily-worshipped, is sprinkled with oblations for the worship of the gods.

2. As thou didst offer the burnt-offering, Agni, (on behalf of) earth; as thou, Jātavedas, who art cognizant (of sacred rites, didst offer sacrifice on behalf) of heaven; so with this oblation worship the gods, and perfect this rite to-day (as thou didst) that of Manu.

3. Three are thy existences Jātavedas; three, Agni, are thy parent dawns: with them offer the oblation of the gods, and knowing (his wishes) be the bestower of happiness on the institutor of the sacrifice.

4. Jātavedas, we venerate thee, glorifying the brilliant, beautiful, adorable Agni: the gods have made thee their messenger, the disinterested bearer of oblations, the centre of ambrosia.

5. He is the most diligent offerer of worship who is the presenter of oblations before thou art, and who in two places (the middling and the best) seated with the sacrificial food is (the source of) happiness (to the worshippers): do thou, cognizant (of the objects of devotion), officiate in accordance with his piety, and thus render our rite acceptable to the gods.

THIRD ASHTAKA—FIRST ADHYAYA.

Sôkta VI. (XVIII.)

The deity, Rishi; and metre as before.

1. Be favourably disposed, Agni, on approaching us (at this rite); be the fulfiller (of our objects) like a friend (to a friend) or parents (to a child): since men are the grievous oppressors of men, do thou consume the foes who come against us.

2. Vex thoroughly, Agni, our assailing enemies, disappoint the purpose of the adversary who offers not worship: giver of dwellings, who art cognizant (of sacred rites), vex those who have no thought (of pious acts) so that thy undecaying, all-pervading (rays), may ever abide.

3. Desirous (of wealth) I offer to thee, Agni, an oblation with butter and with fuel for thy speed and invigoration, praising thee with a holy prayer as much as I am able: (I propitiate thee) that thou mayst render this praise resplendent with infinite treasure.

4. Rise up, son of strength, with (thy) splendour when hymned, and bestow abundant food and wealth, Agni, upon the descendants of Viśvamitra\(^1\) celebrating thy praise; and grant them exemption from sickness and danger: Encourager of pious works (Agni), we repeatedly sprinkle thy substance (with milk and butter).

5. Liberal donor (of riches) bestow upon us the most precious of treasures, for therefore is it, Agni, that thou art kindled: thou hast arms promptly stretched forth, whose (radiant) forms (bestow) wealth on the dwelling of thy fortunate adorer.

Śūkta VII. (XIX.)

The deity and metre as before; the Rishi is Gāthin, a son of Visvāmitra.

Varga XIX.

1. I have recourse in this sacrifice to Agni, the invoker and praiser (of the gods), the intelligent, the all-knowing, the unbeguiled; may he, the adorable, sacrifice for us to the gods, (and) accept the precious (offerings) we make for food and riches.

2. Reverencing the gods, I place before thee, Agni, the brilliant oblation-yielding, food-bestowing, butter-charged (offering); mayst thou (propitiated) by the presented wealth, sanctify (this) sacrifice by your circumambulation.

3. He who is protected, Agni, by thee, becomes endowed with a most luminous mind: bestow upon him excellent progeny: may we ever be under the power of thee, who art the willing dispenser of riches: glorifying thee (may we be) the receptacles of wealth.

4. The ministring priests have concentrated in thee, Agni, who art divine, many hosts (of flames); do thou bring hither the gods, youngest (of the deities), that thou mayst worship to-day the divine effulgence.

5. Inasmuch as the attendant divine (priests) anoint thee as the invoker of the gods to offer worship in the sacrifice, therefore do thou assent to be our protector on this occasion, and grant abundant food to our descendants.

Śūkta VIII. (XX.)

The Visvadevas are the deities of the first and last stanzas; Agni the deity of the rest; the Rishi and metre as before.

Varga XX.

1. The bearer (of the oblation) invokes with praises at the break of day, Agni, the dawn, the AŚWINŚ, and Dadhikrā: may the resplendent divinities, desirous of our sacrifice, hear in unison (the invocation).

2. AGNI, born of sacrifice, three are thy viands; three thine abiding places; three the tongues satisfying (the gods): three verily are thy forms, acceptable to the deities, and with them never heedless (of our wishes), be propitious to our praises.

3. Divine AGNI, knowing all that exists and distributor of food, many are the names of thee, who art immortal, satisfier of all men, friend of the suppliant, the gods have deposited in thee whatever are the delusions of the deluding (Rākshasas).

4. The divine AGNI is the guide of devout men, as the sun is the regulator of the seasons: may he, the observer of truth, the slayer of Vṛitra, the ancient, the omniscient, convey his adorer (safe) over all difficulties.

5. I invoke to this rite, Dadhikrā, AGNI, the divine USHAS, BṛIHASPATI, the divine SAVITRI, the AŚWINŚ, MITRA and VARUNA, BHAGA, the Vasus, the Rudras, and Adityas.

1 This ordinarily means a horse: in this place, according to Sāyana, it implies a certain divinity, Kaśchid-devah.
2 Butter, fuel, and the Soma.
3 Three altars, or the three daily sacrifices, or the three worlds.
4 The three fires, Gārhapatyā, Āhavantyā, and Dakshina.
5 The three fires termed Pāvakā, Pavamāna, and Śučki.
6 Bhūrini nāma, for nāmāni: the commentator explains the substantive by tejānsi, splendidous.
7 Therefore Agni is able to counteract their devices for disturbing sacrifices.
Sūkta (IX.) XXI.

The deity is Agni; the Rishi, Gāthin; the metre of the first and fourth verses is Trishtubh; of the second and third Anushṭubh; and of the fifth Sato-brihati.

Varga XXI.

1. Convey our sacrifice, Jātavedas, to the immor-tals, and do thou accept these oblations: Agni, in-voker (of the gods), seated (on the altar) first partake of the drops¹ of the marrow and of the butter.

2. The drops of the marrow charged with butter fall, purifier, to thee, at thine own rite, for the food of the gods: therefore grant us excellent affluence.

3. The drops (of marrow) dripping with butter are offered, Agni, to thee who art wise: thou the most excellent Rishi art kindled: be the protector of the sacrifice.

4. Irrepressible and powerful Agni, the drops of marrow and of butter distil for thee; therefore do thou, who art praised by sages, come with great splen-dour, and be pleased, ever intelligent Agni, with our oblations.

5. We present to thee the densest marrow that has been extracted for thee from the interior (of the victim):² granter of dwellings, the drops fall for thee upon the skin: distribute them amongst the gods.

¹ Stokāḥ, commonly meaning any small portion, is explained throughout by vindavāḥ, drops: the hymn, according to Sāyana, is proper to animal sacrifices, pasu-yāgam.

² Ojishtham te madhyato meda udbhītam; the medas or vapā is described as the fatty matter that lubricates the abdomen like coagulated butter: it is evidently the same that is described in the Old Testament as “the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards.” Levit. iv. 9, &c.
Sókta X. (XXII.)

Five fires\(^1\) are the deities; the Rishi as before; the metre of the fourth stanza is Anuvśțubh; of the rest Trisńtubh.

1. This is that Agni in whom Indra, désious (of the oblation), placed the effused Soma for (his own) belly;\(^2\) thou art praised by us, Játavedas, enjoying the sacrificial food of many sorts like a rapid courser (enjoying many pleasures in battle).\(^3\)

2. Adorable Agni, thy radiance that is in the heaven, on the earth, in the plants, in the waters, and wherewith thou overspreadest the firmament,\(^4\) that, is shining and resplendent, overlooking man (vast as) the ocean.\(^5\)

\(^1\) Panchachitirūpā agnayo devatā, each verse it is said being separately recited as the Adhvaryu constructs a pit or an altar, iśtāka, for collecting chayana or chiti, a sacrificial fire: the hymn occurs in the same order in the Yajush, xii. 47, 51.

\(^2\) Dadhe jathare, svodare dadhāra; but the verb is also applied to yasmin, the fire in which the Soma was placed.

\(^3\) Sahasrīnam vājam atyam na saptim sasavān, enjoying a thousand-fold food like a quick-going horse: like a horse that enjoys various properties in battle, is Śāyaṇa’s explanation, sahasram nādhrīpatām yuddhe yo bhajati sa sahasrī, tam aswamiva; which does not much illustrate the comparison: Mahidhara gives the words an entirely different sense: Sahasrīnam, he attaches to somam, worthy or fit for a thousand libations, somam sahasrārham; atyam and saptim to vājam, food, exhilarating, madaharam, and satisfying, triptikaram: na, meaning ‘now,’ sampratī.

\(^4\) Agni, severally, as the sun, as sacrificial fire, as the fire that is illuminated by attrition from wood, as submarine fire and as wind.

\(^5\) Twesha sa bhānur arṇavo nyāchakshāh, is explained by Śāyaṇa, déptimān eva bhāsamano nrīnām drūhta samudravan mahān, shining verily and resplendent the beholder of men great like the ocean: Mahidhara does not differ materially but explains arṇavah by arṇāni, udakāni yatra santi, the place
3. Thou movest, Agni, to the vapour in heaven;\(^1\) thou congregatest the divinities who are the vital airs\(^2\) (of the body); thou animatest the waters in the bright region above the sun,\(^3\) as well as those that are in the firmament beneath.

4. May the benignant fires termed puríshyá,\(^4\) together with the instruments\(^5\) (that have dug the pits in which they are placed) combined, accept the sacrifice (and grant us) salutary and abundant food.

5. Grant, Agni, to the offerer of the oblation earth the giver of cattle, the means of many sacred rites, such that it may long endure: may there be to us sons

\(^1\) That is, in the form of smoke.

\(^2\) Deván úchishe dhishnyá ye: Mahídhará agrees with Sáyaña in explaining dhishnyá by práná, or the devas presiding over the vital airs, pránábhimánino deváh: úchishe the latter renders, samavétán karoshi.

\(^3\) Rochane parastát súryasya: Rochana is said to be the loka or region where the fiery radiance burns, Rochano námányam loko yatra ágneyam jyotis tapati, above the sun, súryasyopa-rishítád.

\(^4\) Puríshyáso agnayah: Sáyaña explains the term, sikhá sammiśráh, mixed with sand: Mahídhará, paśubhya kitáh, good for animals: Purísham occurs in the Nírukta amongst the synonymes of water, and is elsewhere explained as that which pleases or which fills—Nír. II. 22.

\(^5\) Právanébhíh sajosahásah, the first, Sáyaña explains, mritékha-nanásádhanabhútaír abhrýádibhih; abhrýa and others, which are the implements for digging the earth: Mahídhará explains it by manánsi, minds, being pleased in mind, manásá priti-yuktáh: his interpretation, however, seems to rest on a fancied etymology, pra-prakaśheṇa rananti-sambhajanti vishaydn, what especially apprehend objects of sense.
and grandsons, and may thy favour, Agni, be productive of good unto us.¹

Sūkta XI. (XXIII.)

The deity is Agni; the Rishis are Devaśravas, and Devavāta, sons of Bharata; the metre is Trishtubh, except in the third stanza, where it is Sato-brihati.

1. Churned (by the friction of the sticks), duly placed in the sacrificial chamber, the young and sage leader of the rite, Jātavedas, the imperishable Agni, (blazing) amidst consuming forests, grants us on this occasion ambrosial (food).

2. The two sons of Bharata, Devaśravas and Devavāta, have churned the very powerful and wealth-bestowing Agni: look upon us, Agni, with vast riches, and be the bringer of food (to us) every day.

3. The ten fingers have generated this ancient (Agni): praise, Devaśravas, this well-born, beloved (son) of his parents,² generated by Devavāta, Agni, who is the servant of men.

4. I place thee in an excellent spot of earth³ on an auspicious day of days: do thou, Agni, shine on the frequented⁴ (banks) of the Drishadvati, Apayā, and Saraswati, rivers.

² The two pieces of stick that have been rubbed together by Devavāta.
³ Prithivyā ilāyāspade, in the foot-mark of the earth in the form of a cow, according to Sāyana, that is, on the northern altar.
⁴ Mānushi, relating to man or to Manu, is said to imply manushyasanchāravishaye āire, on a bank, a place frequented by men; the Drishadvati and Saraswati rivers are well known; the Apayā has not occurred before.
5. Grant, Agni, to the offerer of the oblation earth the giver of cattle, the means of many sacred rites, such that it may long endure: may there be to us sons and grandsons, and may thy favour, Agni, be productive of good unto us.

SÓKTA XII. (XXIV.)

The deity is Agni; the Rishi Viśvāmitra; the metre of the first verse is Anushūthubh; of the rest, Gāyatrī.

Varga XXIV.

1. Repel, Agni, (hostile) hosts; drive away (all) assailants: insuperable, foe-surpassing, give food to the institutor of this sacrifice.¹

2. Agni (who art) immortal and who art gratified by oblations, thou art kindled upon the altar: be pleased by this our sacrifice.

3. Agni, son of strength, vigilant (in the exercise of)² thy energy, take thy seat when invoked on the sacred grass (strewn at) my (sacrifice).

4. Agni, with all the divine fires, respect the praises of those who in (their) sacrifices are (thy especial) worshippers.

5. Grant, Agni, ample wealth and progeny to the donor (of the oblation): make us prosperous, possessed of offspring.

SÓKTA XIII. (XXV.)

The deity is Agni, as before, but Indra is also included in the fourth verse: the Rishi is Viśvāmitra; the metre Virāj.

Varga XXV.

1. Agni, who art omniscient, and the discriminato (of acts), thou art the son of heaven or the son of earth: do thou who art intelligent worship severally the gods on this occasion.

2. The wise Agni bestows faculties (securing proerity and descendants); adorning (the world with lustre) he gives (sacrificial food) to the immortals: Agni, (to whom) many oblations (are offered), bring hither to us the gods.

3. Agni, the unbewildered, the ruler (of the world), the radiant, associated with vigour and food, illumines the divine immortal parents of all things, heaven and earth.

4. Agni, do thou and Indra, gods disdaining not (our rite), come to the sacrifice in the dwelling of the offerer of the libation to drink the Soma juice.

5. Agni, son of strength, Jātavedas the eternal, traversing the inhabited regions with thy protection, thou art kindled in the dwelling of the waters.¹

SŪKTA XIV. (XXVI.)
The deity of the first triplet is Vaiśwānara; of the second,
Agni, with the Maruts; of the two next stanzas, Agni or Parabrahma; of the ninth, Viśwāmitra himself, who is the Rishi of all the stanzas except the seventh, which is supposed to be uttered by Brahma, or Agni identified with divine spirit; the metre of the two first triplets is Jagati, of the rest Trishtubh.

1. We of the race of Kuśika offering oblations, desirous of wealth, having contemplated him in our minds, invoke with praises the divine Vaiśwānara, the observer of truth,² the cognizant of heaven, the ¹ That is as lightning in the firmament.

² Anushatya, from anu and satya: in this and similar compounds which are of frequent recurrence, the notion, at least according to the Scholiast, is not that of observing truth in the bountiful, the charioteer, the frequenter (of sacrifices).

2. We invoke thee for our own protection and for the devotions of mankind, the radiant Agni, Vaiśwānara, the illuminator of the firmament, the adorable lord of sacred rites,1 the wise, the hearer (of supplications), the guest (of man), the quick-moving.

3. Vaiśwānara is kindled in every age by the Kuṣikas as a neighing foal (is nourished) by its mother: may that Agni, vigilant amongst the immortals, give us wealth with excellent offspring and good horses.

4. May the swift fires combined with the vigorous winds proceed to the pure (region of the water), uniting the drops (of rain): the Maruts irresistible, all-knowing, agitate the copious-shedding clouds.

5. The fire-beautified, all-agitating Maruts: we seek their fierce radiance for protection: they, the sons of Rudra, the bountiful Maruts, whose form is the rain, are loud like roaring lions.

6. We solicit the might of the Maruts, the irradiation of Agni with solemn prayers in every assembly and company (of worshippers); those Maruts who have party-coloured steeds, who are dispensers of unfailing wealth, firm (of purpose), and frequenters of sacrifices.

7. I, Agni, am by birth endowed with knowledge abstract, but of keeping faith with the sacrificer, by giving him the desired recompence to which he is justly entitled.

of all that exists: clarified butter is my eye: ambrosia is my mouth: I am the living breath of three-fold nature, the measure of the firmament, eternal warmth: I am also the oblation.

8. Agni, thoroughly comprehending the light that is to be understood by the heart, has purified himself (by the three) purifying (forms); he has made himself most excellent treasure by (these) self-manifesta-

1 Agni asmi janmanā jātavedā; or it may mean, I, Agni, am by birth Jātaveda.

2 This is a somewhat mystical description of the universality of Agni in the double capacity of the enjoier and enjoyed, the food and the feeder, and in the three forms of fire, air, and the sun, presiding over earth, mid heaven, and heaven: the eye of Agni is the light of all, which light is fed by oblations of butter; ambrosia is the reward of pious acts or enjoyment of heaven and the like, which is procurable through oblations to fire, as if through his mouth or countenance, amritam me āsan: arkastridhātuḥ; arka is explained jagatsarashtā pránah, world-creating vital air, which, becoming threefold, is Vāyu, in the firmament, Agni, on earth, and Aditya as the source of eternal warmth and life. Sāyana furnishes another and more simple illustration of some of the phraseology, or, as the eye lights up the world, sō ghee thrown upon the fire causes it to burn fiercer and dispense more light: amrita he explains also by prabhā, light, light is in my countenance: tridhātu he refers to the three vital airs termed prána, apána, and vyána: the identity with the air and the sun is similarly explained: the verse occurs in the Vajush xviii. 66, where Mahidhara interprets it differently: according to him, it is the yajamāna who identifies himself with Agni, saying, I am by birth, Agni, or of the form of Agni, Agni-rupa, the lord of all that is born, the sacrifice (arka), the three vedas, the measure of the water, the eternal sun: ghee is the eye; that is, I behold the offerer of ghee on the fire; I convert the oblation that is put into my mouth into ambrosia: thus there is no duality between Agni and the individual, evamātmānyagnyadwaitam.
tions, and has thence contemplated heaven and earth.\(^1\)

9. Heaven and earth be kind to that sage\(^2\) who is as it were a many-channelled and inexhaustible stream (of knowledge); the parent (of his disciples), the collaborator of holy texts, rejoicing on the lap of his parents, whose words are truth.

Sūkta XV. (XXVII.)

The deity is Agni, or of the first verse, Ritu, or the personified season; Viśvāmitra, is the Rishi; the metre is Gāyatrī.

1. The months, the half months, (the gods) who are the receivers of oblations, with the butter-yielding kine, preside over your rites: \(^3\) the sacrificer, desirous of prosperity, worships the gods.

\(^1\) Having by self-contemplation recognised his identity with the three manifestations, Agni, Vāyu, and Āditya, he comes to know his identity with the universe, as by the text, ātmani vīgnāte varvam īdam vīgnātam bhavuti, the self being known, all this (universe) is known.

\(^2\) That is, Viśvāmitra himself: in consequence of his discovery that Vaisvānara is Para-brahma the supreme spirit: as it would be scarcely decorous to say so much in his own commendation this stanza may be ascribed to Brahma.

\(^3\) Pra vo vājā abhidyavah havishmanto ghrītātchyā: the scholiast explains vājā by māsāk, months, and abhidyavah by arddhamāsāh, half months: havishmanta, literally, having the havis or oblation of butter, he considers an epithet of devāh, gods, upon the authority of the Taittirīya; but they also explain it by paśavah, animals yielding milk, of which the havis is made, in which the Vājasaneyis concur: Ghrītāchā he renders Gau, but the Vājasaneyi is quoted for its meaning, Brūk, a ladle: there is no verb, but pra is regarded as implying prabhavanti, all these preside over your sacrificing: the explanation of Sāyaṇa is that of the Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa, but the line is obscure, the words in the senses given are unusual, and the whole is elliptical.
2. I worship with praise the wise Agni, the accomplisher of sacrifice, the possessor of happiness, the repository of wealth.

3. May we offering oblations effect the detention of thee who art divine (until the completion of the rite), and may we (thereby) overcome all animosities.¹

4. We solicit that Agni, who is being kindled at the sacrifice, the purifier, the adorable, whose hair is flame.

5. Agni, the bright-shining, the immortal, the cleanser with clarified butter, the fitly-invoked, the bearer of the oblation in the sacrifice.

6. The exorcisers² (of the demons), lifting up their lades, and offering sacrifice, have called upon Agni by this ceremony for their protection.

7. The offerer of the oblation, the divine, immortal, Agni, comes first (at the ceremony) directing solemnities by his experience.³

8. The mighty Agni is placed (foremost by the gods) in battle; he is brought forward reverently at holy rites; for he is the sage fulfiller of the sacrifice.

9. He who has been made by the sacred rite, the choice (of the worshipper), who comprehends (within himself) the germ of all creatures, and whom the daughter of Daksha (receives) as the parent of the world).⁴

² Sabādhah, repelling the disturbers of sacred rites by repeating the mantra or charm for their destruction, is Sayāna’s explanation, rakshoghanantrochchāranena tadvishayabādhah.
³ Māyayā, usually illusion or guile: it is here explained karmavishayajñānānam, knowledge of the objects of sacred rites.
⁴ Dakshasya pitaram tanā is explained by Śāyāna as
10. Agni, strength-engendered, Ilá (the daughter) of Daksha has sustained thee, the desirable, the resplendent, and longing (for the oblation).

11. The wise (priests) performers (of the ceremony) kindle with oblations for the due celebration of the rite, Agni, the regulator (of all), the sender of the rain.

12. I adore at this sacrifice Agni the grandson of (sacrificial) food, shining above in the firmament, the creation of the wise.

13. Agni, who is to be worshipped with praise and with prostration, the dispeller of darkness, the beautiful, the showerer (of benefits) is kindled.

14. The offerers of oblations glorify that Agni who is the showerer (of benefits) and is the bearer of the offerings to the gods as a horse (bears his rider to his home).

15. Showerer (of benefits) we profusely offering dahshasya pra japater tanayá, the daughter of the Prajápati Daksha; that is, the earth, here identified with the altar, vedirépá: she sustains, dhárayati, understood, him, Agni, the protector or father of the world, sarvasya jagatah pálaakam dhárayati: this and the two preceding stanzas occur in the Sáman ii. 827, 829.

1 As before, earth or the altar.

2 Ujjió napátam, or the son of the oblation, as blazing when fed by butter and the like; or the descent may be differently accounted for, from the oblation proceeds Āditya, and from Āditya, Agni.

3 Kavikratum, of whom, kavayah the wise, that is the adhvarya, and the rest, are the makers, karttárah, by their rubbing the sticks to evolve flame.
(oblations) kindle thee, mighty and resplendent Agni, who art the sender of showers.\(^1\)

Súkta XVI. (XXVIII.)

The deity and Rishi are as before; the metre of the third stanza is Ushníh; of the fourth Trishtubh; of the fifth Jagati; of the rest Gayatri.

1. Agni, by whom all is known, who rewardest pious acts with wealth, accept our cakes offered with butter at the morning worship.

2. The cakes and butter are dressed, Agni, and verily prepared for thee: accept them youngest (of the gods).

3. Eat, Agni, the cakes and butter offered as the day disappears: thou, son of strength, art stationed (by us) at the sacrifice.

4. Wise Játavedas accept the cakes and butter offered in this sacrifice at the mid-day rite; prudent (worshippers), withhold not at solemn ceremonies the portion of thee who art mighty.

5. Be pleased, Agni, son of strength, with the cakes and butter offered at the third (daily sacrifice), and do thou (propitiated) by praise convey the precious imperishable and awakening (oblation)\(^2\) to the immortal gods.

6. Agni who art Játavedas and art thriving upon

\(^1\) The scholiast cites Manu III. 76, for this property of Agni: "the-offering that is sacrificed with fire proceeds entirely to the sun, from the sun is generated rain, and from rain food; from thence mankind."

\(^2\) Jāgrivim: according to the scholiast the Soma juice offered at dawn is termed Jāgrivi, the sleep-dispelling, svapmanivāra-kah, but here we are at the third or evening worship.
oblations, accept the cakes and butter as the day disappears.

Sūkta XVII. (XXIX).
The deity is Agni, except in the fifth verse, where the officiating priest is supposed to take his place; the Rishi is Visvamitra; the metre of the first, fourth, tenth, and twelfth stanzas, is Anushtubh; of the eighth, eleventh, fourteenth, and fifteenth, Jāgati, and of the rest Tristhtubh.

1. This, the apparatus of attrition is ready;¹ the generation (of the flame) is ready; take up this (stick) the protectress of mankind, and let us churn the fire as has been done of old.

2. Jātavedas has been deposited in the two sticks as the embryo is deposited in pregnant women: Agni is to be adored day by day by vigilant men laden with oblations.

3. Let the intelligent priest place the lower of the sticks with the face upwards, the upper (with the surface) downwards, so that quickly impregnated it may generate the showerer (of benefits) Agni: then the bright blazing son of Ilā² whose light dissipates the darkness is born of the wood of attrition.

4. Agni who art Jātavedas, we place thee upon the earth in the centre, in the place of Ilā,³ for the purpose of receiving the oblation.

² The fire of the Altar.
³ Idyaspade nabhā prithivyād adhi; that is, in the middle of the northern altar: this and the preceding occur in the Yajush, XXXIV. 14, 15: the passage is also quoted in the Aitareya Brahmana, Panch. 1. Adhy. 5, and similarly explained in the commentary.
5. Conductors of the rite, produce by attrition the far-seeing, single-minded, intelligent, immortal, radiant-limed Agni: generate him, leaders (of the solemnity), in the first place the chief standard of the sacrifice, who is the source of felicity.

6. When they rub (the sticks) with their arms the radiant Agni bursts forth from the wood like a fleet courser, and like the many-coloured car of the Aswins unresisted in its course, Agni spreads wide around consuming stones and trees.

7. As soon as born Agni, shines intelligent, swift-moving, skilled in rites, praised by the wise, and liberal in gifts; (and it is he) whom the gods have held as the bearer of oblations at sacrifices, adorable and all knowing.

8. Offerer of oblations sit down in thine own sphere, for thou art cognizant (of holy acts), and station the institutor of the ceremony in the chief place of the sacred rite: cherisher of the gods, worship the gods, Agni, and bestow abundant food on the founder of the sacrifice.

9. Produce, friends, smoke, the showerer (of benefits); indefatigable persist in the contest with (Agni):

1 Sāyana explains sve loke by uttaravedyāḥ nābhau on the centre of the north altar: Mahidhara, Yajur-Veda, xi. 35. says, kṛishnaṁ on the hide of the black antelope.

2 Sādayā yajnam suhritasya yonau; yajna, according to Sāyana, is put for the yajamāna, yajnasya kartāram, who is to be stationed uttamalokē, in the best place, or that which enjoys the fruit of the holy rite, suhritajyopahogasya sthāne: Mahidhara says, sukhita yonih means the kṛishnaṁ, the black antelope-hide.

3 Krinota dhūmam, produce fire, by metonymy.
the heroic Agni is able to encounter hosts, and by him the gods overcome their foes.

10. This in every season, Agni, is thy place,\(^1\) whence, as soon as generated, thou hast ever shone: knowing that to be so, Agni, there abide, and thrive by our praises.

11. When (existing) as an embryo (in the wood), Agni is called Tanúnapát;\(^2\) when he is generated (he is called) the Asura-destroying Narāșansa; when he has displayed (his energy) in the material firmament, Mātāriswan;\(^3\) and the creation of the wind is in his rapid motion.

12. Agni, who art pronounced by reverential attrition, and deposited with reverential care, and who art far-seeing, render our rites (exempt from defects), and worship the gods (on behalf) of the devout worshipper.

13. Mortals have begotten the immortals, the undecaying (Agni), the devourer of oblations, the conveyance (by which they cross over sin), the ten sister fingers intertwined proclaim him born as if it was a male (infant).\(^4\)

\(^1\) Sāyāṇa says this alludes to the Araṇī, the stick of velasa or asvattha, or other trees: Mahidhara, Yajur-Veda, III. 14, explains it the Gārhapatya, or household fire: he renders the concluding phrase also differently, give us increase of riches.

\(^2\) He who does not consume the persons of the worshippers yashtriṇām tanuk, sarirāṇi na pātayati, na dāhati, or it may have the meaning previously given, the grandson of the waters.

\(^3\) Who breathes, svasīti, in the maternal atmosphere, mátari.

\(^4\) When the priests and assistants behold the flame break forth they clap their hands and make sounds of rejoicing, like the parents of a new-born son.
14. Agni, who has seven ministering priests, shines eternally: when he has blazed upon the bosom and lap of his mother (earth), he is vociferous (with delight): day by day he never slumbers after he is born from the interior of the (spark) emitting wood.

15. The Kuṣikas, the first-born of Brahmā, armed against enemies like the energies of the Maruts, comprehend the universe: they have uttered the prayer accompanied by the oblation: they have one by one lighted Agni in this dwelling.

16. Agni, offerer of oblations, cognizant of rites, inasmuch as we have recourse to thee to-day in this progressing sacrifice, therefore do thou steadily convey (the offering to the gods), or tranquilly be at rest, and knowing (the purport of our acts), and wise (in all respects), approach (and accept) the Soma libation.

ADHYĀYA II.

ANUVĀKA III.

SŪKTA I. (XXX.)

The deity is Indra; the Rishi Viśvāmitra; the metre Tristubh

1. The bearers of the libations desire thee; thy friends pour forth the Soma juice; they offer copious oblations: (supported by thee) they endure patiently the calumny of men, for who is so renowned as thou art.

2. Master of tawny steeds, the remotest regions are not remote for thee: then come quickly with thy horses: to thee, the steady showerer (of benefits), these sacrifices are presented; the stones (for bruising the Soma) are ready, as the fire is being kindled.

3. Showerer (of benefits, who art) Indra, the wearer of the helmet,\(^1\) the professor of opulence, the conveyer (of men beyond evil),\(^2\) the leader of the numerous troop (of the Maruts), the achiever of many great deeds, the devastator of hostile (regions), the terror of thy foes, where are those heroic deeds (which thou hast performed) against the mortal (Asuras) when opposed (by them in battle).

4. Thou alone casting down the firmly-footed (Asuras) proceedest, destroying the Vritras, and obedient to thy command the heaven and earth and the mountains stood as if immoveable.

5. Thou alone, when invoked by many, and the slayer of Vritra by thy prowess, didst say firmly (to the gods), fear not! Indra, endowed with opulence, vast is thy grasp, wherewith thou hast seized these unbounded regions, heaven and earth.

6. Let (thy car), Indra, drawn by thy horses (rush) downwards (upon the Asuras); let thy destroying thunder-bolt fall upon thine enemies; slay those that assail in front or in rear, or that fly (from the combat): make the universe (the abode of) truth; (let such power) be concentrated in thee.

7. The man to whom thou grantest, lord of power, (thy good will), enjoys unprecedented domestic (pro-

Sūkta II. (XXXI.)

The deity and Rishi are the same, or the latter may be another Viśvāmitra the son of Iṣhiratha, of the family of Kuśika; the metre is Trishtubh.

Varga V.

1. The sonless father,¹ regulating (the contract), refers to his grandson, (the son) of his daughter, and relying on the efficiency of the rite, honours (his son-in-law) with valuable gifts: the father, trusting to the impregnation of the daughter, supports himself with a tranquil mind.

2. (A son) born of the body,² does not transfer (paternal) wealth to a sister: he has made (her) the receptacle of the embryo of the husband:¹ if the parents procreate children (of either sex),² one is the performer of holy acts, the other is to be enriched (with gifts).³

² Tánvah, same as tanūjah; na jāmaya riktham arāih, if there be a son the inheritance does not go to the sister, jāmaya, bhaginyai.

3. For the worship of the resplendent (Indrā), Agnī, glowing with flame, has begotten mighty sons: great was the germ, and great was their birth, and great was their efficacy, for the worship of Ḥāryāśwa.

4. The victorious (Maruts) associated (with Indrā when contending with Vṛitra) perceived a great light issuing from the darkness. The dawns recognizing him (as the sun) arose, and Indrā was the sole sovereign of the rays (of light).

5. The seven intelligent sages (the Angirasas) having ascertained that (the cows) were concealed in the strong (cavern), propitiated (Indrā) by mental devotion: they recovered them all by the path of sacrifice; for Indrā, knowing (their pious acts), and offering them homage, entered (the cave).

6. When Saramā discovered the broken (entrance) of the mountain, then Indrā made great and ample

¹ And by so doing he makes her sanskritā,—he secures for her one of the essential purificatory rites.

² Yadi mātaro janayanti vahni: here vahni is explained offspring, or rather, male offspring, a son, whilst avahni is said to mean a daughter; but it may imply both, as having been born by the wife, and the context requires this meaning; for the one, the son, as the performer of obsequial and other rites, is the heir, whilst the other is yindhan, yiddhyamānā, to be increased or made wealthy, with dresses, ornaments, and the like.

³ These two verses, if rightly interpreted, are wholly unconnected with the subject of the Śūkta, and come in without any apparent object: they are very obscure, and are only made (provision) for her young, as previously (promised): then the sure-footed (animal), first recognising their lowing, proceeded, and came to the presence of the imperishable kine.¹

7. The most sage (INDRA), desirous of the friendship of the (Angirasas), went to the cave, and the mountain yielded its contents to the valiant (deity), aided by the youthful Maruts, equally wishing (to conciliate the sages): the destroyer (of the Asuras) recovered (the cattle), and immediately Angiras became his worshipper.

8. May he who is the type of all that is excellent, the anticipator (of his foes), he who knows all that is born, who destroys Sūshna, the far-seeing,² the restorer of cattle, may he, a friend coming from heaven, honouring us as his friends, be free from all reproach.³

9. The Angirasas, with minds intent on their cattle, sat down (to worship Indra) with hymns, fol-somewhat intelligible by interpretations which seem to be arbitrary, and are very unusual, although not peculiar to Sāyana, his explanations being based on those of Yāska. Nir., iii. 4—6.

² Padavīth, kavitama, most wise or far-seeing as to the past, from pada, an object, and vīth, who knows.

lowing the road to immortality: great was this their perseverance, by which they sought for months to accomplish (their ends).

10. Contemplating their own (cattle) giving milk to their former progeny (the Angirasas) were delighted; their shouts spread through heaven and earth; they replaced the recovered kine in their places, and stationed guards over the cows.

11. Indra, the slayer of Vritra, let loose the milch kine, assisted by the Maruts, born for his aid, and entitled to praises and oblations, and the excellent (cows) contributing abundantly to sacred offerings, and yielding the butter of libation, milked for him sweet (sacrificial) food.

12. They (the Angirasas) performing pious acts made for their protector a spacious and splendid abode which they celebrated: seated (at the sacrifice) and supporting with the pillar (of the firmament) the parents (of all things heaven and earth), they established the rapid Indra on high (in heaven).

13. Inasmuch as our devout praise has appointed a thriving ruler for the regulation of heaven and earth, to whom faultless and appropriate commendations (are due), therefore are all the energies of Indra spontaneously exerted.

14. I wish, Indra, for thy friendship, and (the exercise of) thy powers: many horses come to the slayer of Vritra: we offer to thee, sage, great praise and oblations: consider thyself, Maghaván as our protector.¹

15. Wide fields, vast treasure, (spacious) pastures,

has the much-knowing (INDRA) bestowed upon his friends: the radiant INDRA with the leaders (of rites, the Maruts) generated the sun, the dawn, the earth, and fire.

16. This lowly-minded INDRA has created the widespread, commingled, all-delighting waters; and they, purifying the sweet (libations) with the sage purifiers,¹ and being benevolent (to all), proceed with (the revolutions) of days and nights.²

17. The two adorable (alternations of) day and night,³ upholding (all things) by the might of the sun,⁴ successively revolve: thy sincere and acceptable friends (the Maruts) are ready to encounter (thy foes) and maintain thy greatness.

18. Slayer of Vṛitra, do thou, who art long lived, the showerer (of benefits), the giver of food, be the lord of our true praises, repairing (to the sacrifice), come to us great, with great, friendly, and auspicious protections.

19. Worshipping him with reverence, like an Angiras, I make the ancient (INDRA) renovate to accept

² Dyubhir-hinvantayaktubhiḥ, they go with days and nights: according to the scholiast, they regulate by day and night the respective functions of all the world: rātridivam sarvam jagat sva sva vyāpārapraṇam kurvanti, they make the whole world diligent in its respective functions by night and day.

³ The text has Ubhe krīṣhe, both the blacks, meaning, the scholiast affirms, ahorātre, day and night.

⁴ Śūrasya mahanā; the commentator identifies Śūrya with Indra, the impeller, preraka, of the world.
the oblation: destroy the many impious oppressors (of thy worshippers), and bestow upon us, Māghavān, thine own (wealth) for our acceptance.

20. Thy purifying waters have been spread abroad:
 fill their beds for our welfare: riding on thy car, defend us from the malevolent, and make us quickly the conquerors of cattle.

21. Indra, the slayer of Vṛitra, the lord of herds, has discovered the cattle, and by his radiant effulgence driven away the black (Asuras), and indicating with veracity (to the Angirasas) the honest (kine), he shut the gate upon all their own cattle.¹

22. We invoke for our protection the opulent Indra, distinguished in this combat, the leader in the food-bestowing (strife), hearing (our praises), terrible in battles, the destroyer of foes, the conqueror of wealth.²

Sūkta III. (XXXII.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre the same.

1. Indra, lord of the Soma, drink this Soma juice which is grateful to thee at noon-day sacrifice; Māghhavān, partaker of the spiritless Soma,³ unyoke thy horses, and, filling their jaws (with födder), exhilarate them at this ceremony.

2. Indra, drink the Soma juice mixed with milk,

¹ Durāṣeṣa viśvā avrīṇod apa svāh; that is, according to Śāyāna, having placed the cattle in the cow-pens, he covered or closed the doors; vraje gāh sthāpayitvā tāni dvārāny-āchchhāditavān.

² Many of the verses in this hymn are of more than usual obscurity.

³ Rijīśin, possessing rjīśham, gātasāram Somam, Soma with butter-milk, or fresh: we offer it for thy exhilaration, associated with the devout company of the Maruts and the Rudras: drink it till thou art satisfied.

3. These are the Maruts, Indra, who, worshipping thy prowess, augment thy withering force (by their aid): attended by the Rudras, drink, wielder of the thunderbolt, and handsome-chinned, at the noon-day sacrifice.

4. Those were the Maruts who were the strength of Indra, and gently encouraged him; animated by whom he pierced the vital part of Vṛitra, fancying himself invulnerable.

5. Phased with the sacrifice, as if it was that of Manu, drink, Indra, the Soma juice, for the sake of perpetual vigour: come, lord of the tawny steeds, with the adorable Maruts, and with the traversers (of the air): send down the waters (of the firmament) to (blend with) the waters of the earth.

6. Inasmuch as thou hast slain with active strife the slumbering, darkling, water-investing Vṛitra, thou hast let forth the bright waters like horses (rushing) into battle.

1 Gavāśiram, manthinam, suhram: the first has occurred before; the second is explained, manthasanyuktam, mixed with butter-milk; and the last, abhinavam, new or fresh; or they may mean suhram manthigrahe varttamānam, being in the vessel of acid butter-milk.

2 Brahmakritā, Indrastotram kuruṇena, making the praise of Indra.

3 Apo arnā sīsariḥ; antarikṣaṁhātaṁ nyadakāṁ pārthivān nyadakānā prāpaya, cause the waters staying in mid-air to reach, or become those of, earth: the notion has occurred before.
7. Therefore we sacrifice with reverence to the vast and mighty Indra, who is adorable, undecaying, young; whose magnitude the unbounded heaven and earth have not measured, nor can measure.

8. All the gods cannot detract from the many glorious exploits, and pious works of Indra: he who has upheld earth, and heaven, and the firmament, and who, the performer of great deeds, has engendered the sun and the dawn.

9. Doer of no wrong, such was thy true greatness, that as soon as born, thou hast quaffed the Soma juice: neither the heavens, nor days, nor months, nor years, resist the force of thee who art mighty.

10. As soon as born in the highest heaven, thou hast quaffed, Indra, the Soma juice for thy exhilaration; and when thou hadst pervaded the heaven and earth, thou becamest the primary artificer (of creation).

11. Indra, from whom many are born; thou who art vigorous hast slain Ahi, enveloping the slumbering water, and confiding in his prowess: yet the heaven apprehended not thy greatness as thou remainedst concealing the earth by one of (thy) flames.¹

12. This our sacrifice, Indra, is thy augmentation, for the rite in which the Soma is effused is acceptable to thee: do thou who art deserving of worship protect the worshipper by (the efficacy of) the worship, and may this sacrifice strengthen thy thunderbolt for the slaying of Ahi.

¹ Anyāyā sphigyā lehām avasthā, is explained, ekatarayā katyaḥ bhūmim avachtchhādya tishṭhast: the meaning is not very clear.
13. The worshipper, by his conservatory sacrifice, has made Indra present: may I bring him to my presence to obtain new wealth, him who has been exalted by praises, whether ancient, mediæval, or recent.

14. When the thought of glorifying Indra entered my mind, then I gave birth (to his praises): may I laud him before encountering distant (evil) days, whereby he may guide us beyond sin; for those on both sides of us invoke him, as (those on either bank of a river hail) a passenger in a boat.

15. The vase is filled for him (with Soma); welcome Indra: I pour it out for thee to drink, as a water-carrier (pours water) from his bag: may the grateful Soma juice flow in reverence round Indra for his exhilaration.

16. Invoked of many, the deep ocean arrests thee not, nor do the accompanying mountains (stay thee); and therefore, summoned by thy friends, thou hast repressed the strong flame abiding in the abyss.¹

17. We invoke for our protection the opulent Indra, distinguished in this combat, the leader in the food-bestowing (strife), hearing (our praises), terrible in battles, the destroyer of foes, the conqueror of wealth.

Súkta IV, (XXXIII.)

As this hymn consists of a dialogue between Visvámítra and the rivers Vípáś and Śutudrí,² they are considered to be

² According to the legend cited by Sáyana, given also by respectively the Rishi of the verses ascribed to either; the divinity is Indra; the metre is Trishtubh, except in the last verse, in which it is Anushtubh.

1. Rushing from the flanks of the mountains, eager (to reach the sea) like two mares with loosened reins contending (with each other in speed), like two fair mother cows (hastening) to caress (their calves), the Vipāś and Sutudrī,1 flow rapidly with (united) waters.

2. Impelled by Indra, soliciting (his commands), you go to the ocean like charioteers (to their goal): flowing together, and swelling with (your) waves, bright (rivers), one of you proceeds to the other.

3. I repaired to the most maternal river; I went to the wide auspicious Vipāś, flowing together to a common receptacle, like parent cows (hastening to) caress the calf.

4. The rivers speak] Fertilizing (the land) with this (our) current, we are flowing to the receptacle which has been appointed by the deity (Indra): the course appointed for our going (permits) not of delay: of what is the sage desirous, that he addresses the rivers?

5. Viśvāmitra speaks] Rivers charged with water, rest a moment from your course at my request,

1 The modern Beyah and Satlaj, the former of which falls into the latter: the more usual reading of the ancient Sanscrit names are Vipāśā and Satudra.
who go to gather the Soma (plant): I, the son of Kuṣika, desirous of protection, address with earnest prayer especially the river before me.

6. The rivers speak] Indra, the wielder of the thunderbolt, dug our channels when he slew Ahi the blocker up of rivers: the divine and well-handed Saviṭrī has led us (on our path), and obedient to his commands we flow (as) ample (streams).

7. Viśvāmitra speaks] Ever is that heroic exploit of Indra to be celebrated when he cut Ahi to pieces, and with his thunderbolt destroyed the surrounding (obstructors of the rain), whence the waters proceed in the direction they desire.

8. The rivers speak] Praisers of Indra, forget not this speech, nor the words that (thou hast addressed to us) for future ages (to reverence): celebrator (of holy rites), be favourable to us in solemn prayers; treat us not after the (arrogant fashion) of men: salutation be to thee!

9. Viśvāmitra speaks] Listen, sister (streams), kindly to him who praises you; who has come from afar with a waggon and chariot: bow down lowly; become easily fordable; remain, rivers, lower than the axle (of the wheel) with your currents.

1 Mevachase somyāya, to my speech importing the Soma, i.e. according to the scholiast, the object of my address is, that having crossed over, I may go to gather the Soma plant: Yāska agrees with Śāyana in the interpretation of this stanza, Nir. ii. 25.

4 Śāyana considers Saviṭrī as an epithet of Indra, the impeller or animator of the world, Savītā sarvasya jagatah prerakah: the Nirukta has a similar explanation, ii. 26.

5 Aṇasā rathena: the commentator, and Yāska also, separate
10. The rivers speak] Hymner, we hear thy words, that thou hast come from afar with a waggon and a chariot: we bow down before thee: like a woman nursing (her child), like a maiden bending to embrace a man, (so will we do) for thee.¹

11. Viṣṇumitra speaks] Since, rivers, (you have allowed me to cross), so may the Bharatas² pass over (your united stream): may the troop desiring to cross the water, permitted (by you), and impelled by Indra, pass; then let the course appointed for your going (be resumed): I have recourse to the favour of you who are worthy of adoration.

12. The Bharatas seeking cattle passed over: the sage enjoyed the favour of the rivers: streams dispensing food, productive of wealth, spread abundance, fill (your beds), flow swiftly.

13. Let your waves (rivers) so flow that the pin³ these words, ṣakaṭena rathena cha, by a cart and a carriage: the anas, a cart or waggon, or truck, would be for the conveyance of the Soma plant.

² The Bharatas are said to be of the same race as Viṣṇumitra; Bharatahulajā madiyāh sarve; but possibly nothing more is meant than those who were the bearers of Viṣṇumitra’s, goods and chattels; for his connexion with the Bharatas is somewhat remote: besides which their family priest was Vaśishṭha. Mahābhārata Adi Parva, v. 3784: it is also to be observed that the word in the text is Bharata, whilst the name of the race is most correctly Bhrārata, with the first vowel long, although the short vowel is also allowable by the rules of derivation.

of the yoke may be above (their) waters: leave the traces full, and may (the two streams), exempt from misfortune or defect, and uncensured, exhibit no (present) increase.\(^1\)

Sūkta V. (XXXIV.)

Varga XV.

1. INDRA, the destroyer of cities, possessed of wealth, manifesting (his greatness), merciless to his enemies, has overspread the day with his radiance: attracted by prayer, increasing in bulk, and armed with many weapons,\(^2\) he has delighted both heaven and earth.

2. Decorating thee, I address sincere prayers to thee who art adorable and mighty, for the sake of (obtaining) food: thou, INDRA, art the preclude of men\(^3\) the descendants of MANU, and of the descendants of the gods.

3. INDRA, of glorious deeds, destroyed Vṛitra: resistless in combat, he has overcome the deceivers resolved to consume him: he slew the mutilated (demon lurking) in the woods, and made manifest which immediately occurs, in the same manner, and that is more properly the traces.

\(^1\) Mā śūnām āratām: Śāyaṇa explains śūnām by sam-yuddhīm, increase, referring, most probably, merely to the present moment—meaning, may the rivers not so rise as to prevent his passage; otherwise it might be thought to convey a wish that the rivers might never suffer any diminution, taking śūnām in the sense of śunyam, emptiness. Professor Roth has translated this Sūkta, in his Litteratur des Veda, p. 101: there are of course differences of interpretation between us, especially when he corrects both Śāyaṇa and Yāska, as in v. 5.

the (stolen) kine (that had been hidden) in the night.

4. Indra, the giver of Swarga, generating the days, has subdued victorious with the eager (Angirasas) the hostile hosts, and illuminating for man the banner of the days, he obtained light for the great conflict.

5. Indra entered the confiding hostile (hosts) like a man distributing many (gifts) to (his) leaders: he has animated these dawns for the worshipper, and heightened their bright radiance (by his own).

6. They celebrate many great and glorious exploits of this mighty Indra: he crushed the strong by his strength, and, of overpowering prowess, he overcame the Dasyus by delusions.

7. Lord of the virtuous, fulfiller of the wishes of men, he gave to the gods the wealth (that had been won) in fierce battle, and therefore far-seeing sages glorify those his exploits with praises in the dwelling of the worshipper.

8. Devout worshippers propitiate Indra, the victorious, the excellent, the bestower of strength, the enjoier of heaven and the divine waters, and who was the giver of the earth and heaven and this (firmament to their inhabitants).

9. He gave horses, he gave also the sun, and Indra gave also the many-nourishing cow: he gave golden

Sókta VI. (XXXV.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Stay, INDRA, having yoked the horses to the car, as Váyu stops when he has put to his steeds, and come to our presence: solicited by us to drink of the (Soma) beverage, which with reverence we offer for thy exhilaration.

2. I harness for thee, who art invoked by many, the swift gliding horses to the shafts of the car, that they may bear INDRA to this sacrifice that is prepared with all (that is required).

3. Showerer (of benefits), giver of food, guide hither thy vigorous horses, defending (us) against foes, and protect (thy worshippers): here unharness the bay steeds, and give them fodder, and do thou eat daily suitable food.\(^2\) paced in battle: arise, and, all-knowing Indra, mounting on thy firm and easy chariot, come to the libation.

5. Let not other sacrifices attract thy vigorous and smooth backed-steeds: disregarding others, come perpetually hither, that we may propitiate thee sufficiently with effused Soma libations.

6. This Soma libation is for thee: come down, and, well disposed, drink of it unceasingly: seated on the sacred grass at this sacrifice, take, Indra, this (libation) into your belly.¹

7. The sacred grass is strewn for thee; the Soma juice, Indra, is poured forth; the grain wherewith to feed thy horses is prepared; the oblations are offered to thee abiding on the sacred grass, who art praised of many, and (art) the showerer (of benefits), attended by the Maruts.

8. The leaders (of the ceremony) have prepared for thee, Indra, this (libation), sweetened with milk, the stones, the water: beautiful Indra, who art favourably disposed, and who art wise, knowing well (the worship) that is according to thy peculiar paths,² come and drink of this libation.

9. Associated, Indra, with those Maruts with whom thou hast shared in the libation, who encouraged thee (in battle), and are thy attendant troop, drink, desirous (of the beverage), the Soma juice, along with them, with the tongue of Agni.

10. Adorable Indra, drink of the effused libation,

² Prajānan pathyā anu svāh, that is, according to the scholiast, rightly apprehending the praises which are due or peculiar, and which are offered with the rites enjoined by the Vedas.
either by thine own effort, or through the tongue of Agni; drink it, Ṣakra, offered by the hand of the Adhvaryu, or accept the presentation of the oblation (from the hand) of the Hotri.

11. We invoke for our protection the opulent Indra, distinguished in this combat; the leader in the food-bestowing (strife), hearing (our praises), terrible in battles, the destroyer of foes, the conqueror of wealth.

Sūkta VII. (XXXVI.)

Deity, Ṛishi, and metre as before.

1. Indra, who art constantly seeking (association) with your allies (the Maruts) accept this, our offering, (made) for the grant (from thee of riches); for thou art one who grows with augmenting energies, through reiterated libations, and hast been renowned for glorious deeds.

2. To Indra have libations been presented in the days of old, whereby he hath become illustrious, the regulator of time, the granter of desires: accept, Indra, these prescribed (offerings), and drink of this auspicious (beverage), expressed by the stones.

1 Ribhuryebhih, vrishaparvā vihāyāh, with which (libations) he is Ribhu, or, as the scholiast explains it, dēptah, enlightened; also vrishaparvā, or he on whom the rainy season, and other divisions of time, parvānī, depend; or, in fact, time itself, kālātmakah; and vihāyāh, who abandons or resigns to those who ask any thing, that which they desire: the two first, Ribhu, and Vrishaparvā, may also be considered as proper names or appellations of Indra.

2 Vrishadhūtasya vrishnāh, shew the usual predilection for, vrish, showering, raining: the literal acceptation of these terms would be of rain-shaken rainer, but the second is explained,
3. Drink, Indra, and thrive: thine are these (present) libations, as were the primitive libations: do thou, who art adorable, drink to day the recent libations, as thou drankest those of old.

4. The great Indra, the victorious in battle, the defier of foes: his fierce strength and resolute vigour are exerted: verily the earth does not contain him, neither (does the heaven), when the Soma libations exhilarate the lord of the tawny steeds.

5. The mighty, fierce, auspicious Indra, the showerer (of benefits), augments (in power) as he is animated for heroic (acts) by praise: his cattle are generated givers of food: many are his donations.\(^1\)

6. As the rivers pursue their course, the waters rush to the ocean, like the drivers of cars (to a goal), so the vast Indra (hastens) from his dwelling (in the firmament), when the humble Soma libation propitiates him.\(^2\)

7. As the rivers are solicitous (to mix) with the ocean, so (are the priests) bearing the efficient libation the Soma, that bestows swarga, and such other benefits, and the first grávabhir-abhishutam, juice expressed by the stones used for the purpose; the same idea of their being showerers, or bestowers of blessings, suggesting this appellation of them.

\(^1\) Dakshiná asya párvih: according to Sáyana these are both epithets of gávah; bahvyas-tá gávo dakshináh prajâyante, those many cows, givers (of milk and the like) are born; but dakshiná more usually means the see or present to Brahmans or priests at sacrifices.

\(^2\) According to the scholiast, the comparison is to this effect, as small rivers and scanty waters contribute to the vast ocean, so the Soma juice, however insignificant, contributes to the gratification of the great Indra.
to Indra: holding in their hands they milk the Soma plant, and purify the sweet juices (as they fall) in drops through the purifying filters.

8. The stomach of Indra (is) as capacious (a receptacle) of Soma, as a lake,¹ for he has partaken of it at many sacrifices; and inasmuch as he has eaten the first (sacrificial) viands, he has been the slayer of Vītra, and has shared the Soma (with the gods).

9. Quickly, Indra, bring (wealth); let no one impede thee, for we know thee to be the lord of wealth, of all treasures: and since, Indra, thy greatness is munificence, therefore, lord of the tawny steeds, grant us (riches).

10. Opulent Indra, receiver of the spiritless Soma juice, give to us riches in universally desired quantity; grant us to live a hundred years; bestow upon us, Indra with the handsome chin, numerous posterity.

11. We invoke for our protection the opulent Indra, distinguished in this combat; the leader in the food-bestowing (strife), hearing (our praises), terrible in battles, the destroyer of foes, the conqueror of wealth.

Sókta VIII. (XXXVII.)

Deity and Rishi as before, the metre is Gayatrí, except in the last verse, in which it is Anushtubh.

Varga XXI.

1. We excite thee, Indra, to exert the strength that destroys Vītra, and overpowers hostile armies.

2. May (thy) praisers, Indra, who art worshipped in a hundred rites,² direct thy mind and thine eyes towards us.

¹ Hradá iva kuksayah somadhánah: bellies, udaráni, is used in the plural, to intimate capaciousness for holding the Soma.
² Satakratu is a name of Indra, or it may be used as an epithet,
3. We recite, Indra, who art worshipped in a hundred rites, (thy many) names in all our hymns for strength to resist our foes.

4. We repeat the praise of the many-lauded Indra, the supporter of man, invested with a hundred glories.

5. I invoke thee, Indra, who art invoked of many for the slaying of Vritra, and the granting of food (as the spoil) of battle.

6. Be victorious, Indra, in battles: we solicit thee, object of many rites, to destroy Vritra.

7. Overcome, Indra, those who are adverse to us in riches, in battle, in hostile hosts, in strength.

8. Drink, Indra, object of many rites, for our preservation, the most invigorating, fame-conferring, sleep-dispelling,\(^1\) Soma juice.

9. Indra, object of many rites, I regard the organs of sense that exist in the five races (of beings dependent) on thee, as thine.

10. May the abundant (sacrificial) food (we offer) reach thee, Indra: grant us wealth that may not easily be surpassed: we augment thy vigour (by our offerings).

11. Come to us Sakra, whether from afar or nigh; whatever, Indra, wielder of the thunder-bolt, be thy region, come from thence hither.

Sūkta IX. (XXXVIII.)

The deity is Indra, associated in the last six verses with Varuna; the Rishi is Prajāpati son of Visvāmitra, or be to whom a hundred (i.e. many) sacrifices are offered, or by whom many great acts are performed.

\(^1\) According to Śāyana, drinking the Soma is preventive of sleep, pitak somah svayamnivāraha.
the son of Vách of the race of Viśwámītra, either or both:
or it may be Viśwámītra alone: the metre is Tryśūtabh.

Varga XIII.

1. Repeat (to Indra) pious praise, as a carpenter (planes the wood), and engaging (zealously in sacred rites), as a quick horse bearing well his burthen:
endowed with intelligence, and reflecting upon the future acts acceptable (to Indra), I desire to behold the sages (who have gone to heaven).

2. Ask of the lords (of earth, the holy teachers), the birth of those deified sages, who with well-governed minds, and diligent in sacred rites, fabricated the heavens: and may these propitiatory (praises), augmenting (thy power) and rapid as the wind, reach thee at this solemn rite.

3. Comprehending hidden (mysteries) here on earth, they have, through their power, made manifest (the things of) heaven and earth; they have set limits to them by their elements; they connected them both

1 The institutor of the rite is supposed here to address the officiating priests, urging them to be diligent labourers, like the carpenter or the pack-horse.

2 Abhipriyāni marmriṣat parāni kavīn ichchhāmi sandriṣe:
the meaning is not very obvious, and the coherence still less so, although we have the additional aid of the explanation of the passage in the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa, vi. 20: priyāni is said by Śāyaṇa to be Indrasya priyatamāni, and parāni to imply uttamāni, best and most dear to Indra, harmāni, acts; or parāni may mean the acts to be done on subsequent days, uttarēṣvahassu kriyamāṇāni: kavi, which is usually explained krānta darsi, a seer of the past, is said to mean here a holy person who, for his assiduous devotion, has attained deficitation, yah pūrvam anuśīthayaajnād devabhūyam agamat; so the Brähmaṇa, ye vai tena Rishayah pūrve pretās-te vai havayaḥ.

3 Sam mātrābhīr mamire, is explained, mātrābhīk rodas-mutually united, wide spread and vast, and fixed the intermediate (firmament) to sustain them.

4. They all ornamented (Indra) standing (in his car); and, clothed in beauty, he proceeds self-radiant: wonderful are the acts of that showerer (of benefits), the influencer (of consciences),\(^1\) who omniform, presides over the ambrosial (waters).

5. The showerer (of benefits), the preceder and elder (of the gods), generated (the waters): they are the abundant allayers of his thirst: sovereign Indra and Varuna, grandsons of heaven, you possess the wealth (that is to be acquired) by the rites of the splendid sacrifice.

6. Royal Indra and Varuna, embellish the three universal sacrifices (and make them) full (of all requisites) for this celebration: thou hast gone to the rite, for I have beheld in my mind, at this solemnity, the Gandharbas with hair (waving) in the wind.\(^2\)

7. Those who, for (the sake of) the showerer (of benefits), milk the agreeable (produce) of the milch cow, (who is known) by (many) names, they invested \(\text{yau iyattayā parichchhinne chahrūh,}\) with the elements they made determinate divisions of heaven and earth by so much, that is, to a definite limit or extent.

\(^1\) The text has only asurasya: the comment explains it by prerakasya antaryāmitayā, impeller, from being in the inner spirit.

\(^2\) Gandharbhān vāyuḥesān; the Gandharbas, according to the scholiast, are the guardians of the Soma, Somarakshakān: he quotes the Taittirīyakas for the specification of similar beings, although the particular name is not given: Swāna-bhrājān, bambhāre, hasta, suhasta, krisānak, etc voh somakrāyanās, tán rakshadhwam ma vo dabhan.
with the diversified strength (of the Asuras) and practising delusive art, have deposited their own nature in him. ¹

8. No one (distinguishes) my golden lustre from that of this Savitri,² in which (lustre) he has taken refuge: gratified by pious praise, he cherishes the all-fostering heaven and earth as a woman cherishes her offspring.

9. You two secure the great felicity of the ancient (worshipper), that which is happiness in heaven: do you (therefore) be ever about us: all those who exercise illusion,³ contemplate the manifold exploits of the everlasting and blandly-speaking Indra.

10. We invoke for our protection the opulent Indra, distinguished in this combat, the leader in the food-bestowing (strife), hearing (our praises), terrible in battles, the destroyer of foes, the conqueror of wealth.

¹ This stanza is singularly obscure, and is very imperfectly explained by the commentators.

² Aṣya savitūr nakir me: Savitri, according to the scholiast, here means Indra, sarvasya jagato antaryāmitayā prerayitur Indraya, of Indra the impeller, through his being the internal pervader of the whole world: this verse is little less unintelligible than the preceding.

³ Viṣṇe māyāḥ, the scholiast explains, sarve devāḥ, all the gods: māyā sometimes signifies wisdom, intelligence, so that it might be rendered also the wise: in the ordinary sense of māyā it may mean all the deceivers, or Asuras: the whole of this Sūkta is very obscure.

ANUVĀKA IV.

SŪKTA I. (XXXIX.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre the same.

1. The praise that is prompted by the heart, and is uttered by the reciters of sacred hymns, proceeds to the presence of the lord, and is his awakener when repeated at the sacrifice: be cognizant INDRA, of this praise, which is born for thee.

2. That praise which is begotten before (the dawn) of day is the awakener of INDRA, when repeated at the (morning) sacrifice: auspicious and clothed in white raiment¹ is this our ancient and paternal hymn.²

3. The parent of twins (the dawn), has brought forth the twin (Aswins) on this occasion, (in the praise of whom) the tip of my tongue remains tremulous: they two, the dispersers of darkness, combine, assuming bodies as a pair (of twins) at the origin of the day.³

4. There are no revilers amongst men of those who were our progenitors and combatants for (the recovery of) the cattle; for the mighty INDRA, the achiever of great deeds, liberated for them the numerous herds.

5. A friend, accompanied by the faithful friends who had celebrated the nine months⁴ rite, and tracking the cows upon their knees, and in like manner accompanied by those ten who had accomplished the ten months' rite,¹ Indra made manifest the true (light of the sun) (theretofore) dwelling in (the) darkness (of the cave).

6. Indra discovered the sweet milk secreted in the milk-cow, and thereupon, brought forth (from their concealment) the herd (of cattle) having feet and having hoofs: munificent (in gifts), he held in his right hand that which had been hidden in the cavern, which was concealed in the waters.²

7. The discriminating (Indra) has separated the light from the darkness: may we, removed afar from evil, be ever in security: Indra, drinker of the Soma juice, who art nourished by the beverage, be pleased with these praises of thy worshipper who is the discomfiter of his foes.

8. May light be spread throughout heaven and earth for (the promotion of the) sacrifice: may we be far removed from exceeding ill: Vasus, who are to be rendered present (by pious praise), bestow increasing affluence upon the man who is liberal of gifts.

9. We invoke for our protection the opulent Indra, distinguished in this combat, the leader in the food-bestowing (strife), hearing (our praises), terrible in battles, the destroyer of foes, the conqueror of wealth.

THIRD ASHTĀKA—THIRD ADHYĀYA.

ADHYĀYA III.

Sūkta II. (XL.)

The deity and Rishi as before, the metre is Gāyatrī.¹

1. We invoke thee, Indra,¹ showerer (of benefits), to the effused libation: do thou drink of the exhilarating beverage.

2. Indra, the praised of many, accept the effused Soma juice, the conferrer of knowledge: drink; imbibe³ the satisfactory draught.

3. Indra, lord of men, who art praised (by the devout) and aided by the gods, perfect this our sacrifice in which the oblation is offered (to thee).

4. Indra, lord of the virtuous, these effused Soma juices, exhilarating and brilliant, proceed to thy abode.³

5. Receive, Indra, into thy stomach this excellent

name Indra, taken from Yāska and the Taittirīya Āranyaka, viz. he who sports (ramate) in the Soma juice (indu); or he who shows this (idam) universe; or he who divides (dṛṣṭāti), or gives (dadāti), or takes (dadāti), or causes to worship (dārayati), or possesses (dārayati) spirituous liquor (irām), or who runs or passes (dravati) the Soma juice (indau); or kindles or animates (indhā) living beings; or he who beholds the pure spirit, or Brahma, which is this (idam) universe: the grammarians derive it from idī to rule with the suffix ran.

² Prīshasho, sprinkle, shower, that is, into the stomach, so that it may not, according to the scholiast, descend below the stomach.

³ Kṣhayam tava: kṣaya, an abode, here means Indra’s, effused libation, these bright (drops) abide with thee in heaven.

6. Indra, who art glorified with praise, drink this our libation, for thou art sprinkled with the drops of the exhilarating (draught); the (sacrificial) food is verily purified by thee.

7. The brilliant and imperishable (Soma juice), offered by the worshipper, encompasses Indra: having drank of the libation, he increases (in vigour).

8. Slayer of Vritra, whether from nigh or from afar, come to us, accept these our praises.

9. Whether thou art called from nigh or from afar, or from mid space, come hither, Indra, from thence.

Sūkta III. (XLI).
The deity, Ṛṣiḥ, and metre as before.

1. Indra wielder of the thunderbolt, come to me with thy horses, when invoked to drink the Soma at our (sacrifice).

2. The invoking priest is seated at the proper season; the sacred grass woven together has been spread; the stones are placed in contact for the morning (libation).

3. Bearer of prayers,¹ these prayers are offered (by us): sit down on the sacred grass: partake, hero, of the oblation.

4. Slayer of Vṛitra, Indra, who art gratified by praise, be pleased with these our praises and prayers at our (daily) sacrifices.

¹ Brahmavākhāh, stotrāṇi vakati, who bears or receives praises; or it may mean brahmaṇā stotreṇa prápyate, who is attained by praise or prayer.
5. Our praises caress the mighty Indra, the drinker of the Soma juice; as cows lick their calves.

6. Be exhilarated bodily (by drinking) of the libation which we offer for the sake of ample wealth: expose not thine adorer to reproach.

7. Devoted, Indra, to thee, and offering oblations, we glorify thee, giver of dwellings: do thou be favourably disposed to us.

8. Lover of horses, Indra, loosen not your steeds whilst far from us, but come (with them) to our presence: enjoyer of the offering, be exhilarated at this sacrifice.

9. May thy long-maned and sleek-coated steeds bring thee down in thy easy chariot to sit upon the sacred grass.

Śrīta IV. (XLII.)
The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Come, Indra, to this our effused Soma juice mixed with milk and curds, with thy horses (yoked to thy car), which is favourably disposed to us.

2. Come, Indra, to the exhilarating (Soma) expressed by the stones, and poured upon the sacred grass: drink of it to satiety, for there is plenty.

3. May my praises, addressed from hence and in this manner, attain Indra, to bring him hither to drink the Soma juice.

4. We invoke Indra to this rite with prayers to drink the Soma juice: may he, repeatedly invoked, come hither.

5. Indra, these Soma juices are poured out: take them, Ṣatakratyu, into thy stomach: thou who art rich in (abundant) food.

6. Far-seeing Indra, we know thee to be victorious and winner of wealth in battles; therefore we ask of thee riches.

7. Having come (to our rite) drink, Indra, this our (libation), effused by the stones, and mixed with milk and curds, and with barley.

8. I offer to thee, Indra, this Soma juice for thy drinking, to be taken into its proper receptacle: may it delight thy heart.

9. Descendants of Kuṣa, desirous of protection, we invoke thee, Indra, who art of old, to drink of the libation.

Sūkta V. (XLIII.)

The deity and Rishi are the same, the metre is Trishtubh.

1. Descend to us riding in thy car, for verily thine is this ancient libation: unharness thy beloved and friendly (horses) near to the sacred grass, for these offerers of the oblation present it to thee.

2. Passing by multitudes, come hither, noble Indra, with thy steeds, (to receive) our benedictions; for these praises, Indra, composed by the devout, invoke thee, propitiating thy friendship.

3. Divine Indra, come quickly with thy steeds, and well pleased, to our food-augmenting sacrifice: offering (sacred) food with butter, I invoke thee verily with praises in the chamber of the sweet libations.
4. May these two vigorous friendly burthen-bearing and well-limbed steeds convey thee hither, where, Indra, approving of the ceremony (in which the offering) is parched grain, may hear as a friend the praises of his friend (the worshipper.)

5. Possessor of wealth, accept of the spirit-less Soma juice; make, me the protector, or rather a monarch of men;¹ make me verily a holy sage, a drinker of the libation; make me verily the possessor of imperishable wealth.

6. May thy mighty horses, Indra, harnessed (in thy car), and alike exhilarated (by the beverage), bring thee to our presence, for they are the destroyers (of the foes) of the showerer (of benefits), and kindly rubbed by his hand they traverse, going quickly, the regions of the sky, making them as it were twofold.²

7. Drink, Indra, of the bountiful (libation) expressed by the beneficent (stones); that which the falcon³ has borne to thee desiring it, in whose exhilaration thou castest down (opposing) men, in whose exhilaration thou hast set open the clouds.

8. We invoke for our protection the opulent Indra, distinguished in this combat, the leader in the

³ This alludes to a legend briefly told in the Aitareya Brahmana, Panchika III. Adhyāya 13, and which is amplified by the scholiast on that work: the Soma plant grew formerly, it is food-bestowing (strife), hearing (our praises), terrible in battles, the destroyer of foes, the conqueror of wealth.

SÓKTA VI. (XLIV.)

The deity and Rishi as before, the metre is Bráhati.

1. May this desirable and gratifying Soma expressed by the stones, be, Indra, for thee: ascend the verdant chariot, and with thy tawny (steeds) come to us.

2. Desiring (the Soma), thou honourest the dawn; desiring the Soma, thou hast lighted up the sun; knowing and discriminating (all our wishes), lord of the tawny steeds, thou augmentest upon us all (sorts of) prosperity.

3. Indra has upheld the yellow-rayed heaven; the verdant tinted earth; there is abundant pasture (for said, only in heaven: the Rishis and the gods considered how it might be brought down to earth, and desired the Chhasdasas, the metres of the Vedas, to bring it: changing themselves to birds (Supársas), they undertook the office: the only one who succeeded, however, was the Gáyatři, in the shape of a hawk (pyeni), and she was wounded by an arrow shot by one of the Somapálas, or Gandharbas, the guardians of the Soma, thence termed Somabhrájas, which cut off a nail of her left foot: the ichor from the wound became the vasút or adepts of the burn-toffering: other metamorphoses are detailed.

1 The main purport of this hymn seems to be to ring the changes on the derivatives of the root hrí, to take, as in a former one it was upon those of the root vṛṣh, to shower: thus we have haryatah, taking, captivating, desirable; harit, the stone that bruises the Soma plant; also, Indra's horses in the dual or plural, hari, harayah: again, harit, green, haryapwah, he who has the horses called hari: haridháyasam, yellow rayed, harivarhis steeds) in the two azure spheres of heaven and earth, between which Hari travels.

4. The azure-coloured showerer (of benefits), illumines as soon as born, the whole luminous region: the lord of the tawny steeds holds in his hands the yellow weapon, the destroying thunderbolt.

5. Indra has uncovered the desirable white-coloured, fast-flowing Soma, effused by the expressing stones, and overlaid with the shining (milk and other liquids), in like manner as when, borne by his tawny steeds, he rescued the cattle.¹

Sūkta VII. (XLV.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre are the same.

1. Come, Indra, with thy exulting peacock-haired² steeds; let no persons detain thee, as (fowlers) throwing snares catch a bird: pass them by (quickly) as (travellers cross) a desert.³

2. The devourer of Vritra, the fracturer of the cloud, the sender of the waters, the demolisher of cities, Indra, the destroyer of powerful enemies, has mounted his chariot to urge his horses to our presence.

3. Thou cherishest the celebrator of the pious rite as (thou fillest) the deep seas (with water); or as a careful herdsman (cherishes) the cows: (thou im-

5. Thou art possessed of opulence, Indra; thou art the lord of heaven, auspicious and renowned: mayest thou who art adored of many, increasing in vigour, be to us a most (bountiful bestower) of food.

Súkta VIII. (XLVI.)
The deity and Rishi are the same; the metre is Tristubh.

1. Vast are the energies of thee, Indra, the warrior, (the showerer of benefits), the lord of wealth, the fierce; who art (both) young and old; the overcomer of foes, the undecaying, the wielder of the thunderbolt, and who art mighty and renowned.

2. Adorable and powerful Indra, thou art great and magnificent, overcoming adversaries by thy prowess: thou alone art lord of all the world: do thou war (upon our enemies), and give safe dwellings to men.

3. The resplendent and every way unlimited Indra, drinking the spirit-less Soma juice, far surpasses the elements, (far exceeds) the gods in power: he is more vast than heaven and earth, or the wide-spread spacious firmament.

4. The Soma juices daily poured out enter into the vast and profound Indra, fierce from his birth, all pervading, the protector of the pious (worshippers), as rivers flow into the sea.

5. Which Soma, Indra, the heaven and earth contain for thee, as a mother contains the embryo: showerer (of benefits), the priests pour it out for thee, they purify it for thy drinking.

Sókta IX. (XLVII.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre are the same.

1. Indra, attended by the Maruts, the showerer (of benefits), drink the Soma offered after the other presentations, for thine exhilaration for battle: take into thy belly the (full) wave of the inebriating (Soma), for thou art lord of libations from the days of old.¹

2. Indra, hero, rejoicing with and accompanied by the host of Maruts, drink the Soma, for thou art the slayer of Vritra, the sage; subdue our enemies, drive away the malevolent,² make us safe on every side from peril.

¹ Yajur-Veda, vii. 38: there is a slight variety of reading, pratipat for pradivat, which Mahidhara renders the first and other lunar days or tithis, until the full moon, during which offerings of Soma are daily presented: Yásha agrees with the Rich. Nir. iv. 8.

² Apanudasa mridhah may also mean, drive away all those who are engaged in battle, i.e. enemies; or keep off from us battles; mridh, meaning war, battle, sangráma; the Yajush has this verse also, vii. 37, and Mahidhara explains it to the same purport.
3. Drinker of the Soma in season, drink with thy divine friends the Maruts the Soma that is presented by us; those Maruts whose aid you have enjoyed (in battle), and who, following thee, have given thee the strength whereby thou hast slain Vṛitra.

4. They who encouraged thee, Mañavana, to slay Ahi, who (aided thee) in the conflict with Śambhara, and in the recovery of the cattle, and who, possessed of wisdom, contribute verily to thy exhilaration, with them, the troop of the Maruts, do thou Indra, drink the Soma.

5. We invoke to this sacrifice for present protection Indra, the chief of the Maruts, the showerer (of benefits); augmenting (in glory), overcoming many foes, divine regulator (of good and ill), the subduer of all (enemies), the fierce, the bestower of strength.

Súkta X. (XLVIII.)

Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

Varga XII.

1. May the showerer (of rain), who, as soon as born, is the object of affection, protect the offerer of the effused libation: drink at will, Indra, before (the other gods), of the pure Soma juice mixed with milk.

2. On the day on which thou wast born, thou didst drink at will the mountain-abiding nectar of this Soma plant, for thy youthful parent mother (Aditi), in the dwelling of thy great sire (Kaśyapa), gave it to thee before she gave the breast.

3. Approaching his mother he asked for food, and beheld the acrid Soma upon her bosom: eager he proceeds, dislodging the adversaries (of the gods); and, putting forth manifold (energy), he performed great (deeds).
4. Fierce, rapid in assault, of overpowering strength, he made his form obedient to his will:¹ having overcome Twashtri by his innate (vigour), and carried off the Soma juice, he drank it (deposited) in the ladles.

5. We invoke for our protection the opulent Indra, distinguished in this combat, the leader in the food-bestowing (strife), hearing (our praises), terrible in battles, the destroyer of foes, the conqueror of wealth.

Sūkta XI. (XLIX.)

Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. I glorify the mighty Indra, in whom all men, drinking the Soma juice, obtain their wishes; whom the powerful (heaven and earth) and the gods begot, the doer of great deeds, the slayer of the Vritras, who was fashioned by Vībhu (the creator).²

2. Whom, when borne by his steeds, foremost and eminent in battles, breaking in two the (hostile host), no one ever surpasses: supreme in sway, attended by his faithful Maruts, and hastening to combat, he has destroyed with foe-withering (energies) the existence of the Dasyu.

3. Vigorous, rushing through (hostile hosts), like a war-horse, he has pervaded heaven and earth, sending down rain: he is to be worshipped with oblations at the solemn (rite) like Bhaga: he is as the father of those who adore (him): he is beautiful, worthy of invocation, the bestower of food.

4. The upholder of heaven and of the firmament, the wind, like a chariot traversing the upper (region)\(^1\) accompanied by the Vasus; the clother of the night (with gloom), the parent of the sun, the distributor of the portion (allotted to the pious), like the words (of the wealthy appropriating to all) the food.

5. We invoke for our protection the opulent Indra, distinguished in this combat, the leader in the food-bestowing (strife), hearing (our praises), terrible in battles, the destroyer of foes, the conqueror of wealth.

The deity, R\(\text{\texti}}\text{I}, and metre as before.

Varga XIV.

1. May Indra drink the libation; he of whom is the Soma, having come to the sacrifice; he who is the repeller (of adversaries), the showerer (of benefits), the lord of the Maruts; may he, the wide-pervading, be pleased with these (sacrificial) viands: may the oblation be adequate to the wants of his body.

2. I yoke (to thy car), to bring thee quickly, thy two docile horses, whose speed thou hast of old employed: may thy horses, handsome Indra, bring thee hither, and drink promptly of this well-effused agreeable libation.

3. His adorers support with cattle, Indra, who is willing to bestow upon them their desires, and ready to come to the sacrifice, for the sake of obtaining eminent prosperity and prolonged life: acceptor of the spirit-less Soma, who art the drinker of the Soma juice, and art exhilarated (by the draught), grant to us freely cattle in abundance.

4. Gratify this our desire (of wealth) with cows, with horses, with shining treasure, and make us renowned: the wise Kuṣikas, desirous of heaven, offer praise to thee, Indra, with pious (prayers).

5. We invoke for our protection the opulent Indra, distinguished in this combat, the leader in the food-bestowing (strife), hearing (our praises), terrible in battles, the destroyer of foes, the conqueror of wealth.

Sūkta XIII. (LI.)

The deity and Rishi are the same; the metre of the three first verses is Jagati, of the three last Gāyatrī, of the rest Trishtubh.

1. Let abundant praises celebrate Indra, the stay of man, the possessor of opulence, the adorable, prospering with increase, the invoked of many, the immortal, who is daily to be propitiated with sacred hymns.¹

2. My praises constantly propitiate Indra, the object of many rites, the sender of rain, attended by the Maruts, the leader (of all), the giver of food, the destroyer of cities, the swift (in combat), the prompt (dispenser) of waters, the distributor of riches, the subduer of foes, the conferrer of heaven.

3. INDRA, the enfeebler (of adversaries), is praised as a mine of wealth;¹ he is propitiated by righteous commendations; he is gratified in the dwelling of the offerer of oblations: glorify INDRA, the conqueror, the destroyer of his enemies.

4. The priests glorify thee, heroic leader of men, with praises and with prayers: INDRA, the author of many delusions, exerts himself for (the acquirement of) strength: he from of old is the lord of this (oblation).

5. Many are his prohibitions² (against evil enjoined) to men: many are the treasures that the earth enshrines: for INDRA the heavens, the plants, the waters, men and priests, preserve their riches.

6. To thee, INDRA, (the pious) address prayers, and praises, and sacrifices: accept them, lord of horses: giver of dwellings, friend (of man), who art the pervader (of all things), partake of this present oblation, and grant food to the worshippers.

¹ Akāre vasoh, or, according to Sāyana, he is praised to procure his aid in battle, which, when successful, is the source of wealth or booty; Ākṛyate yuddhārtham dhanam atra ityāhakarayo yuddham, he is celebrated for the sake of war, for therein is wealth, therefore ākara is the same as yuddha: or vasoh jārāyiṛi may be put together, weakener of the foe, vasu here meaning enemy.

7. Indra, accompanied by the Maruts, drink the Soma at this ceremony as thou hast drunk of the libation of the son of SARYATI: thy far-seeing and devout worshippers, being in security, adore thee through their offerings.

8. Do thou, Indra, who art gratified by the beverage, drink the Soma that has been effused by us, together with thy friends, the Maruts, at this ceremony: thou who art invoked of many, and whom all the gods equipped as soon as born for the great battle (with the Asuras).

9. Maruts, this is your friend for sending of the waters: they (the Maruts), the givers of strength, have yielded Indra gratification: may the devourer of Vritra drink with them the libation offered by the worshipper in his own abode.

10. Lord of riches, entitled to praise, this libation has been effused agreeably to (our) strength: do thou drink of it quickly.

11. Invigorate thy body with the Soma that has been poured out as food for thee: may it exhilarate thee, delighting in the Soma draught.

12. May this libation, Indra, penetrate to thy flanks; may it, (aided) by prayer, reach thy head;

سودا XIV. (LII.)
The deity and Rishi are the same; the metre of the first four verses is Gāyatrī, of the sixth Jagati, of the fifth, seventh, and eighth Trishtubh.

1. Accept, Indra, at our morning sacrifice, this libation, combined with fresh barley, with parched grain and curds, and with cakes, and sanctified by holy prayer.¹

2. Accept, Indra, the prepared cakes and butter; eat them eagerly: the oblations flow for thee.

3. Eat, Indra, our (offered) cakes and butter; derive enjoyment from our praises, as a lover from his mistress.²

4. Indra, renowned of old, accept our cakes and butter, offered at dawn; for great are thy deeds.

5. Partake, Indra, of the barley and the delicious cakes and butter of the mid-day sacrifice, when thy zealous worshipper, hastening to adore thee, and eager as a bull, is present, and celebrates (thee) with hymns.

6. Indra, who art praised of many, accept readily from our friend of barley, and cakes, and butter, offered at the third (or evening) sacrifice: laden with sacrificial viands, we approach with praises to thee, sage Indra, who art accompanied by the Ribhus and by Vája.

8. Offer to him quickly (priests) the fried barley: offer to the most heroic of leaders the cakes and butter: may the like offerings, victorious Indra, presented to thee daily, augment thy vigour for the drinking of the Soma juice.

Śūkta XV. (LIII.)

Indra and Parvata are the deities, the Rishi is, as before, Viṣṇāmitra: the metre of the tenth and sixteenth verses is Jagati; of the thirteenth Gāyatrī; of the twelfth, twentieth, and twenty-second Anuṣṭubh; of the eighteenth Brīhāti; of the twenty-third Trishtubh.

1. Indra and Parvata, bring hither, in a spacious car, delightful viands (generative of) good progeny: partake, deities, of the oblations (offered) at (our) sacrifices, and, gratified by the (sacrificial) food, be elevated by our praises.¹

2. Tarry awhile contentedly, Maghavan, (at our rite): go not away; for I offer to thee (the libation) of the copiously-effused Soma: powerful Indra, I lay hold of the skirts (of thy robe) with sweet-flavoured commendations, as a son (clings to the garment) of a father.

3. Adhvaryu, let us two offer praise: do thou concur with me:² let us address pleasing praise to INDRA: sit down, INDRA, on the sacred grass (prepared by) the institutor of the rite; and may our commendations be most acceptable to INDRA.

4. A man's wife, MAGHAVAN, is his dwelling; verily she is his place of birth:¹ thither let thy horses, harnessed (to thy car), convey thee: we prepare the Soma juice at the fit season; may AGNI come as our messenger before thee.

5. Depart, MAGHAVAN; come INDRA: both ways,² protector,³ there is a motive for thee, whether it be standing in thy vast chariot, or liberating thy neighing steed.

6. When thou hast drunk the Soma, then, INDRA, go home: an auspicious life (abides) pleasantly in thy dwelling: in either (case) there is the standing in thy car or liberating the steeds for provender.

¹ Jāyā id astam sed u yonih, the apropos of this is not very evident: astam the commentator explains by griham, and he quotes the Smṛiti for the identity of house and housewife, grihim griham uchyaite iti smṛiteḥ: the notion that a man is born of his wife evidently originates in the fanciful etymology of Jāyā, a wife, from jan, to be born, as it is first found in the Brāhmaṇa.

    Tasyām punar nuvo bhūtwā daśame māsi jāyate,
    Tad jāyā jāyā bhavati, yad asyām jāyate punah.
Again, in her being renewed (as a son) he is born in the tenth month,
And a wife therefore becomes jāyā, because he is again born in her:
from this, passing probably through the Sūtras, we have the same in Manu ix. 18,

    Patēr-bhāryām sampravisya garbhō bhūtweha jāyate
    Jāyāyās-taddhi jāyāyatvam yad asyām jāyate punah.
² Udbhayatrā te artham, according to the scholiast, Indra's wife awaits his return, the Soma libation invites his stay.

³ Bhṛttar, lit. brother, but here explained poshaka, nourisher.
7. These sacrificers are the (Bhojas), of whom the diversified Angirasas (are the priests):¹ and the heroic sons of the expeller (of the foes of the gods) from heaven,² bestowing riches upon Viśwāmitra at the sacrifice of a thousand (victims),³ prolong (his) life.

8. Maghavan becomes repeatedly (manifest) in various forms, practising delusions with respect to his own peculiar person; and invoked by his appropriate prayers, he comes in a moment from heaven to the three (daily rites), and, although observant of seasons, is the drinker (of the Soma) irrespective of season.

9. The great Rishi the generator of the gods,⁴ the attracted by the deities, the overlooker of the leaders (at holy rites), Viśwāmitra arrested the watery stream⁵ when he sacrificed for Sudās; Indra, with the Kuśikas was pleased.⁶

10. Sages and saints, overlookers of the leaders (of sacred rites), Kuśikas, when the Soma is expressed

² Rudra: his sons are the Maruts.

³ Sahasrasāve, according to the comment, the asvamedha.

⁵ Astabhnāt sindhum arṇavam: he is said to have stopped the current of the confluence of the Vipāsā and Śatudrī rivers.

with stones at the sacrifice, then exhilarating (the gods) with praises, sing the holy strain (aloud) like (screaming) swans, and, together with the gods, drink the sweet juice of the Soma.

11. Approach, Kuśikas, the steed of Śudās; animate (him), and let him loose to (win) riches (for the raja); for the king (of the gods) has slain Vṛitra in the East, in the West, in the North, therefore let (Śudās) worship him in the best (regions) of the earth.

12. I have made Indra glorified by these two, heaven and earth, and this prayer of Viśvāmitra protects the race of Bhārata.2

13. The Viśvāmitras have addressed the prayer to Indra, the wielder of the thunderbolt; may he therefore render us very opulent.3

14. What do the cattle for thee among the Kiśatas;4

1 Indram atushtavam: the verb is the third preterite of the causal, I have caused to be praised; or if taken in place of the present tense by Vaidik licence, it may be, according to the commentator, I praise Indra, abiding between heaven and earth, i.e. in the firmament.

2 The verses to this, from verse 9, inclusive, are translated by Professor Roth: Liter. und Gesch. der Veda. 105.

3 The Bhāratas, or descendants of Bharata, are in one sense the descendants of Viśvāmitra, Bharata being the son of Śakuntalā, the daughter of the sage. Mahā. Ādi P.: the same authority, however, makes Vasishṭha the family priest of the Bhāratas, and their restorer to dominion from which they had been expelled by the Panchālas.—Ibid: 3735.

4 The Kiśatas are said by Śāyana, following Vāska, Nir. vi. 92, to be countries inhabited by Andāryas, people who do not perform worship, who are infidels, nāstikas: Kiśata is usually identified with South Balar, shewing, apparently, that Vaidik Hinduism had not reached the province when this was said; or as Kiśata was the fountain-head of Buddhism, it might be asserted that the Buddhists were here alluded to, if it were not wholly incompatible with all received notions of the earlier date of the Vedas.

1 Na tapanti gharmani: Yāsha explains the last harmyam, a house; but Sāyana calls it a vessel termed Mahāvīra, used at the rite called Pragnihya, pragnihyākhyakarmopayuktam mahāvīrapātram, which the cattle do not warm by yielding their milk to it.

2 Abhara pramagandasya vedas: maganda is explained by both scholiasts, kusūdin, or usurer, one who says to himself, the money that goes from me will come back doubled, and pra, prefixed, is equivalent to a patronymic.

3 Naichasākhām, that which belongs to a low (nicha) branch, or class (śākhā); the posterity born of Śudras and the like.

4 Jamadagni-dattā, according to Sāyana, may mean, given by the Rishis, those who maintain a blazing jamat-jwalat, fire, Agni; a sense confirmed by the use of the plural in the next verse: the daughter of Sūrya, so given, is said to be speech, or its personification, vāk-devatā.

5 The sound of thunder or the like in the sky.

6 As the prayer or exclamation which accompanies the burnt offering.

17. May the horses be steady, the axle be strong, the pole be not defective, the yoke not be rotten; may Indra preserve the two yoke-pins from decay: car with uninjured felloes, be ready for us.

18. Give strength, Indra, to our bodies; give strength to our vehicles; (give) strength to our sons and grandsons; that they may live (long); for thou art the giver of strength.

19. Fix firmly the substance of the khayar (axle), give solidity to the śisu (floor) of the car: strong axle, strongly fixed by us, be strong; cast us not from out of our conveyance.

20. May this lord of the forest never desert us nor do us harm: may we travel prosperously home

Inscriptions are restricted to human beings, confirming the scholiast’s notion that the four castes and barbarians are intended.

1 Pākhya, the daughter of Paksha: pakhani rakhakanya, the distributor of the parts (of the year?), that is, sūryasya, of the sun.

2 Nāvyam āyor dadhānā, having new life or food: the scholiast adds, mama kurvānā bhavatu.

3 Gāvau-gachchhata, iti, gāvau aśwau: gāva implies, those who go, or, in this place, horses.

4 Vivasvāmitra, says the commentator, being about to depart from the sacrifice of Sudās, invokes good fortune for his conveyance.

5 Khadirsya sāram is the text, the essence of the khadira, mimosa catechu, of which the scholiast says the bolt of the axle is made, whilst the Śingapā, Dalbergia-sisus, furnishes wood for the floor: these are still timber-trees in common use.

6 Vanaspati, that is, here, the timber of which the car is made.
until the stopping (of the car), until the unharnessing (of the steeds).

21. Indra, hero, possessor of wealth, protect us this day against our foes with many and excellent defences: may the vile wretch who hates us fall (before us); may the breath of life depart from him whom we hate.

22. As (the tree) suffers pain from the axe, as the Sūmal flower is (easily) cut off, as the injured cauldron leaking scatters foam, so may mine enemy perish.\(^1\)

23. Men, (the might) of the destroyer is not known to you: regarding him as a mere animal, they lead him away desirous (silently to complete his devotions): the wise condescend not to turn the foolish into ridicule, they do not lead the ass before the horse.\(^2\)

\(^1\) The construction is elliptical: the ellipse is supplied by the scholiast, as the tree is cut down by the axe, so may the enemy be cut down: as one cuts off without difficulty the flower of the Śimbala, so may he be destroyed: as the cauldron (ukhā), when struck (prahatā), and thence leaking (yeshant, sravantī), scatters foam or breath from its mouth, so (dveshtā madiya, mantrasāmarthyena prahata san, phenam mukhād udgiratu) may that hater, struck by the power of my prayer, vomit foam from his mouth.

\(^2\) According to Sāyana the passage alludes to a legend of Viśvāmitra having been seized and bound by the followers of Vasishṭha, when observing a vow of silence these were his reflections on the occasion; disparaging the rivalry of Vasishṭha with himself, as if between an ass and a horse: some of the terms are unusual; sāyakasya, commonly, of an arrow, is explained agreeably to its etymology from so, to destroy, arasānāhārīṇah, of the finisher or destroyer, that is, of Viśvāmitra: Lodham nāyantī, they lead the sage, deriving lodha from lubdham, desirous that his penance might not be frustrated, tapasāh kṣhayo mā bhūḍ iti, lobhena tīṣhmīṃ sthitam Rishim parum manyāmanā, thinking the Rishi silent through his desire, to be
24. These sons of Bharata, Indra, understand severance (from the Vāsishṭhas), not association (with them); they urge their steeds (against them) as against a constant foe; they bear a stout bow (for their destruction) in battle. an animal, i.e. stupid. Yāsha interprets the phrase in the same manner, Lubdham rishim nayanti paśum manyamānāh, they take away the desiring Rishi, thinking him an animal: in the second half the words are also of unusual application: na avājinam vājinā hāsayanti: Śāyāna derives vājina from vāch, speed, with ina affix, and interprets it sarvajna, all-knowing; the contrary, avājina, by mūrka, a fool.

1 The sons of Bharata are the descendants of Viśvāmitra whose enmity to the race of Vāsishtha is here decidedly expressed: this and the preceding stanzas are regarded as imprecations denounced by Viśvāmitra against Vāsishtha, with whom he had quarrelled on account of his disciple the Raja Sudās.

2 The Anukramanihā observes the last verses of this hymn have the sense of imprecations: they are inimical to the Vāsishthas, and the Vāsishthas hear them not; antyā abhiśapatthas tā vāsishthadweshhinyah na vāsishthāh śrīvani: the commentator on the Index cites this verse of the Brihad-devatā in confirmation: satadhā bhidyate murddhā hirtanena sṛutena vā, teshāṁ bādāḥ pramiyante tasmāt tāṁ tu na hīrttayet, the head is split a hundred times by reciting or listening to them, and his children perish; therefore let not a man repeat them: the commentator on the Nirukta, when he comes to the passage, lodham rishim nayanti, passes it by without animadversion, expressly because he says the verses are inimical to the Vāsishthas, and he is of the race of Vāsishtha, of the Kapishthala branch, Sā Vāsishthadweshḥīrkh-ahamcha kāpishthalo Vāsishthaḥ, atas tā na nirbravīmi: it is not unusual for transcribers to omit these passages altogether, as noticed by Professor Roth, and by Professor Müller: see the various readings of the latter, Rig-Veda, vol. ii. Introduction, p. 56.
THIRD ASHTAKA—FIRST ADHYAYA.

ANUVAKA V.

SUKTA I. (LIV.)

The deities are the Viswadevas; the Rishi is Prajapati, the son of either Viswamitra or Vach; the metre is Trishtuh.

1. They recite repeatedly this gratifying praise to the great product of sacrifice (Agni): may he who (is endowed) with domestic radiance hear us: may the imperishable Agni, (endowed) with divine radiance, hear us.

2. Knowing their greatness, offer worship to the vast heaven and to the earth: my desire, wishing (for felicity) proceeds (to them), in whose praise the gods, desirous of adoration, delight together with their worshippers at the sacrifice.

3. Heaven and earth, may your truth be ever inviolable: be propitious to us for the due completion of the rite: this adoration (Agni) is offered to heaven and earth: I worship (them) with (sacrificial) food; I solicit of them precious (wealth).

4. Heaven and earth, endowed with truth, they who are the ancient declarers of the truth, have obtained from you (what they desired); and so, earth, men cognizant (of the greatness of you both) have worshipped you for the sake of triumphing over (hostile) heroes in battle.

5. Who knows what is the truth, or who may here declare it? what is the proper path that leads to the gods? their inferior abiding places are beheld,

6. The far-seeing beholder of mankind (the sun), surveys this heaven and earth, rejoicing when deficient in moisture in the womb of the waters (the firmament), both concurring in community (of function),² although they occupy various dwellings, like the diversified nests of a bird.

7. Common (in function),³ disjoined, of distant termination, they remain vigilant in a permanent station: being, as it were, sisters, and ever young: they therefore address each other by twin appellations.⁴

8. These two⁵ keep all born things discrete, and, although comprehending the great divinities, are not distressed: all moving and stationary beings rest upon one (basis), whether animals, or birds, or creatures of various kinds.

9. I consider at present the eternal and ancient sisterhood to us of thee, our great protectress and progenitrix,⁶ within whose vast and separated path thy eulogists, the gods, travel in their chariots.

10. I repeat this hymn, heaven and earth, to you; and may the soft-bellied, fire-tongued Mitra, royal Varuna, the youthful Adityas, all cognizant of the past, and proclaiming (their own acts), hear it.

11. The golden-handed, soft-tongued Savitri is descending from heaven (to be present) thrice (daily) at the sacrifice: accept Savitri, the praise (recited by) the worshippers, and thereupon grant to us all our desires.

12. May the divine Twashtri, the able artificer, the dextrous-handed, the possessor of wealth, the observer of truth, bestow upon us those things (which are necessary) for our preservation: Ribhus, associated with Pushan, make us joyful, as they (the priests), with uplifted stones, prepare the sacred libation.

13. May the Maruts, whose cars are the lightning, who are armed with spears, resplendent, destroyers of foes, from whom the waters proceed, (who are) unresting and adorable, and may Saraswati hear (my prayer); and may you (Maruts), speedy in your liberality, bestow (upon us) riches and good offspring.

14. May (our) praises and prayers, the causes of good fortune, attain at this sacrifice Vishnu, the object of many rites: he, the wide-stepping; whose commands the many-blending regions of space, the generators (of all beings), do not disobey.

relative or sister: this will not allow of pitri and janitri being rendered father and progenitor, else we have had Dyus, heaven, which is here addressed, characterized by these attributes: see vol. ii. p. 138, v. 33.

1 Paprathana is explained as in the text, swani swani karmani prathayantar.
15. Indra, invested with all energies, has filled both heaven and earth with his greatness: do thou, who art the destroyer of cities, the slayer of Vritra, the leader of a conquering host, collect cattle and bestow them abundantly upon us.

16. Nasatyas, my protectors, inquirers (after the wishes) of your kinsman, beautiful is your cognate appellation of Aświns: be to us the liberal donors of riches: do you, who are irresistible, protect the offerer (of the oblation) with unblameable (defences).

17. Sages acquainted with the past, excellent is that beautiful appellation\(^1\) under which you have both become gods in (the sphere of) Indra: do thou, Indra, the invoked of many, a friend, (associated) with the beloved Ribhus, shape this prayer for our benefit.

18. May Aryaman, Aditi, the adorable (gods), and the unimpeded functions of Varuṇa (protect) us: keep us from (following) the course unpropitious to offspring,\(^2\) and may our dwelling be abundant in progeny and cattle.

19. May the messenger of the gods, engendered in many places, everywhere proclaim us void of offence: may earth and heaven, the waters, the sun, and the vast firmament, with the constellations, hear us.

\(^1\) Chāru nāma may be explained agreeable or acceptable act or devotion, nāma karma namanam vā, chāru, manoharam; by which the Aświns attained deification, yena devatwam prāpnu-tha; but in the preceding verse we have the similar phrase, sajātyam chāru nāma, explained sajāte bhavam kāmanīyam, desirable cognate appellation.

20. May the (divine) showerers (of benefits), the deities of the mountains, and those abiding in fixed habitations, propitiated by the sacrificial food, hear us: may Aditi, with the Adityas, hear us: may the Maruts grant us auspicious felicity.

21. May our path ever be easy of going, and provided with food: sprinkle, gods, the plants with sweet water: (safe) in thy friendship, Agni, may my fortune never be impaired, but may I occupy a dwelling (abounding) with riches and ample food.

22. Taste (Agni) the oblations; make manifest (for us) abundant food: measure out the viands before us: thou overcomest all those (who are) our enemies in conflict: favourably inclined towards us lighten up all our (ceremonies) day by day.

Sūkta II. (LV.)
The deities are the Viṣhadevas; the Rishi is Prajāpati; the metre Trishtubh.

1. When the preceding dawns appear the great imperishable (light) is engendered in the (firmament the) sphere of the waters, and then the worshipper is alert to perform the rites (due to) the gods, for great and unequalled is the might of the gods. *

3. Variously do my manifold desires alight: present at the solemnity, I recite ancient (hymns): when the fire is kindled we speak indeed the truth, for great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

4. The universal sovereign is conveyed to many directions: he sleeps in the places of repose: he is connected with the forests: one mother (heaven) nourishes the child; the other (earth) gives him a dwelling: great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

5. Existing in ancient plants, abiding afterwards in new, he enters into the young (herbs) as soon as they are produced: unimpregnated they become pregnant and bear fruit: great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

6. The child of two mothers sleeps in the west, but (in the morning) the single infant proceeds unobstructed (through the sky): these are the functions of Mitra and Varuna: great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

7. The child of two mothers, the invoker of the gods at sacrifices, the universal sovereign, proceeds thence forward (in the sky): the root (of all), he abides (in the houses of the pious): the reciters of pleasant (words) offer him agreeable (praises): great

8. All (creatures) approaching too near his confines are beheld with their faces turned away as (an enemy) flies from a combatant: obvious (to all), he penetrates the water for its destruction: great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

9. In those (plants) the aged messenger (of the gods) constantly abides: mighty, he passes with the radiant (sun) through the regions of space; assuming various forms, he looks (complacently) upon us: great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

10. Pervading and protecting (all), possessing grateful and immortal radiance, he preserves the supreme path (of the rains), for Agni knows all these worlds: great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

11. The twin pair (day and night) adopt various forms: one of them shines brightly, the other is black: twin sisters are they, one black and the other white: great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

12. Where the mother and the daughter, two productive milch kine, unite, they nourish each other:¹ I worship them both in (the firmament), the dwelling of the waters: great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

13. Licking the calf of the other, one of them lows aloud: the milch cow offers her udder for the one that is without moisture (the earth), and she (the earth) is refreshed by the milk of the rain:² great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

18. We proclaim, people, the wealth of the hero, (Indra), in horses; the gods know his (affluence); six, or five and five, harnessed to his car, convey him; great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

19. The divine Twashtri the impeller (of all), the multiform, has begotten and nourished a numerous progeny, for all these worlds are of him: great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

20. He has filled the two vast receptacles (heaven and earth) united (with creatures): they are both penetrated by his lustre: the hero spoiling the treasures (of the foe) is renowned: great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

21. Our king, the nourisher of all, abides (in the firmament) nearest to this earth like a benevolent friend: the valiant (Maruts) precede him (when abroad), and dwell in his mansion: great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

22. The plants, Indra, come to perfection by thee; from thee the waters (flow); earth bears her treasures for thee: may we, thy friends, be sharers of these blessings: great and unequalled is the might of the gods.

2 Chambvau, the two vessels in which gods and men eat, cha-manty adanty anayor devamannushyâh: this would imply vessels or ladles, but the scholiast also proposes, the two that are eaten or enjoyed by living beings; that is, heaven and earth.
ADHYÁYA IV.

SÚKTA III. (LVI.)

The deities are the Viśwadevas; the Rishi is Prajápati; the metre Trishtubh.

Varga I.

1. Neither the deceptive nor the resolute interrupt the primitive and permanent operations of the gods, nor do the innocuous heaven and earth (interrupt them), nor are the mountains standing (on the earth) to be bowed down.¹

2. One stationary (year) sustains six burthens (in the seasons); the (solar) rays spread through that true and extensive (term); three revolving spheres are severally above, two of which are placed in secret, and one is visible.²

3. The three-breasted,³ the showerer (of rain,) the omniform, the three-uddered, the parent of multiform progeny, the possessor of magnitude, followed by three hosts (the year), advances, the vigorous impregnator of the perpetual plants.

4. (The year) is awake, the path in the vicinity of

² Heaven and the firmament are not wholly discernible, earth is.

³ That is, as subsequently specified, the year, personified: the number three, repeatedly mentioned, is said to apply to the seasons of the year, reduced from the usual number of six to three, the hot, rainy, and cold, by merging into them, severally, the vernal, autumnal, and dewy.
those (plants): I call upon the beautiful name of the Ādityas;\(^1\) the divine waters wandering severally (now) give it delight, and (now) depart from it.\(^2\)

5. Rivers, the dwelling-places of the intelligent gods are thrice three;\(^3\) the measurer of the three (worlds)\(^4\) is the sovereign at sacrifices: three female (divinities)\(^5\) of the waters charged with the rains descend from heaven at the thrice (repeated) solemnity.

6. Savitri, descended from heaven, bestow upon us blessings thrice every day: Bhaga, saviour, grant us thrice a day riches of three elements:\(^6\) Dhishanā\(^7\) enable us to acquire (wealth).

7. May Savitri bestow upon us wealth at the (three periods) of the day, for the well-handed Mitra and Varuṇa, the waters, the vast heaven and earth, solicit precious things from the liberality of Savitri.

8. Three are the excellent uninjurable bright regions;\(^8\) three scions of the powerful (year) are shining;\(^9\) practisers of truth, quick moving, of surpassing radiance: may the deities be present thrice daily at the sacrifice.

SūRTA IV. (LVII.)
The deities, Rishi, and metre as before.

Varga II.

1. May the discriminating Indra apprehend my glorification (of the gods), which is (free) as a milch cow, grazing alone, without a cowherd, one who is readily milked, yielding abundant nourishment, and of whom Agni and Indra (and we), are the commenders.

2. Indra and Pūshan, the showerers (of benefits), and the happy-handed Āświns, well affected towards us, have milked the (cloud) reposing in heaven; wherefore, Vasus, universal deities, sporting on this (altar), may I here obtain the happiness derived from you.

3. The plants that desire for the showerer (Indra) the power (of sending rain) appreciate, when manifest, the embryo (blossom) deposited in him: the kine desirous of reward come to the presence of the calf, invested with many forms.¹

4. I glorify with praise the beautiful heaven and earth, taking in hand the stones (to express the libation) at the sacrifice, as these thy graceful, adorable, and many-blessing rays (Agni) mount up for the good of man.

5. With thy wide-spreading tongue, Agni, sweet and intelligent, which is renowned amongst the gods, bring hither all the adorable deities for our protection, and give them to drink of the sweet (libations).

¹ The vegetable world, as characterized by rice, barley, wild rice, and the like; vṛihityavanivārādi-phala lakshanam, putram, tanayam, vatsam iva.
6. Divine Agni, giver of dwellings, knower of all that exists, extend to us that benevolence which, unshared by others, cherishes us like the showers of the rain-cloud; that kindness which is beneficent for all mankind.

SUXTA V. (LVIII.)

The deities are the Aświns; the Ṛishi and metre as before.

1. The milch-cow (the dawn) yields the desired milk to the ancient (Agni); the son of the south\(^1\) passes within (the firmament); the bright-houred (day) brings the illuminative (sun): the praiser awakes (to glorify) the Aświns preceding the dawn.

2. The well-yoked (horses) bear you both in your truth-(preserving car): the offerings proceed towards you as (children to their parents): discard from us the disposition of the niggard: we have made ready for you our offering: come to our presence.

3. Dāses, with well-yoked horses and well-constructed car, hear this praise of the worshipper, for have not the ancient sages declared you, Aświns, to be most ready to come to the aid of the destitute.

4. If you regard (my prayer), come with your quick steeds: all men, Aświns, invoke you: to you they offer the sweet (Soma) juice mixed with milk: as friends (give gifts to friends): the sun is in advance, (therefore come to the rite).

5. Eclipsing (by your splendour) many regions, Aświns, (come hither); loud praise awaits you opulent (Aświns) amongst men: come to this rite by the paths traversed by the gods: here, Dāsras, are ample stores of the exhilarating juices.¹

6. Your ancient friendship is desirable and auspicious; your wealth, leaders (of rites), is in the family of Jāhnu:² renewing that auspicious friendship, may we, your associates, delight you with the sweet (Soma juice).

7. Aświns, endowed with power, ever young, in whom is no untruth, unwearied, munificent, accepters (of libations), drink with Vāyu and your steeds, rejoicing together, of the Soma libation offered at the close of day.

8. Aświns, abundant (sacrificial) viands are presented to you, and blameless worshippers (salute you) with praises: your water-shedding car, attracted by the sacrificers, quickly compasses earth and heaven.

9. Aświns, this most sweet Soma is mixed; drink it: come to (our) dwelling: your car, repeatedly bestowing wealth, is coming to the appointed place³ of the offerer of the libation.

Sōkta VI. (LIX.)
The deity is Mitra; the Rishi, Viśvāmitra; the metre of the first five verses is Trishtubh, of the last four Gāyatrī.

1. Mitra,⁴ when praised, animates men to exer-

¹ Nidhayo madhūnām: according to Sāyaṇa, nidhi is here a kind of vessel, pātraviṣeshah.
² Yuvar dravinam Jahnāvyaṁ: the latter is derived from Jahn, and is explained merely by Jahnukulajāyaṁ, in her born in the race of Jahn: it might imply the Ganges, Jáhnavi, if we had reason to suppose the legend of her origin from Jahn was known to the Vedas: of course it was familiar to Sāyaṇa.
³ Nishkritam, according to Yāska, Nir. xii. 7, is the place of agreement, nir ityeshah samityetasya sthéne: it may be rendered by griha, house.
⁴ Mitra is said here to signify the sun, he who is measured tion: Indra sustains both the earth and heaven; Mitra looks upon men with unclosing eyes: offer to Mitra the oblations of clarified butter.

2. May that mortal enjoy abundance, Mitra, who presents thee, Aditya, (with offerings) at the sacred rite; protected by thee he is not harmed; he is not overcome by any one; sin reaches him not, either from afar or nigh.

3. May we, exempt from disease, rejoicing in (abundant) food, roaming free over the wide (expanse) of the earth, diligent in the worship of Aditya, ever be in the good favour of Mitra.

4. This Mitra has been engendered adorable and to be served, the sovereign (over all), endowed with vigour, the creator (of the universe); may we ever be in the good favour, in the auspicious approbation, of this adorable (Aditya).

5. The great Aditya, the animator of men to exertion, is to be approached with reverence: he is the giver of happiness to him who praises him: offer with fire the acceptable libation to that most gloriable Mitra.

6. Desirable food and most renowned wealth are (the gifts) of the divine Mitra, the supporter of man.

—or appreciated (miyate) by all, and who preserves (tr̥yate) the world, by bestowing rain: much the same rendering of the text is given by Yāska, Nir. x. 22.

1 Mitajnavah; mitajānukā, with measured knees, literally; which Sāyana explains, yathā kāmām sarvatragachchhantah, going everywhere at pleasure.

2 Yajukh xi. 62: Mahidhara renders avah by its more usual sense of protection, not as Sāyana, annam, food; and dyumnam, which the latter renders by dhanaṁ, wealth, the former makes
7. The renowned Mitra, who by his might presides over heaven, is he who presides over the earth by (the gift of) food.

8. The five classes of men have repaired to the victorious Mitra, for he supports all the gods.

9. Mitra is he who amongst gods and men bestows food as the reward of pious acts upon the man who has prepared (for him) the lopped sacred grass.

Sūkta VII. (LX.)

The deities of the first four verses are the Ribhus, of the three last Indra; the Rishi is Viśvāmitra; the metre Jogati.

1. Your connexion (with the consequences of acts) Ribhus is here (acknowledged) by the minds of all: desiring their share (of the sacrifice), oh men, they have come with a knowledge (of their claims) to these (rites): the sons of Sudhanwan, with the devices by which they are victorious over foes, you have accepted the share of the sacrifice.3

either fame or food, yaso annam vā: the epithet sānaśi, which. Sāyaṇa makes sarvāthiṃ sambhajanīyaṃ, Mahidhara explains, sanātanam, eternal, upon the authority of Yāska, who includes it, he says, among the synonymes of purāṇa, old: it is not, however, found there, Nigh. iii. 27.

1 Vo bandhutā might mean, your affinity or friendship, but the scholiast explains it, they who connect acts with their fruits, badhnanti phalena harmāṇi.

2 Yajniyam bhāgam ānasa: Sāyaṇa here explains the verb as if it were in the second pers. plur. of the reduplicate preterite, yāyam vyāptāḥ stha, you have pervaded, the Veda conjugating as in the Parasmaipada, instead of Ātmanepada, as is usual: so in the third stanza we have samānaśuḥ instead of samānā-śire: the passage has been cited in a former page, vol. i. p. 49, note, and is there somewhat incorrectly translated: in Sūkta 161, v. 6, we have yajniyam bhāgam aitana explained also prāṇmuta, obtain: see the hymns to the Ribhus in the first volume p. 45, and second volume, p. 107: also Grammar, 2nd Ed. p. 241.
2. With those faculties by which you have divided the ladies; with that intelligence wherewith you have covered the (dead) cow with skin; with that will by which you have fabricated the two horses (of Indra); with those (means), Ribhus, you have attained divinity.

3. The Ribhus, the performers of (good) works, the grandsons of a man, have attained the friendship of Indra: they have perpetuated (existence):\(^1\) the sons of Sudhanwan have attained immortality: performers of pious acts influencing (the result), through their devotion (they have attained divinity) by their works.\(^2\)

4. Go with Indra in his chariot when the libation is poured out, and be (welcomed) with honour by the (worshipper) desiring (your favour): Ribhus, sons of Sudhanwan, bestowers (of the rewards of pious acts) your virtuous deeds, your great faculties, are not to be measured.

5. Indra, along with the food-bestowing Ribhus, accept with both hands the (cup of the) effused Soma libation: excited Maghavan, by worship, rejoice with the human sons of Sudhanwan in the dwelling of the donor (of the offering).

6. Indra, the praised of many, associated with Ribhu, and with Vája, exult with Sachi,\(^3\) at this our sacrifice: these self-revolving (days) are devoted to thee, as well as the ceremonies (addressed) to the gods, and the virtuous acts of man.

\(^1\) Dadhanvire, as in the former case adhárvanta, vol. i. p. 49, has no accusative: the scholiast, as before, supplies pránán, vitality, meaning immortal life, as follows.

\(^2\) See also vol. i. p. 284.

\(^3\) Or Sachi may mean harman, act, rite.
7. Indra, with the food-bestowing Ribhus rewarding (worship) with food,¹ come hither to (receive) the reverential praise of the adorer, with a hundred quick-going steeds, the indications (of the Maruts): come to the burnt offering of the sacrifice, yielding a thousand blessings to the sacrificer.

Sôkta VIII. (LXI.)

The deity is Ushâs, the dawn; the Rishi as before; the metre Trishtubh.

Varga VIII.

1. Affluent Ushâs, giver of sustenance, possessed of intelligence, be propitiated by the praise of him who lands thee, (and worships) with (sacrificial) food: divine Ushâs, adored by all, who (though) ancient art (still) young, the object of manifold worship, thou art present at the recurring (morning) rite.

2. Ushâs, who art divine and immortal, mounted in a golden chariot, do thou shine radiant, causing to be heard the sounds of truth;² may thy vigorous and well-trained horses bring thee, who art golden-haired, (hither).

3. Ushâs, who spreadest over all the regions, thou abidest on high, the ensign of the immortal (sun), purposing to travel the same road, repeatedly turn back ever new, (revolving) like a wheel.

4. The opulent Ushâs, the bride of the far-darting

¹ Ribhubhir vâjibhir vâjayan, implies a quibble upon the word vâja; which is the name of one of the Ribhus, put for all, but means, in its more usual sense, food.

² Śûraidâ trayânti: the phrase has occurred before, vol i. p. 299, v. 12., where it is rendered, awakener of pleasant voices, in the sense explained note p. 297, the dawn exciting or awakening the true or agreeable cries of beasts and birds.
(sun), throwing off (darkness) like a garment, proceeds: diffusing her own (lustre), auspicious, promoting sacred acts, she is renowned to the ends of the heaven and of the earth.

5. Offer, with your prostrations, due praise to the divine Ushas, shining upon you: the repository of sweetness\(^1\) manifests her brightness aloft in the sky, and, radiant and lovely, lights the regions.\(^2\)

6. The possessor of truth is recognised in the sky by her rays: the possessor of wealth has taken a marvellous station in earth and heaven: Agni, soliciting alms of the radiant advancing Ushas, thou obtainest thy desired treasure (of oblations).\(^3\)

7. The showerer (of rain, the sun), urging on the dawn, at the root of the truthful (day)\(^4\) hast pervaded the vast heaven and earth: the mighty Ushas, the golden light, as it were, of Mitra and Varuna, diffuses her lustre in different directions.

Sókta IX. (LXII.)

This hymn is divided into six Tríchas or triplets, the deities of which are severally, Indra and Varuna, Bṛhaspati, Pushan, Savitri, Soma, and Mitra and Varuna: Vīgavāmitra is the Rishi, or, according to some, the last triplet is ascribed to Jamadagni: the metre of the three first stanzas is Trishtubh, of the rest Gāyatrī.

1. Indra and Varuna, may these people who are

\(^1\) Madhudhá rather puzzles the scholiast: madhu may mean, he says, sweet words of praise, madhiráni stutilakshanáni vákyáni, or simply praise, stoma; or, without referring to its etymology, it may be a name of Ushas: dhá is that which has or holds.

\(^2\) As in S. 49, v. 4. of the first Ashtaka.

\(^3\) That is, the sacrificial fire is kindled at dawn.

\(^4\) Rítasya, satyabhútasya: it is identified with truth as the season of the performance of religious rites.
relying upon you, and wandering about (in alarm), sustain no injury from a youthful (adversary); for where is that reputation (you enjoy) on account that you bestow sustenance on your friends.

2. Most diligent (in pious rites) this (your worshipper), Indra and Varuna, desirous of wealth, incessantly invokes you for protection: associated with the Maruts, with heaven and earth, hear my invocation.

3. May there be to us, Indra and Varuna, such wealth (as we covet): may there be, Maruts, to us wealth (of cattle) and numerous descendants: may the delightful (wives of the gods)\(^1\) shelter us with dwellings: may Hotra and Bharati (enrich) us with gifts.

4. Brihaspati, friend of all the gods, accept our oblations: grant precious treasures to the offerer.

5. Adore the pure Brihaspati at sacrifices with hymns: I solicit of him unsurpassable strength.

6. The showerer (of benefits) on men, the omniform, the irreproachable, the excellent Brihaspati.

7. Divine, resplendent, Pushan, this, thy most recent laudation, is uttered by us to thee.

8. Be pleased by this my praise, and incline to this food-supplicating laudation as an uxorious (husband) to his wife.

9. May that Pushan, who looks upon all the worlds, who thoroughly contemplates them, be our protector.

10. We meditate on that desirable light of the divine Savitri, who influences our pious rites.\(^2\)

\(^1\) The text has only Varutrith: the scholiast explains it sarvath sambhajaniya, devapatnyah, to be admired by all; the wives of the gods; which agrees with the specification of the two goddesses that follows.

\(^2\) This is the celebrated verse of the Vedas which forms part
THIRD ĀŚṬĀKA—FOURTH ĀDHYAṬA. 111

11. Desirous of food, we solicit with praise, of the divine SAVITRI, the gift of affluence.

12. Devout and wise men, impelled by intelligence, of the daily devotions of the Brahmans, and was first made known to English readers by Sir W. Jones’ translation of a paraphrastic interpretation: he renders it, Let us adore the supremacy of that divine sun, the godhead, who illuminates all, who recreates all, from whom all proceed, to whom all must return, whom we invoke to direct our understandings aright in our progress towards his holy seat (Works, Svo. vol. xiii. p. 367): the text has merely Tat savitur varenyam bhargo devasya dhimahi, dhiyo yo nah prachodayátm: the last member may be also rendered, who may animate or enlighten our intellects: the verse occurs in the Yajush, iii. 35, and in the Sáman, ii. 8, 12: both commentators are agreed to understand by Savitri, the soul, as one with the soul of the world, Brahma, but various meanings are also given: thus, Sáyana has, we meditate on the light which is one with Brahma, his own light, which, from its consuming influence on ignorance and its consequences, is termed Bhargas, and is that which is desirable, from its being to be known or worshipped by all (varenyam) the property of the supreme being, (parameswara), the creator of the world, and the animator, impeller, or urger (savitri), through the internally abiding spirit (antaryámi) of all creatures: again, yah, although masculine, may, by Vaidik licence, be the relative to the neuter noun bhargas, that light which animates all (dhiyak) acts, (karmání), or illumines all understandings (buddhik): again, devasya savituh may mean, of the bright or radiant sun, as the progenitor of all, sarvasya prasavitur, and bhargas may be understood as the sphere or orb of light, the consumer of sins, pápánam tópaham tejo-mandolam: again, bhargas may be interpreted, food, and the prayer may only implore the sun to provide sustenance, tasya prasástid annádilakshanam phalam dhimahi, tasya ádharabhútá bhavema, we anticipate from his favour the reward that is characterized by food and the like, that is, may we be supported by him: Mahídhara, in his comment on the same text in the Yajush, notices similar varieties of interpretation.
adore the divine Savitri with sacrifices and sacred hymns.

13. Soma, knowing the right path, proceeds (by it): he goes to the excellent seat of the gods, the place of sacrifice.

14. May Soma grant to us and to (our) biped and quadruped animals, wholesome food.

15. May Soma, prolonging our lives and overcoming our adversaries, sit down in our place of sacrifice.

16. Mitra and Varuna, sprinkle our cow-stalls with butter; performers of good works, (sprinkle) the worlds with honey.¹

17. Performers of pure rites, glorified by many, exalted by adoration, (celebrated) by prolonged praises, you reign by the greatness of (your) strength.

18. Glorified by Jamadagni, sit down in the place of sacrifice (the altar); drink, augmenters (of the reward) of sacrifice, the Soma libation.²

² These two last verses occur also in the Sama-Veda ii. 14, 15: as the author of the hymn is Visvámitra, the scholiast proposes another interpretation of Jamadagni, as an epithet of Visvámitra, he by whom the fire has been kindled: see former note, Súkta lii. v. 15.
MANDALA IV.
ANUVÁKA I.

SÚKTA I.
The deity is Agni, or, it may be, Varuṇa in the second, third, and fourth stanzas: the Rishi is Vámadeva: the metre of the first verse is Ashtī; of the second, Atijagati; of the third, Dhrity; and Tristubh of the rest.

1. Since the emulous gods ever excite thee, Agni, who art a deity swift of motion, (to contest), therefore do (thy worshippers) urge thee by their devotions (to bring the deities to their sacrifices): adorable Agni, they (the deities), have generated thee, immortal, divine, all-wise, as the present divinity among men: they have generated thee as the all-present and all-wise deity.

2. Bring to the presence of the worshippers, Agni, thy brother Varuṇa, as a participator of the sacrifice, with a willing mind, the elder participator of the sacrifice; the ruler of the water, the Āditya, the supporter of men, the sovereign venerated by mankind.

3. Friendly and beautiful (Agni), bring thy friend (Varuṇa) to our presence, as two strong horses

1 Samanyavo devasas tvám nyeritre: samanyavah is explained by the scholiast, spardhamánah, vicing with.

2 We have in this and the next stanza the same device that has occurred in the 127th and following Súktas of the first Mandala, vol. ii. p. 19, which are written in the same long and complex metre, the repetition at the end of the line of the three or four preceding words: thus we have here, ádevam janata prachetasam, viśvam ádevam janata prachetasam, with the sense partially modified in the repetition, at least according to the scholiast.

VOL. III.
convey the swift chariot along the road to its goal: thou receivest, Agni, the gratifying (oblation) together with Varuṇa, and with the all-illumining Maruts: grant, brilliant Agni, happiness to our sons and grandsons; grant, beautiful Agni, happiness to ourselves.

4. Māyest thou, Agni, who art wise, avert from us the wrath of the divine Varuṇa: do thou, who art the most frequent sacrificer, the most diligent bearer (of oblations), the most resplendent, liberate us from all animosities.

5. Do thou, Agni, our preserver, be most nigh to us with thy protection at the breaking of this dawn: depurate Varuṇa for us,¹ and, propitiated (by our praise), feed upon the grateful (oblation), and be to us of auspicious invocation.

6. The glance of this auspicious deity, directed towards men, is most excellent, most wonderful, acceptable (to all), as the pure warm butter (from the milk) of the cow (is acceptable) to the deity; as the gift of a milch-cow (is to a man).

7. These are the supreme, true, and desirable births of this divine Agni,² invested (with radiance) in the unbounded (firmament): pure, bright, radiant lord (of all), may he come (to our) sacrifice.

8. The messenger, the invoker (of the gods), riding

² As Agni, Vāyu, and Sūrya, or it may refer to the places of his manifestation, or earth, firmament, and heaven: see vol. r. p. 248, v. 3.
in a golden chariot with a tongue of flame, he frequents all the chambers (of sacrifice); drawn by red horses, embodied, resplendent, always agreeable, as a dwelling well supplied with food.

9. Associated with sacrifice, and knowing those men (who are engaged in good works), they lead him with the strong cord (of praise); he, the divine Agni, fulfilling (all desires), abides in the dwelling of this mortal, and obtains fellowship in his wealth.

10. May that wise Agni conduct us to that wealth which is desired by the devout; he whom all the immortals have created for (the performance of) sacred rites; of whom heaven is the parent and progenitor, and whom (the priests) verily sprinkle (with oblations).

11. He is first engendered in the habitations (of the sacrificers; then upon his station, (the altar), the base of the vast firmament; without feet, without head, concealing his extremities, combining with smoke in the nest of the rain-cloud.

12. Radiance has first proceeded to thee, (Agni); who art glorified by praise, in the womb of the water, in the nest of the rain-cloud: the seven attached (priests) have engendered (praise) to the showerer (of benefits), who is desirable, ever young, embodied, and resplendent.

13. In this world our mortal forefathers\(^1\) departed after instituting the sacred rite, when, calling upon the dawn, they extricated the milk-yielding kine, concealed among the rocks in the darkness (of the cave).

\(^1\) The Angirasas: the purport of this and the next verse is obviously the attribution of the origin of fire-worship to Angiras and his followers.
14. Rending the rocks, they worshipped (Agni), and other (sages) taught everywhere their (acts): unprovided with the means of (extricating) the cattle, they glorified the author of success, whence they found the light, and were thus enabled (to worship him) with holy ceremonies.

15. Devoted (to Agni), those leaders (of sacred rites), with minds intent upon (recovering) the cattle, forced open, by (the power) of divine prayer, the obstructing, compact, solid mountain confining the cows, a cow-pen full of kine.

Varga XV.

16. They first have comprehended the name of the kine, knowing the thrice seven excellent (forms) of the maternal (rhythm); then they glorified the conscious dawns, and the purple dawn appeared with the radiance of the sun.

17. The scattered darkness was destroyed; the firmament glowed with radiance; the lustre of the divine dawn arose: then the sun stood above the undecaying mountains, beholding all that was right or wrong among mankind.

18. Thereupon awaking, the (Angirasas) beheld (the cattle set free), and seized upon the precious treasures: the universal gods then came to all (their) dwellings: Mitra and Varuna may your truth be (kept) to him who worships (you).

1 _Tevanuvata prathamam náma dhénok_: according to Sáyaña, dhénok may mean vách, speech, and with náma, stutisádhakam śabdamátram, mere sound as the means of praise: it may also have its ordinary sense, the passage referring to the ancient nomenclature of cattle, as uttered by the Angirasas, as Ehi, surahbi, guggulu, gandhini, &c.

2 There are twenty-one metres of the Vedas.
19. May I glorify the present radiant Agni, the invoker (of the gods), the supporter of the universe, most deserving of adoration, without milking the pure udder (of the cow), without the purified food of the Soma offered in libation.¹

20. May Agni be the Aditi² of all those to whom sacrifice is offered; may he be the guest of all men: receiving the (sacrificial) food of the devout,³ may he, to whom all is known, be the bestower of felicity.

Sókta II. (II.)

The deity and Rishi as before; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. He who has been placed immortal among the mortals,⁴ the observer of truth, a deity triumphant among gods, the invoker of the gods, the most diligent sacrificer, Agni: he has been placed (upon the altar) to lighten (the ceremony) by his (lustre), and for the elevation of the worshipper, through oblations (in heaven).

2. Agni, son of strength, generated to day at this our rite, as intermediate between both (gods and man) thou proceedest, the invoker (of the gods), harness-

¹ According to the scholiast, this implies that no offering is made to Agni on the occasion; praise alone is addressed to him.

² May he be the cherisher of the gods as if he were Aditi their mother; or Aditi may mean the earth, that is, their stay or support: Mahidhara, on this verse, Yajur-Veda, xxxiii. 16, explains it etymologically; without a defect, yasya khan-danam násti, adina, not mean or base.

³ Devánam ava áviráñah, according to Sáyana, is participating in the sacrificial food of the worshippers: Mahidhara explains it, delivering the oblations offered to the gods, i.e. through fire.

⁴ Or among mortal organs of sense, Agni being that of speech: agreeably to the text, Agnir-vág-bhútavá mukham práviṣat.
ing, graceful Agni, thy robust, vigorous, and resplendent steeds.

3. I celebrate the ruddy, food-bestowing, watershedding, and swifter-than-thought-going, steeds of him who is the truth: harnessing the brilliant pair (to thy chariot), thou passest between the deities of whom thou art, and human worshippers.¹

4. Possessed, Agni, of good steeds, an excellent car, and abundant wealth, do thou, amidst these (worshippers) bring to the man who offers worthy oblations, Aryaman, Varuṇa, Mītra, Viṣṇu, the Maruts, or the Aśvinis.

5. May the sacrifice, Agni, be productive of cows, of sheep, of horses, and, celebrated by thy worshipper, aided by the priests, be ever uninterrupted: may it, mighty Agni, be productive of food and progeny, long continued, affluent, wide based, and held in full assembly.²

6. Thou art the munificent recompenser³ of that man who, sweating (with toil), brings thee fuel, and for thy service causes his head to ache: protect him, Agni, from every one that seeks to do him evil.

7. May a son, firm in (devotion) and liberal (in offerings), be born to him who presents (sacrificial) food to thee when needing food, who gives thee constantly the exhilarating (Soma) juice, who welcomes thee as a guest, and devoutly kindles thee in his mansion.

8. Preserve from sin the liberal sacrificer who glorifies thee morning and evening, and, presenting oblations, does what is acceptable to thee in his own abode, like a horse with golden caparisons.¹

9. Let not him who makes offerings to thee, Agni, who art immortal, who with uplifted ladle pours out oblations repeating thy praise, ever want riches, and let not the wickedness of a malevolent (foe) circumvent him.

10. May that prayer be agreeable to thee, Agni, who art a gracious deity, (which is uttered) by the man with whose well-conducted sacrifice thou art well pleased, youngest (of the gods), of whose (rites) when worshipping thee may we be the promoters.

11. May the wise Agni discriminate between virtue and vice, between (virtuous and wicked) men, as a (groom distinguishes between) the strong and weak backs (of horses):² enrich us with wealth accompanied

² This passage is elliptically and metaphorically expressed, chittim, achittim, chinavadv-vidván, may the sage (Agni) distinguish that which is to be known, chittim jñátavyam puñyam, or virtue, and achittim achetanyam, not to be thought of, or pápm, sin; or chittim and achittim may be explained by jñánam and ajñánam, knowledge and ignorance: mañúm, mortals or men, has no epithets; the scholiast supplies them: the comparison runs, prishtheva vítá vijiná cha, like backs bright, (kántáni) and ill-bearing (durbaháni); for the horses and the groom, (aswapála), we are indebted to Sáyana.
by virtuous offspring; be bountiful to the liberal giver; shun him who gives not.

12. The unreviled sages abiding in the dwellings of man have glorified the sage (Agni); therefore, lord of sacrifice, thou mayest proceed with swift-moving feet to behold the admirable and marvellous deities.

13. Resplendent Agni, youngest of the gods, the satisfier of (the desires of) men, who art easily to be conducted (to the altar), bestow joy-yielding and abundant wealth for his preservation upon the worshipper who praises and worships thee and offers thee libations.

14. Therefore, Agni, when we labour for thee with hands and feet, and all our members, the pious performers of rites, (the Angirasas), exercise their arms in the work (of attrition), as wheelwrights fabricate a car.

15. May we seven priests first in order engender from the maternal dawn the worshippers of the creator (Agni); may we Angirasas be the sons of heaven,¹ and, radiant, divide the wealth-containing mountain.²

² Adrim rujema dhaninam, may allude to the rock in which the cows were hidden, or adri may be rendered cloud (meha), by the disruption of which rain is made to fall.
16. Thus, Agni, our excellent and ancient forefathers, celebrators of holy sacrifice, proceeded to (the region of) pure light, and, reciting prayers and dispersing gloom, they made manifest the purple (kine).

17. Performers of good works, brilliant and devout, the praises of the gods have freed their birth from impurity, as (a smith heats) iron: exciting Agni, elevating Indra, and wandering about (in search), they have gone to the vast (hidden) herd of cattle.

18. Fierce (Agni), when (Indra) proclaimed the near presence of the herd of the kine of the divine (Angirasas) as a herd of cattle in a well stored stall, the progeny of mortals were thereby enabled (to per-

1 Suchid ayan didhitim; dipam sthānam tejas chāgach-chhan: Mahidhara, Yajur, xix. 69, explains this by ravi man-dalam, the orb of the sun, and gives a different interpretation to the last phrases; may we, dividing the rays of the sun, and piercing the earth (with sacrificial posts and the like), also proceed by the path of the gods, or to heaven: it is rather a bold interpretation, however, to convert apavran, the third plur. of the third preterite, into apavrinumah, first plur. of the present with the sense of the potential: this and the three following verses occur in the Atharva-Veda, xviii. 3, 21, 24.

2 Ayātheva kshumāti pasvoh, akhyat devānām yaj-janī-mānti, is, literally, like a herd in food-possessing animals, he has said of the gods that which birth is nigh: janimā, Sāyana interprets go-sangham, and makes out the rest as above; or he proposes an alternative, not more intelligible: the second half of the stanza is equally obscure as the first; martānām chid urvastrakṛipran vyidhe chid arya uparasya āyoh: urvasīḥ is rendered by Sāyana, prajā, progeny, as if it was the nominative, instead of being the accus. plural; and if so, there is no nom. to akṛipran, were made able: the word is remarkable, and is made more so by Sāyana's reference to Yāska, Nir. v. 1, where the word means, as usual, Apsaras, and the etymology is urvabhya asnuta, or urubhuyām asnuta, who pervades or proceeds from the thigh, conformably to the Pauranik legend of form pious acts), and the master of the family rendered competent to (provide for) the increase of posterity and (the support of) dependants.

19. We have worshipped thee (Agni), and have thereby become the performers of a good work, adoring the full and variously delighting Agni, the beautiful luster of the radiant divinity, when the brilliant dawns have arrayed (themselves) in light.

20. Creator, Agni, we have repeated these thy praises to thee who art all-wise; do thou accept them: blaze aloft; make us opulent: do thou who art worshipped by many bestow upon us ample wealth.

Súkta III. (III).

The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Secure Agni, the king of sacrifice, the afflicter (of foes), the invoker (of the gods), the distributor of food through heaven and earth, the golden formed, for your protection, before (surprised by) sudden death.

2. This is the altar which we have decorated for thee, as a wife attached to her husband puts on elegant garments (to gratify him): maturer of good works, sit down in our presence invested (with radiance), while thy flames incline towards thee.

3. Repeat, oh priest, the praise, the prayer, to the attentive, the affable Agni, the beholder of man, the giver of felicity, the divine, the immortal; to him whom the effuser of the libation, like the (bruising) stone, adores aloud.

her birth from the thigh of Nárayana: see also the Vikramorvaśi of Kálidásá, which shews the legend to be of some antiquity.

1 Puře tanañíñor achittát, lit. before the unconsciousness of the thunderbolt; implying, according to the scholiast, a state of unconsciousness, or death, as sudden as if the work of the thunderbolt.
4. Thou, Agni, presidest over this our rite: do thou, who art cognizant of truth, and the author of good works, recognise this our adoration, whenever these exhilarating prayers (are addressed) to thee, whenever friendly relations with thee are (established) in our dwelling.

5. Why, Agni, dost thou reproach us (for our sin) to Varuna, why to the heaven? what is our offence? why repeat it to the bountiful Mitra, to earth, to Aryaman, or to Bhaga?

6. Why repeat it when exalted in holy ceremonies? why tell it to the mighty, benevolent, circumambient, truthful wind? why, Agni, to earth, why to man-destroying Rudra?

7. Why to the great and nutriment-conveying Pusana? why to Rudra, the object of worship, the giver of the oblation (to the gods)? why to the many-hymned Vishnu? why tell our sin to the extensive year?

8. Why tell it to the veracious company of the 1 Rudraya nri-ghive, the man-slayer, Rudra; the scholiast says, of wicked men.

2 Sarane vrihatayai: saruh, sarat, samvatsarah, or saru, may mean nirriti, the female personification of evil, who, by some unaccountable inadvertence, I have turned, in a former passage, into a male deity: see vol. i, p. 107, verse 6: nirriti does occur, however, in the masculine; as in the scholia on the Taittiriya Yajush, i, 2, 11: nirritir yajnavighati rakshasah, an evil spirit disturbing sacrifice. Cal. Ed. p. 495: and in the comment of Bharatasena on the word nairrita in the Amara kosha, i, 1, 56, he gives nirriti as synonymous with nairrita; nirritir eva nairrita iti va, citing the Ratna kosha in confirmation, nairritas tu hata-patro rakshasas nirritis-chha sah, Nairrita, the son of Khasa, a Rakshasa, he is also Nirrita: in the passage of the first Ashtaka adverted to, the epithets are feminine, and the change of sex is unwarranted.
Maruts? why, even when asked, to the mighty sun? why repeat it to Aditi, or to the swift wind? fulfil, all-knowing Jatavedas, (the worship) of heaven.

9. I solicit, Agni, the milk of the cow, essential for the sacrifice: yet immature, (she possesses) the sweet and ripe (fluid): black though she be, yet with her white nutritious milk she maintains mankind in existence.

10. The male Agni, the showerer (of benefits), has been sprinkled by the genuine sustaining milk: the giver of food proceeds unswerving (from his course), and the sun, the shedder of rain, has milked the white (fluid) of the udder (of the firmament).

11. By the sacrifice, the Angirasas, rending the mountain asunder, have thrown it open, and returned with the cows: the leaders (of holy rites) have arrived happily at the dawn, and the sun was manifest as Agni was engendered.

12. By sacrifice, Agni, the divine rivers, immortal, unobstructed, continue perpetually to flow with sweet waters, like a horse that is being urged in his speed.

13. Go not ever, Agni, to the sacrifice of any one who injures us; nor to that of a malevolent neighbour; nor to that of an (unnatural) relation: accept not the due (oblation) from an insincere brother: let us not derive enjoyment from the enemy of a friend.

14. Agni, worthily worshipped, conservator, conciliated (by our offerings), protect us with thy protections: enlighten us: entirely extirpate our sin; overcome the great and exulting Rakshasas.

1 Duduhe prishir-udhas: Pri#ni here, according to the comment, is a synonyme of Surya.

2 Alluding to the early morning sacrifice with fire, probably instituted by the Angirasas.
15. Be propitiated, Agni, by these hymns; accept, hero, these (sacrificial) viands (presented) with praises: be pleased, Angiras, by our prayers: may the adoration addressed to the gods exalt thee.

16. Agni, creator, to thee who art wise, acquainted with the past, I address, oh sage, these soliciting mysterious words, (these) ever-to-be-recited poems, together with praises and prayers.

Sókta IV. (IV.)
The deity is Agni, the Rakshas-slayer; the Rishi and metre as before.

1. Put forth thy strength, Agni, as a fowler spreads a capacious snare: proceed like a king attended by his followers on his elephant: thou art the scatterer (of thy foes): following the swift-moving host consume the Rákshasas with thy fiercest flames.

2. Thy swift and errant flames descend (on every side): fierce-shining with vigour consume (the foe):

1 Nivachaná (ni) kávyáni; nitaram vahtavyáni, kavibhih kritáni, those which are made by poets ever to be recited.

2 Rájévímaván ibhena: the latter (ibha) may mean fearless, (host, understood) gatabhayena, or, as usual, hastíná: ama has also different interpretations, a minister, for amátya, or ama, an associate; or sickness, inflicting it on the foe: the verse occurs in the Nirukta, vi. 13, and is explained as in the text; and again in the Yajush, xiii. 9, with, upon the whole, a similar explanation.

3 Trishwim anu prasitim drúndánah is explained by Sáyana, kshipragá manim prakrishtám senám anugachchhan: Yásha puts the two first into the third case, trishvya anu prasityá, but does not give any meaning to the latter: the first he explains quick: Sáyana also gives the reading, and explains the noun by santatayá gatyá, with extended or continuous march: Mahídhara gives prasitá the import it had in the first part of the verse, a net, a snare: this and the three following verses occur in the Yajush, xiii. 10, 13: the explanation occasionally slightly varies.
scatter, Agni, with the ladle (of oblation), scorching flames, and sparks, and brands.

3. Do thou, who art most rapid, direct thy (flames) against opposing (rays),¹ and, unresisted, become the protector of this thy people against the calumniator who is remote or who is nigh: let no malevolent (foe) prevail against us (who are) thy worshippers.

4. Sharp-weaponed Agni, rise up; spread wide (thy flames) against (the Rākshasas); entirely consume the foes: blazing Agni, burn down him who acts as an enemy towards us² like a piece of dry timber.

5. Rise up, Agni, chastise those who overpower us; manifest thy divine energies; slacken the strong (bow strings) of the malignant kings; destroy those (who are hostile), whether kindred or unallied.³

6. He experiences thy good favour, youngest (of the gods), who offers praise to thee, a Brahman, coming quickly (to bestow felicity):⁴ to him are all prosperous days and wealth (of cattle) and treasures: do thou, as the lord of sacrifice, shine upon his dwelling.⁵

² Arātim chakre may also mean who annuls or prevents our donation, one who makes a gift no gift.

⁴ Itvāte brahmaṇe: we have no explanation of the latter except parivriḍhāya, to the greatly augmented.

7. May the liberal man ever be prosperous who propitiates thee with constant oblations and praises: may all the days in his arduous life be prosperous, and may this (his) sacrifice be (productive of reward).

8. I reverence thy good favour, Agni: may this reiterated and resounding hymn convey due praise to thy presence: may we be possessed of good horses and good cars,¹ that we may pay thee homage; and do thou daily bestow upon us riches.

9. May every one of his own accord diligently worship thee, shining in the (hall) morning and evening, every day: thus, sporting in our dwellings, (enjoying) the wealth of (hostile) man, may we with happy hearts worship thee.

10. Thou, Agni, art the protector of him who, possessed of good horses and a golden car, approaches thee with a chariot laden with wealth: thou art the friend of him who gratifies thee by the due performance of hospitality to thee.

11. Invoker (of the gods), youngest (of the deities); possessed of excellent wisdom, through the alliance (with thee produced) by holy texts, which came to me from my father Gotama, I demolish the powerful (demons): do thou, who art the humbler (of foes), be cognizant of our praises.

12. All-wise Agni, may thy protecting (rays), unslumbering, alert, propitious, unslothful, benignant, unwearied, co-operating, having taken their place (at this sacrifice), preserve us.

ferently rendered by some, he the worshipper especially shines over his house, aryo yazamano grihan abhi vișeshena dyotate.

¹ This, according to the scholiast, is metaphorical for may we, being with sons, grandsons, and the like, worship thee.
13. Those thy protecting (rays), Agni, which, beholding (what had chanced), preserved the blind son of Māmatā from misfortune: he, knowing all things, cherished those benevolent (rays), and his enemies, intending to destroy him, wrought him no harm.

14. Agni, who art freed from shame, by thee we are made opulent; by thee we are protected; may we, through thy guidance, attain abundant food: cherisher of truth, destroy both (sorts of calumniators), those who are nigh, those who are far off, and in due course fulfil (our desires).

15. May we propitiate thee, Agni, by this fuel: accept the praise that is recited by us: consume the unadoring Rākshasas; thou who art to be honoured by (thy) friends, preserve us from the reproach of the oppressor and the reviler.

Sūkta V. (V.)

The deity is Agni as Vaiśvānara; the Rishi Vāmadeva; the metre Trishtubh.

Varga I.

1. How may we present rejoicing (fit offerings) to Agni, the showerer (of benefits); to Vaiśvānara, he, who bright with great lustre, sustains the heaven,

---

1 Allusion is made, according to the commentator, to the well-known filthy legend of the birth of Dirghatamas, who, it is here said by Sāyaṇa, recovered his sight by worshipping Agni.

2 Raraksha tān sukrīto vīśvavedas: it is not very clear whether vīśvavedas applies to Agni or to Dirghatamas: Sāyaṇa, by inserting bhavān, your honour, adopts the former, but it seems questionable. with his entire vast and insupportable (bulk), as a pillar (sustains a roof).

2. Reproach not the divine (Agni), who, accepting the oblation, has given this wealth to me, his mortal (worshipper) of mature (intellect); Agni, who is wise, immortal, discriminating, (who is) Vaiśvānara, chief conductor (of rites), the mighty.

3. May Agni, filling both (the middling and most excellent condition), bright shining, of manifold vigour, the showerer of (benefits), the possessor of affluence, (who comprehends) by (his) wisdom the mysterious sacred hymn, as (they track) the footsteps of a (missing) cow, reveal (the sense) to me.²

4. May the sharp-toothed Agni, possessed of excellent wealth, consume with his fierce radiance those (adversaries) who injure the firm and valued glories of the sapient Varuṇa and Mitra.

5. Like women who have no brethren, going (about from their own to their father’s house), women adverse to their lords going astray, so the wicked, false (in thought), false (in speech),³ they give birth to this deep abyss (of hell).⁴

² Sáma-mahi-padam na goh apagūtham vividván agnīr mahyam predu vochan manishām: the detached position of several of these words makes the sense somewhat uncertain; manishām, the scholiast connects with Sáma, and explains it jñatavyam, what is to be known: apagūtham atyantarasyam he would seem to attach to padam, but both renderings are perhaps questionable.
³ Anritāh, mānasasyataraḥhitā; asatyāḥ, vāchikasatyarahitāh.
⁴ Idam padam ajanatā gabhiram, they engender this deep station, that is, according to Sáyana, narakasthānam.
6. Purifier, Agni, bestow on me, not neglecting thy worship, this acceptable and vast (wealth), like a heavy load on a feeble (bearer), together with invigorating food; (wealth), secure, abundant, tangible, and consisting of the seven elements.¹

7. May our (self)-purifying praise, suited to his glory, and accompanied by worship, quickly attain to that omniform (Vaiswánara)² whose swift-ascending brilliant (orb) is stationed on the east of the earth, to mount, like the sun, above the immovable heaven.³

8. What objection (can be offered) to this my assertion, that they affirm that the milk of the kine, which (the milkers) obtain like water, is placed in concealment (by Vaiswánara), and cherishes the excellent and valued expanse of the wide earth.

9. I recognise this adorable assemblage of the great (deities),⁴ which from of old the milk-shedding cow affects, shining above the region of water, (the firmament), in secret; swift gliding, swift moving.

10. Then, radiant in association with the parents, (heaven and earth), he is awakened (to drink) the agreeable secretion of the cow, and the tongue of the

² Vaiswánara is here said to be understood in the sense of the sun, upon the authority of Yáska, or, according to different opinions, the word expresses agni as lightning, or áditya.

assiduous (performer of holy rites), the resplendent showerer (of benefits), approaching the excellent station of the maternal (cow), seeks to drink the milk.

11. Interrogated with respect, I declare the truth, that this (wealth is acquired), JÁTAVEDAS, by the praise of thee: thou rulest over it, (over) all that (it may be), the wealth that is in heaven or on earth.

12. What is the value of this (wealth) to us? what is its advantage? inform us, JÁTAVEDAS, for thou knowest: (tell us) what is the best (course) for us on this secret path, so that we may follow un reproached the direct road.

13. What is the limit, what are the objects, which is the desirable (end) to which we rush like swift (chargers) to the battle? when for us will the divine dawns, the brides of the immortal (sun), overspread (the world) with light.

14. (Men are) not satisfied by unproductive, frivolous, inconclusive, scanty speech; then what, AGNI, do they here say to thee? devoid of the implements (of worship), let them suffer from distress.

15. For the prosperity of this (institutor of the rite), the host (of the flames) of the kindled (AGNI), the showerer (of benefits), the giver of dwellings, has blazed in the hall (of sacrifice); clothed in radiance, beautiful in semblance, and glorified by many, he shines like a man with opulence.\textsuperscript{1}

\textbf{Sókta VI. (VI.)}

The deity is \textit{Agni}, the \textit{Rishi} and metre as before.

\textbf{Varga IV.}

1. \textit{Agni}, ministrant of the sacrifice, do thou who art entitled to worship, be above us in this offering to the gods; for thou prevailest over all that is desirable;\textsuperscript{3} thou inspirest the praise of the worshipper.

2. The unperplexed, the sagacious, exhilarating \textit{Agni}, the ministrant priest, has been placed amongst men for (the celebration of) sacrifices: like the sun, he spreads light above, and props the smoke above the sky like a pillar.

3. The ladle filled (with butter) is prepared: prompt (in act), opulent (with the oblation), the multiplying (priest), conducting (the worship) of the gods, circumambulates (the fire): the newly-trimmed post is set up, the impending shining axe falls upon the victims.

4. When the sacred grass is strewn and the fire is kindled, the \textit{Adhvaryu} rises, propitiating (the gods), and \textit{Agni}, the offerer of the oblation, ancient and multiplying (the offering,) thrice circumambulates (the victim) like a keeper of cattle.\textsuperscript{3}

\textsuperscript{1} \textit{Kshitir-na ráyá}, like a \textit{raja}, or the like, with wealth of cattle and treasure, \textit{ráyásvádá dhanena rájádiriva}.

\textsuperscript{2} \textit{Viścam abhyasi manma}: the last is interpreted by \textit{Sáyaña}, \textit{mananíyam śatrúndám dhanam abhíbhavasi}; thou conquerest the desirable wealth of foes.

\textsuperscript{3} The expression is not very clear, \textit{Paryagnistrivishtyeti}, \textit{Agni} goes round, having thrice returned, \textit{trir-dvītya paryeti}, or \textit{trirhi paryagnih kriyate}, \textit{Agni} is thrice made around, which would imply that the fire was thrice circumambulated: the next
5. Agni, the sacrificer, the exhilarator, the sweet-spoken, the object of sacrifice, moving measuredly, circumambulates (the victim) of his own (accord); the bright (rays) of him (fed) with (sacrificial) food, spread around: all the regions are alarmed when he blazes.

6. Bright-shining Agni, beautiful and suspicious is the semblance of thee, who art terrible and wide-spreading, for (the nights) hide not thy splendour with darkness, nor do the malignant (spirits) inflict any injury on thy person.

7. Of whom, progenitor (of mankind), the benevolence is never checked; whose parents need not urge him to exertion; so that the well-satisfied, purifying Agni shines like a friend amongst men, the descendants of Manu.

8. Agni, whom the twice five sisters dwelling amongst men, the descendants of Manu, have engendered, like females, (awaking) him at dawn, feeding stanza, however, clearly shews that it is Agni who goes round, either the altar or the victim: Sāyana says the latter, parito gachchhati paśum.

1 Asya vājino na ṣohā may also be rendered asvā iva diptayo dravanti, his rays spread fast like horses.

2 Na māturā pitarā nā chid iṣṭau, nor mother and father, i.e. heaven and earth, are quickly powerful in urging him: yasya prashāne kshipram eva na prabhavataḥ, is Sāyana’s interpretation.

3 Mānuṣhīku viśkhu, may mean only human beings.

4 The fingers employed in producing fire by attrition.

5 Uśarbudham atharyo na dantam, striya iva uhasi budh- yamānam havishām bhakshakam: there is no verb, unless jīvanan is borrowed from the first half of the stanza: the meaning of daṇṭa may be also questionable.
on oblations, brilliant, of goodly aspect, and sharp as an axe.

9. Thy horses, Agni, breathing foam, red-coloured, straight-going, well-paced, bright-shining, vigorous, well-membered, and of graceful form, are summoned to the worship of the gods.

10. Those, thy rays, Agni, triumphant, wide-spreading, radiant, adorable, go like hawk-faced horses (to their goal), loud-sounding like the company of the Maruts.

11. Well-kindled Agni, for thee the prayer has been composed:¹ may (the priest) propitiate (thee) by (his) praise: the (sacrificer) offers worship: bestow upon us manifold (wealth): desiring (riches), men sit down adoring Agni, the invoker of the gods, the glorifier of mankind.

Súkta VII. (VII.)

The deity and Rishi as before; the metre of the first stanza is Jagati, of the five following Anushtubh, and of the rest Trishtubh.

Varga VI.

1. This invoker of the gods and minister of frequent worship, who is to be glorified at sacrifices, has been placed first (of the gods) by the performers of the rite:² the Agni whom Apnavána and other Bhrigus³

¹ Akári Brahma, the prayer or praise has been made; rather unfavourable to the doctrine of the uncreated origin of the Veda.
² According to Mahidhara, Yajur-Veda, iii. 15, the Agni here intended is the Ahavaniya which is kindled before the Dakshina.
³ Apnaváno bhrigavah: according to Sáyana, Apnavána is the name of a Rishi of the family of Bhrigu; Mahidhara lighted in the woods for the sake of all men, marvellous (in his acts), and sovereign (over all).

2. When, Agni, is the light of thee, bright-shining, to be manifested; for therefore have mortals accepted thee as to be worshipped amongst mankind.

3. Contemplating thee in every dwelling, truthful, intelligent, (brilliant with sparks) like the sky with stars, the perfecter of all sacrifices.

4. Men have brought, for the sake of all people, the swift messenger of the worshipper (to the gods), who (rules) over all mankind, the manifestor, the resplendent.

5. They (the worshippers) have seated him in his due order, the invoker (of the gods), the intelligent, the agreeable, the purifyingly-radiant, the performer of frequent sacrifice, (brilliant) with seven flames.

6. Him, abiding in the maternal (waters) and in the woods, loved, yet unapproached, wonderful, hidden in a cave, endowed with knowledge, seeking (oblations) from any quarter.

7. Whom, when they desist from slumber, the devout propitiate in the abode of water at every sacrifice: the mighty Agni, to whom oblations are to be offered makes it the plur. apravândâh, and other Rishis, and the Bhrigus: he says it may also mean putravantah, having sons, an epithet of the Bhrigus.

1 Dûtam vivavatâh: the second is explained manushyasya yajamânasya, of the man, of the worshipper.

2 Bhrigavânam-bhriquvad-âcharantam, going like Bhrgu, that is, dipyamânâm-ityarthâ, shining, or being kindled.

3 Vîtam-kântam; aśritam, dhâhabhayâdasevitam, bright or beloved, not honoured or served, through fear of being burnt.

4 Kuchid arthinam: the first is for kvaçît, anywhere, any how; seeking fuel, butter, &c., samiddhâdahavîh swikurvantam.
with reverence, who, truthful always, accepts the sacrifice.

8. Thou who art all-knowing understandest the functions of a messenger (of the gods) at the sacrifice: well informed of both heaven and earth, and the intermediate (firmament), and a most intelligent, ancient, and amplifying envoy, thou goest up the ascents of heaven.

9. Dark is the path of thee who art bright; the light is before thee; thy moving radiance is the chief of (all luminous) bodies: when the present (worshippers) take up the germ (in the sticks of attrition) thou art speedily generated, and becomest indeed the messenger (of the sacrifice).

10. The light of the speedily-generated is visible, and when the wind fans the flame, he (Agni) spreads his blazing tongue amongst the trees, and with his (glowing) teeth consumes the standing (fuel his) food.

11. When quickly, with rapid (radiance), he has carried off his food, the mighty Agni makes (himself) the fleet messenger (of the worshipper); consuming (the fuel), he allies himself with the force of the wind, and as (a horseman) urges his fast steed, so the rapid going Agni invigorates and urges (his flames).

Sūkta VIII. (VIII.)

The deity and Rishi as before, the metre is Gayatri.

1. I propitiate thee with praise, the messenger (of the gods), the omniscient, the bearer of oblations, the immortal, the chief sacrificer.\(^1\)

2. The mighty one knows how to bestow the (desired) wealth (upon the worshipper); he knows the ascents of heaven: may he bring the gods hither.

3. He, the divine (Agni), knows how the gods are to be reverenced: to the sincere (worshipper) in his dwelling he gives the wealth that is desired.

4. He is the invoker (of the gods), comprehending the deity of (their) messenger; and, knowing the ascent of the sky, he travels between earth and heaven.

5. May we be they who propitiate Agni with gifts of oblations, and who, cherishing him, feed him with fuel.

6. They are renowned for riches and for progeny, who, venerating Agni, offer him oblations.

7. May riches, envied by many, devolve upon us day by day, and (abundant) food await us.

8. May the wise Agni entirely obviate by his power the removable (ills) of men the descendants of Manu.¹

Súkta IX. (IX.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Agni, make us happy, for thou art mighty, (thou) who comest to this devout man to sit down on the sacred grass.

2. May that Agni, who is difficult to overcome, who is immortal, who is pre-eminent among men the descendants of Manu, become the messenger of all the gods.

3. He is conveyed into the sacrificial hall as the Hotri to be adored at sacrifices, or as the Potri\(^1\) he sits down (on the sacred grass).

4. Agni may be the officiating priest at the sacrifice,\(^2\) or the master of the house in the sacrificial chamber, or he sits down as the Brahman.

5. Thou, who art the director (of the ceremonial),\(^3\) acceptest the oblations of devoutly-worshipping man the descendants of Manu.

6. Thou art willing (to fulfil) the office of messenger for the mortal whose oblations at the sacrifice thou art pleased to convey.

7. Be pleased by our sacrifice; (be pleased) Angiras, by our offering: hear our invocation.

8. May thy inviolable car, whereby thou defendest\(^4\) the donors of oblations, be everywhere around us.

Súkta X. (X.)

The deity and Rishi as before, the metre is Padapankti.

Varga X.

1. We celebrate thee to day, Agni, who art like a horse (in conveying our burdens) with thy praises,

\(^1\) Two of the sixteen priests are here named: the Hotri is the offerer of the oblation; the function of the Potri doubtful.

\(^2\) Uta gná agnír adhwara: the meaning of gná is, usually, devapatní, a wife of a deity, agreeably to which, one rendering suggested by Sáyana is agnír yáje devapatnír yajati, Agni worships the wives of the gods at the sacrifice; or, as an alternative, gná, as equivalent to gachchhan, going, may designate the adhwaryu, who moves about at the ceremonial.

\(^3\) Upavaktá, the priest who pronounces the formulae of sacrifice, or he may be the Brahmac, or the Sadasya, directing what is to be done.

\(^4\) The verse occurs in the Yajush, III. 36.
conveying (our wishes to the gods), and (who art) like a benefactor, propitious and affectionate.\(^1\)

2. Be now the conveyer, Agni, of our auspicious, powerful, efficacious, truthful, and great sacrifice.

3. Agni, who like the sun art light, propitiated by these our hymns, come to our presence with all thy hosts (of radiance).\(^2\)

4. Glorifying thee, Agni, to day, with these our praises, may we offer thee (oblations): thy (flames), bright as those of the sun, roar aloud.

5. Thy lovely radiance, Agni, whether by day or by night, shines upon (all objects) like an ornament (to give them) beauty.

6. Giver of sustenance, (Agni), thy favour is free from fault, like clarified butter: thy pure and golden lustre shines like an ornament.

7. Truthful Agni, verily thou removest from the mortal who institutes (thy) worship, whatever sin has been committed (by him) of old.

\(^1\) Yajush, xv. 44.: as the text is very elliptical, Mahidhara has a somewhat different explanation: thus, of aswam na, like a horse, he says it alludes to the Áswamedhiha horse, as the priests celebrate him at the sacrifice: Sáyana explains the simile, Agni is the bearer of oblations as a horse is of burthens, bodháram aswamiva tathá havisho váhaham: of the epithet of stomaíth, or ohaíth, both agree in deriving it from vaha, to bear, but one explains it bearing, or causing to acquire, fruit or reward; the other, causing to attain to Indra and the rest, Indrádi prápakáth: kratum na, Sáyana renders upakartéramita, like a benefactor; Mahidhara explains it sacrifice, may we celebrate or augment that thy sacrifice, Agni, with praises, &c.: the verse occurs also Sáma-Veda, i. 434, ii. 1127.

\(^2\) This and the preceding occur Yajur-Veda, xv. 45 and 46, and Sáma-Veda, ii. 1128, 1129.
8. May our friendly and fraternal attentions to you deities prove fortunate; for such (attentions shewn) in every sacrifice (form) our security in the sphere (of the gods).\(^1\)

ANUVÁKA II.
SÚKTA I. (XI.)

The deity and Rishi as before, the metre is Trishtubh.

Varga XI.

1. Powerful Agni, thy auspicious radiance shines upon the proximity of the sun (by day); thy bright and visible (lustre) is conspicuous by night,\(^1\) as the bland and pleasing food (of sacrifice, the oblation) becomes manifest in thy form.

2. Agni, who art engendered repeatedly, and glorified by sacrifice, set open heaven to him who offers thee adoration: resplendent (Agni), bestow upon us that ample and acceptable (wealth), which, radiant (deity), thou, with all the gods, hast given (to other worshippers).

3. The offerings\(^2\) (to the gods) are engendered, Agni, of thee; from thee (proceed) praises; from thee effective prayers; from thee come a vigorous frame and wealth to the man who worships with sincerity and offers oblations.

\(^1\) So Sāyana explains, no nābhik sadane; nābhik, bandhanam, binding or fastening: devānat śtháne, in the place of the gods, and sasminnūdhan, sarvasmiṇ yajña, in every sacrifice.

\(^2\) That is, oblations are to be offered with fire both morning and evening.

\(^3\) काव्याः for काव्यानि is explained by Sāyana, acts in connection with fire, such as bringing the deities, conveying oblations and the like, or it may mean the functions of the adhvaryu; otherwise it might have been thought to refer to the kavya, or offerings to the Pitris or manes.
THIRD ASHTAKA—FIFTH ADHYAYA.

4. From thee, who art vigorous, the conveyer of oblations, the vast, the granter of what is desired, is born (a son) of real strength; from thee comes wealth approved of by the gods, the source of happiness; from thee, Agni, (is obtained) a swift unarrested horse.

5. Immortal Agni, devout mortals worship with holy rites thee the first deity (of the gods), whose tongue exhilarates (them),¹ the dissipator of sin, the humiliator (of the demons),² the lord of the mansion, the unperplexed.

6. Agni, son of strength, since thou protectest (thy worshippers), far (remove) from us all iniquity; far (remove from us) sin; far (from us) all evil thoughts; for prosperous is he of whom thou, who art radiant by night, promotest the well-being.

SÚKTA II. (XII.)

Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. May he who with uplifted ladle kindles thee, and thrice every day presents to thee the (sacrificial) food, knowing thy glory, JÁTAVEDAS, to be invigorated by the act, surpass (all others) in riches.

2. He who, labouring diligently, brings thee fuel, honouring, Agni, thy great glory; he who kindles thee in the evening and at dawn; he, prosperous and destroying his enemies, acquires riches.³

² Damáñasam has various meanings: rakşasám damana-karaṇa manasupetam, being intent on destroying the Rákşasas, having a mind for taming, or a tamed or humble mind, a liberal or a domestic mind.
³ Doshá sivah sahasok suno yam deva & chit sachas swasti: Sáyaṇa refers sivah to Agni, as śivakara, making happy, but then there is no antecedent to yam, whom.
3. Agni is the possessor of great strength, of excellent food, of riches, the youngest (of the gods): abounding in sustenance, he gives to the mortal who worships him precious (wealth) according to (his devotion).

4. If, youngest (of the gods), with the inconsiderateness common to men, we have ever committed any offence against thee, make us free from the defects of earth; efface entirely, Agni, our offences.

5. Let not us, Agni, who are thy friends, ever suffer harm from any great or comprehensive offence against either gods or men: bestow forgiveness upon our sons and grandsons, the reward of what has been well done.

6. Adorable Vasus, in like manner as you have liberated the cow bound by the foot, so set us free entirely from sin; and may our existence, Agni, be prolonged.

Sūkta III. (XIII.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre as before; or the deities may be considered as those specified or alluded to in each stanza.

Varga XIII.

1. Favourably-minded, Agni has manifested (his might) in regard to the wealth-bestowing procession of the resplendent dawns: proceed, Ashwins, to the

1 Brīhatah ksatriyasya is explained by the scholiast, mahato balasya.

2 Aditer anāgān is rendered by Svāyaṇa, bhūmer anāgasah, páparahitán: in what sense the sins of earth, or against the earth, is to be understood, must be a matter of conjecture.

3 Yachchha tokāya, tanayāya, sām yoh: sam the scholiast explains by páparúpdrañvānām pāntim, expiation or pacification of violations of the nature of sin, and: yoh, sukṛitotpāditam sukhāṃ, happiness produced by what is done well.

4 This is apparently a mere paraphrastic announcement that the dawn having appeared the morning fire is to be lighted.
dwelling of the pious (worshipper): the divine sun rises with splendour.

2. The divine Savitri diffuses his light on high, dispersing the dew, and like a vigorous (bull) ardent for the cow: then Varuna, and Mitra, and other (divinities), hasten to (fulfil)\(^1\) their offices when they elevate the sun in the sky.

3. Seven great coursers convey that sun, whom the (deities), occupants of enduring mansions, and not heedless (of their offices), have formed for the driving away of darkness, (and who is) the animator of the whole world.

4. Divine (sun), thou proceedest with most powerful (horses), spreading thy web (of rays), and cutting down the black abode (of night): the tremulous rays of the sun throw off the darkness which is spread like a skin over the firmament.

5. This sun, not far removed, and unobstructed, whether (looking) downwards or looking upwards, is harmed by no one: what is the power by which he travels? who has (truly) beheld him who, as the collective pillar of heaven, sustains the sky?

Sūkta IV. (XVI.)
The deity or deities, the Rishi, and metre as before.

1. The resplendent Agni, by whom all is known, has manifested (his might) in regard to the dawns radiant with lustre: far-going Násatyas, come with your car to this our sacrifice.

2. The divine Savitri displays his banner on high, diffusing light through all worlds: contemplating (all things), the sun has filled heaven and earth and the firmament with his rays.

3. The great and intelligent dawn, variegated with (many-coloured) rays of purple tint, bringing opulence, has come with (her) lustre: the divine Ushas, arousing (the sleepers), proceeds with her well-harnessed car (to distribute) felicity.

4. May those robust and active horses bring you, (Aświns), hither at the breaking of the dawn, and may these Soma juices prepared, showerers (of benefits), for your drinking, exhilarate you at this (our sacrifice).

5. This sun, not far removed and unobstructed, whether looking downwards or looking upwards, is harmed by no one: what is the power by which he travels? who has (truly) beheld him who, as the collective pillar of heaven, sustains the sky.¹

Súkta V. (XV.)
The deity of the first six stanzas is Agni; of the two next Somaka; of the two last the Aświns; the Rishi is Vámadeva, the metre Gáyatrí.

Varga XV.

1. Agni, the invoker (of the gods), like a horse (that bears a burden), is brought to our sacrifice;² a deity adorable amongst deities.

² Pariníyate has, however, a technical import, implying a formal ceremonial, the bringing of the fire taken from the household fire wherewith to light the sacrificial fire, vájí san being a horse; that is, whom they load as a horse bringing a load; Agni being brought to become the bearer of the oblation, havír váhanah.
2. Agni, thrice (a day), comes to our sacrifice like a charioteer, bearing the sacrificial food to the gods.

3. The sage, Agni, the lord of food, has encompassed the oblation,\(^1\) giving precious things to the donor.

4. Radiant is this Agni, the subduer of foes, who is kindled on the (altar) of the east as (he was kindled) for Sriniyaja\(^2\) the son of Devavata.

5. May the mortal who is strenuous (in worship) acquire authority over this Agni, the sharp-rayed, the showerer (of benefits).

6. They diligently worship him daily who is like a horse (to convey oblations), who is liberal and resplendent as the son of heaven, (the sun).

7. When the prince, the son of Sahadeva, promised (to present) me with two horses, I withdrew not when called before him;\(^3\)

8. But immediately accepted those two excellent and well-trained horses from the prince, the son of Sahadeva.

9. Divine Aswins, may this prince, Somaka, the son of Sahadeva, your (worshipper), enjoy long life.

10. Divine Aswins do you two make the prince, the son of Sahadeva, long-lived.

1. May the truthful Maghavan, the accepter of the spiritless Soma, come to us; may his horses hasten to us: to him we offer this sacrifice, the very potent beverage: may he grant the fulfilment of our desires.

2. Hero, Indra, set us free to-day to give thee exhilaration at this sacrifice, as (they let loose a horse) at the end of the road: may the worshipper, like Usanas, repeat an acceptable prayer to thee, the knower (of all things), the destroyer of the Asuras.

3. Like a sage (knowing) what is hidden, and fulfilling sacred rites, so the showerer (of benefits), quaffing copiously the effused (libation), exults (in the draught), and this generates the seven efficient (rays) from heaven, which, being glorified, have made (manifest) the objects of (human) perception by day.

4. When the vast luminous heaven manifested by the rays (of light) is displayed, then are (the deities) resplendent according to (their heavenly) abode: the chief of leaders, (Indra), in his approach has scattered the thick glooms so that men may see.

5. Indra, the accepter of the stale Soma, sustains infinite greatness, and has filled both heaven and earth by his magnitude: therefore has the vastness of him who has surpassed all the regions, exceeded (the world).

2 Aṣijanat sapta hārūn ahnā chich-chakrur vayunā griñantah is rather obscure: it is explained by the scholiast as in the text.
3 The scholiast says Sūrya, but this can only be as identical with Indra, to whom the hymn is addressed.
6. Knowing all things profitable for men, Sakra has, with his willing friends (the Maruts), sent forth the waters, for they, with (loud) shouts, divided the clouds, and, desiring (to fulfil) their office, set open the pasturage of the cows (of the Angiras).

7. Thy protecting thunderbolt has slain Vritra, obstructing the (issue of the waters), the conscious earth (co-operating) with (thee): valiant hero, preserver (of the regions), send down by thy strength the waters of the firmament.

8. Invoked of many, when thou hadst divided the cloud for (the escape of) the waters, Saramá appeared before thee; and thou, the bringer of abundant food, hast shewn us favour, dividing the clouds and glorified by the Angiras.

9. Maghavan, who art honoured by men, thou hast repaired to the presence of the sage\(^1\) for (the sake of) bestowing (upon him) wealth, and when soliciting (thee) in his need (for aid): defending (him) with thy protection, the guileful, impious Dasyu has been destroyed in the contest for the spoil.

Thou goest with Kutsa in the same chariot, determined to defend him; (thou who art) the tormentor (of foes), the lord of horses (of the speed) of the wind: on the same day wherein, yoking (to the car) the straight-going steeds, as if to receive food, the sage (Kutsa) has been enabled to cross over (the sea) of calamity.

12. For Kutsa, thou hast slain the unhappy Sushna, and, in the forepart of the day, attended by thousands, (thou hast slain) Kuyava with the thunderbolt: thou hast swiftly destroyed the Dasys, and thou hast cut them to pieces in the battle, with the wheel (of the chariot of) the sun.

13. Thou hast subjugated Pipru and the mighty Mrigaya for the sake of Rijiswan the son of Vidathin; thou hast slain the fifty thousand Krishnas; and, as old age (destroys) life, thou hast demolished the cities (of Sambara).

Sūkta VII. (XVII.)
The deity and Rishi as before; the metre is also the same, except in the fifteenth verse, in which it is Vīrāṭ.

Varga XXI.

1. Thou, Indra, art mighty; the vast earth confesses to thee (thy) strength, as doth the heaven: thou hast slain Vṛitra by thy vigour, thou hast set free the rivers arrested by Ahi.

2. At the birth of thee who art resplendent, trembled the heaven (and) trembled the earth through fear of thy wrath; the mighty clouds were confined; they destroyed (the distress of drought), spreading the waters over the dry places.

3. The subduer of foes, manifesting his energy and hurling his thunderbolt, shattered the mountain by his strength: he slew Vṛitra with the thunderbolt, exulting, and the waters whose obstructor was destroyed rushed forth with rapidity.

\(^1\) Bṛigavo na ratham is all we have in the text; the scholiast explains the first dīptās-tahāṇaḥ, bright or dexterous carpenters: the object of the comparison is not very obvious, but apparently it intends, that as a wheelwright makes a chariot for a special purpose, so the worshipper performs worship in order to secure Indra’s favour.

\(^2\) Ahāri Brāhma: the phrase has occurred before, see Sūkta 6, verse 2.
4. Heaven, thy progenitor, conceived (I have obtained) a worthy son; the maker of Indra was the accomplisher of a most excellent work: he who begot the adorable (Indra), armed with the thunderbolt, irremovable from his station, and endowed with greatness.

5. All men, praising the munificence of the divine Maghavan, verily glorify him who alone casts down many, Indra, the king of men, the adored of many.

6. Truly are all libations his; the inebriating draughts are truly most exhilarating to the mighty Indra: truly art thou the lord of wealth, of (all sorts of) treasures: thou, Indra, supportest all people by the gift (of riches).

7. (We praise) the slayer of many foes, the courageous, the discomfiter (of enemies), the great, the unbounded, the showerer (of benefits), the wielder of the bright thunderbolt, him who is the destroyer of Vritra, the bestower of food, the giver of wealth, Maghavan the possessor of riches.

9. This Maghavan, who destroys assembled hosts, is he who is renowned as chief in battles: he brings the food which he bestows (upon the worshipper): may we be held dear in his friendship.

10. This (Indra), is renowned, whether conquering or slaying (his foes), or whether in conflict he recovers the cattle: when Indra truly entertains anger, all that is stationary or moveable is in fear of him.

17. Be our preserver, thou who art looking (benevolently upon) all; a kinsman (to us); a supervisor (of all things), a bestower of felicity on those who are worthy (to offer) libations; a friend, a protector, a defender in the highest degree amongst defenders, a creator: (be thou, who bestowest) the world of heaven upon him who desires it, the giver to us of food.

18. Regard thyself as a protector of those who desire thy friendship; be a friend deserving of commendation: grant, Indra, food to him who praises (thee): suffering difficulties, we make our supplications to thee, worshipping thee with these holy rites.

19. When Indra, the possessor of opulence, is glorified, he singly destroys many unyielding foes: the worshipper is dear to him (who relies) on his protection, and neither gods nor men molest him.

20. The many-voiced Indra, the possessor of opulence, the supporter of men, the irresistible, bestows upon us, when praised by us, assured (rewards): thou, (Indra), art the king of men: grant to us abundantly that great fame which (is due) to (thy) worshipper.

21. Glorified (in the past), glorified, Indra, at present, satisfy thy worshipper with food, as rivers (are filled with water): lord of horses, a new hymn has been made for thee: may we, possessed of chariots, be ever diligent in thy praise.¹

Sūkta VIII. (XVIII.)

Indra, Aditi, and Vāmadeva are both the deities and Rishis of the Sūkta, as it consists of a dialogue amongst them: the metre is Tristubh.

1. Indra speaks.] This is the old and recognised

¹ The same as the last verse of the preceding Sūkta.
path by which all the gods are born; so, when full-grown, let him be born in the same manner; let him not cause the loss of this his mother.¹

2. Vāmadeva speaks.] Let me not come forth by this path, for it is difficult (of issue): let me come forth obliquely from the side: many acts unperformed by others are to be accomplished by me: let me contend (in war) with one (enemy), in controversy with one opponent.

3. He, (Indra), has asserted (that it will) cause the death of my mother: let me not proceed by the usual way, but proceed quickly, according (to my will: in the dwelling of Twashtṛi Indra drank the costly Soma from the vessels of the offerers.²

4. Aditi speaks.] What irregular act has he committed whom (I, his mother,) bore for a thousand months and for many years? there is no analogy between him and those who have been or will be born.³

¹ According to the legend recited by Sāyana, the Rishi, Vāmadeva, whilst yet in the womb, was reluctant to be born in the usual manner, and resolved to come into the world through his mother's side: aware of his purpose, the mother prayed to Aditi, who thereupon came, with her son Indra, to expostulate with the Rishi: this is the subject of the Sūkta: the interesting part of this absurd story is its accordance with the birth of Sākya, according to the Buddhists, who may possibly have borrowed the notion from the Veda.

² Here, Sāyana observes, Vāmadeva vindicates his own wilfulness by the example of Indra, who came to Twashtṛi's house uninvited, and, by force, drank the Soma prepared for other gods.

³ Aditi defends her son upon the plea that, as his period of gestation was marvellous, his actions are not to be compared with those of any others.
5. Deeming it disreputable (that he should be brought forth) in secret, his mother endowed (Indra) with (extraordinary) vigour: therefore, as soon as born he sprung up of his own accord, invested with splendour, and filled both heaven and earth.

6. These (rivers) flow murmuring as if, being filled with water, they were uttering sounds (of joy): ask them what is this they say; what is the encompassing cloud that the waters break through?

7. What do the sacred expiatory strains declare to me? the waters receive the reproach of Indra: my son has slain Vr̥itra with the mighty thunderbolt: he has set those rivers free.

8. Vāmadeva speaks.] Exulting, the youthful mother brought thee forth: exulting, Kushavā swallowed thee: exulting, the waters gave delight to the infant: Indra, exulting, rose up by his strength.

2 That is, they are proclaiming the greatness of Indra, by which, and not by their own efforts, they have been extricated from the cloud.

3 Kimśu svād asmaṁ nivido bhananti; the Nivids are certain verses repeated at some sacrifices to Indra and the Maruts in their honour, and are tantamount to an acquittal of the charge imputed to Indra, and here anticipated by Aditi of brahmanicide, Vṛitra being a brahman: the crime was transferred to the waters in the shape of foam: these explanations are rather, perhaps, derived from the Paurāṇik developements of the original legends, imperfectly handed down.

4 The rest of the Sūkta is by the Rishi in praise of Indra.

5 The commentator says a Rākṣasi, whom Indra, although at first swallowed by her, drove out of the lying-in chamber.
9. Vyānsa, exulting and striking (hard blows), smote thee, Maṅghavan, upon the jaw; whereupon, being so smitten, thou provedst the stronger, and didst crush the head of the slave with the thunderbolt.

10. As a heifer bears a calf, his mother, (Aditi), bore Indra, mature (in years), strong, irresistible, vigorous, energetic, invincible, (destined) to follow his own course, heedful of his person.

11. His mother inquired of the mighty Indra, have these deities deserted thee, my son? then Indra said, Viṣṇu, my friend, (if thou) purpose slaying Vṛitra, exert thy greatest prowess.

12. Who has made thy mother a widow? who has sought to slay the sleeping and the waking? what deity has been more gracious than thou, since thou hast slain the father, having seized him by the foot?¹

13. In extreme destitution I have cooked the entrails of a dog:² I have not found a comforter among the gods: I have beheld my wife disrespected: then the falcon,³ (Indra), has brought to me sweet water.

² Yat prākṣhīnāṁ pitaram pādagrihiya: the particulars of this incident are not related by Sāyana, who contents himself with saying the allusions are variously explained by Taittiriyaśas—Taittiriya Sanhitā, vi. 1. iii. 6.
³ So Manu has, Vāmadeva, who well knew right and wrong, was by no means rendered impure, though desirous, when oppressed with hunger, of eating the flesh of dogs for the preservation of his life, x. 106: ichchhan attum, wishing to eat, might be considered equivocal, but the text here states  şuṇa āntrāṇi peche, I cooked the entrails of a dog.

THIRD ASHTAKA—SIXTH ADHYÁYA. 157

ADHYÁYA VI.

SÓKTA IX. (XIX.)
The deity is Indra; the Rishi Vámadeva; the metre Trishíthubh.

1. Indra, wielder of the thunderbolt, all the protecting deities who are reverently invoked, and both the heaven and the earth, glorify thee who art verily one alone, mighty, vast, and pleasing of aspect, for the destruction of Vṛitra.

2. As elders (send forth their young), so the gods have sent thee (against Vṛitra); thence thou becamest, Indra who art the abode of truth, the sovereign of the world: thou hast slain the slumbering Áhi for (the release of) the water, and hast marked out (the channels of) the all delighting rivers.

3. On the day of full moon\(^1\) thou hast slain with the thunderbolt the insatiable, unnerved, ignorant, unapprehending, slumbering Áhi, obstructing the gliding-downward-flowing (streams).

4. Indra, by his strength, has agitated the exhausted firmament, as wind, by its violent (gusts, agitates) the water: exulting in his strength, he has divided the solid (clouds), and has shattered the peaks of the mountains.

5. The Maruts have hastened to thee like mothers to their young: like chariots they have rushed in along (with thee); thou, Indra, hast satisfied the flowing streams; thou hast shattered the clouds: thou hast set free the obstructed rivers.

\(^1\) Aparvan is the phrase of the text, explained paurṇamāsyám.
6. Thou hast made the vast, all-cherishing, and exuberant earth, delighted with (abundant) food, and tremulous water, for (the sake of) Turviti and Vayya: thou hast made the rivers easy to be crossed.

7. Indra has filled the youthful rivers, the parents of plenty, the corroders (of their banks), like armies destructive (of their foes): he has inundated the dry lands, and (satisfied) the thirsty travellers: he has milked the barren cows whom the Asuras had become the lords of.²

8. Having slain Vritra, he has liberated many mornings and years (that had been) swallowed up by darkness, and has set the rivers free: Indra has released the imprisoned rivers, encompassed (by the cloud), to flow upon the earth.

9. Lord of horses, thou hast brought the son of Agrú from his dwelling, where he was being devoured by the ants: when extricated, although blind, he distinguished the serpent; and when he came forth the joints that had been sundered in the ant-hill were restrung.⁶

10. The sage, (Vámadeva), knowing, royal Indra,

² Adhok staryo dansupatnìh, that is, he has removed the barreness occasioned by the grief of their separation by rescuing the cattle carried off by the Pañci.
³ The commentator has only a certain female, Agrú náma káchit.
⁴ Vamribhir-adánam, upajihvikábhir-adyamánam: Sáyana evidently understands by upajihviká, the white ant, as he explains, nivesanád, valmikákhyát sthánát: valmíka is the familiar term for a hilllock thrown up by the insect.
⁵ Ahim, explained sarpam: the presence of a snake in an ant-hill is still a popular notion.
⁶ The phraseology is partly doubtful: udbhachhit samaránta the ancient deeds of thee who art all-wise, has proclaimed the actions, such as thou hast performed them, generative of rain, self-evolved, and beneficial to man.

Súkta X. (XX).

The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. May the illustrious Indra, the granter of desires, come to us, whether from afar or nigh, for our protection: he who is the lord of men, armed with the thunderbolt, overcoming his foes in conflict and in combats, (attended) by the most illustrious (Maruts).

2. May Indra, looking down upon us, come with his steeds to our presence for our protection and enrichment: may the mighty thunderer, the possessor of wealth, (aiding us) in battle, be present at this our sacrifice.²

3. Thou, Indra, placing us before thee, shalt receive this sacrifice, our holy offering; and as the huntsman (kills his game), may we, thy worshippers, holder of the thunderbolt, for the acquirement of riches through thee, be victorious in battle.

4. INDRA, the giver of food, be near to us, favourably disposed; and, anxious for our (good), drink of the effused, prepared, exhilarating Soma, and be pleased by the (sacrificial) food (offered) with the noon-day hymn.¹

5. Like a man boasting of his wife, I glorify that INDRA who is invoked of many, who is hymned by recent sages, (who is) like a tree with ripe fruit, like a victorious (warrior), skilful in arms.

6. He who is vast and self-sustained like a mountain, the radiant and formidable INDRA, born of old for the destruction (of the foes of the gods), the wielder of the ancient thunderbolt, charged with splendour, like a jar (filled) with water.

7. Of whom there is no opposer by (reason of) his birth, nor any destroyer of the wealth that accomplishes (pious works): powerful and resplendent (INDRA), the invoked of many, do thou who art the showerer (of benefits) bestow upon us riches.

8. Thou rulest over the riches and the dwellings of men; thou art the rescuer of the herd of cattle; thou art the giver of instruction, the smiter in battles, and the distributor of great heaps of riches.

9. By what wisdom is he who is most wise renowned? by that wherewith the mighty INDRA repeatedly does (great things): he is the especial effacer of the manifold sin of the worshipper, and bestows wealth upon his adorer.

10. Harm us not, but cherish us, Indra: bestow upon us that abundant wealth which it is thine to give to the donor (of the oblation): praising thee, we celebrate thee at this sacred rite, which is new and excellent, and (at which the oblation) is proper to be presented.

11. Glorified (in the past), glorified, Indra, at present, satisfy thy worshipper with food, as rivers (are filled with water): lord of horses, a new hymn has been made for thee: may we, possessed of chariots, be ever delighted in (thy) praise.

Sūkta XI. (XXI.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. May Indra come to us for our protection, and being praised (by us), may the mighty hero be exhilarated along with (us)\(^1\) at this rite; he whose energies are many: may he, like the radiant sun,\(^2\) recruit his own overpowering vigour.

2. Glorify the powerful leaders\(^3\) of that renowned and opulent (Indra), whose victorious and protecting energy rules over men, like a universal sovereign entitled to veneration.

3. May Indra, accompanied by the Maruts, come quickly for our protection, from the heaven, from the earth, from the firmament, or from the waters; from

9. Thy auspicious hands, Indra, are the doers of good deeds: thy two hands, Indra, are the extenders of wealth to him who praises thee: what, Indra, is this delay? why dost thou not exhilarate us? why art thou not delighted to make us gifts?

10. Thus (glorified), Indra, who is faithful (to his word), the lord of wealth, the slayer of Vritra, bestows riches on man;\(^3\) so thou, the praised of many, give us riches for our pious acts, that I may eat of thy divine food.

\(^1\) This verse is somewhat obscurely expressed: the purport, according to the scholiast, is, that the might of Indra always protects his worshipper, Indrasya balam sarvadā yajamānam pálayati.

\(^2\) Vidat gaurasya gavayasya gohe: vidat here has no government, and goha for griha, a dwelling, is a strange term as applicable to the Gaura and Gavaya which Sâyana says, are two species of mrīga, a deer, or any wild animal; but they are in fact two kinds of wild cattle, Bos-gavaeus, or Gavaeus-frontalis, and Bibos gaurus, or B. cavifrons, confounding the latter also with the Bibos asil of Silhet: the purport of the expression, according to the scholiast, is, that Indra obtains those two animals tau dvau pasū labhate, either for himself as sacrificial flesh, or for his worshippers, some of whom, at least, even now, would not object to eat the flesh of the wild oxen.

\(^3\) Varivah púrave kah, manushyáya dhanam karoti: it might be thought to refer to a descendant of Puru, but the first vowel of Puru is short.

Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Since the great and mighty Indra is propitiated by our (oblations), since he desires (them) from us, may he, the possessor of opulence, who comes wielding the thunderbolt by his strength, accept the (sacrificial) food, the hymn, the Soma libation, and the prayers.¹

2. The showerer (of benefits), casting with his hands the quadrangular bolt that causes rain, fierce, the chief of leaders, the achiever of (glorious) acts, is desirous of the prosperity of the investing Parushn̄ī ² (river), whose (bordering) districts he has frequented through regard.³

3. Who divine, most divine, as soon as born (was

¹ Alluding to the four-fold forms of offering worship, Brahma, Stoma, Soma, and Uktha: the first is said to be the cakes steeped in butter and the like offerings or oblations; the second, the praise that is recited aloud; the third, the libation of the Soma juice; and the fourth, the praise or prayer that is repeated silently or in a lower tone, not haunted or sung.

² Urnām parushn̄ī is explained dēkhādikām parvavatām nādām, the river having joints or bends covering—the comment does not say what.

endowed) with abundant viands, and great energies, holding in his arms the willing thunderbolt, and causing by his strength (both) heaven and earth to tremble.

4. All the high places, and the many low places, the heaven and the earth, trembled (through fear) of the mighty (INDRA) at his birth: the strong (INDRA) cherishes the parents of the moving (sun), and the winds, like men, make a noise in their peregrination.

5. Of thee, INDRA, who art mighty, great are the deeds, and to be proclaimed at all sacrifices, inasmuch as, high-minded hero, thou, sustaining (the world), hast by thy strength slain AHI with the resistless thunderbolt.

6. Most powerful INDRA, all these, thy exploits, are verily true: (through fear of thee), the showerer (of benefits), the cows shed (milk) from their udders: then, benevolent-minded (INDRA), the rivers, fearing thee, flow with rapidity.

7. Then, INDRA, lord of horses, the divine sister (rivers) praise (thee) for thy protection when thou didst set them free to flow, after having been impeded (by VIITRA) through a long confinement.

8. The exhilarating Soma juice has been expressed: now may the current flow to thee, and may the expiatory power of the illustrious utterer of praise be directed towards us, as the quick rider holds firmly the reins of the steed.³

² The phraseology is very obscure in some parts: śāmī śaśa-mānasya saktih is explained by Sāyana, śamanam tvadhān stuti karma, but what this means, especially in connection with
9. Enduring Indra, bestow upon us energies, excellent, superior, powerful: bring under subjection to us enemies deserving of death: demolish the weapon of the malevolent man.

10. Hear our praises, Indra, and bestow upon us many kinds of food: fulfil all our desires, and know thyself, Maghavan, to be to us the donor of cattle.

11. Glorified (in the past), glorified, Indra, at present, satisfy thy worshipper with food, as rivers (are filled with water): lord of horses, a new hymn has been made for thee: may we, possessed of chariots, be ever diligent in (thy) praise.

Sūkta II. (XXIII.)
Deity, Rishi, and metre as before; or the deity of the third, ninth, and tenth verses may be Rita.

Varga IX.

1. In what manner may (any one) extol the mighty Indra? at the sacrifice of what worshipper may he, propitiated, be present, drinking the sacrificial Soma beverage, desirous of the (sacred) food, and pleased (by the oblation)? the mighty Indra is borne (to the rite) for the purpose of bestowing brilliant wealth.

2. What hero has enjoyed his fellowship (in battle)? who has been a sharer in his benevolent thoughts? when does any one appreciate his wonderful bounty? when is he (present) for the promotion of the prosperity of the man who glorifies and worships him?

3. How is it that Indra hears (the worshipper) who invokes him? and, hearing, how does he know his necessities? what are his gifts of old; why have they termed him the fulfiller (of the desires) of him who offers praise?

what follows, asmadryah susuchánasya yamyá, it is difficult to say.
4. How does he who glorifies INDRA, and is diligent in his worship, although encountering opposition, obtain from him wealth? may the divine INDRA be the appreciator of my praises, when accepting the sacrificial food he is propitiated towards me.

5. When, in what manner, at the dawning of this morning, has the divine INDRA accepted the friendship of a mortal? when, and in what manner, (is) his friendship (manifested) to the friends who have spread out the desirable and suitable (offering) before him?

6. May we in any manner proclaim thy friendship for thy friends? when may (we make known) thy fraternal regard? the efforts of the well-looking INDRA are for the happiness of all: the wonderful form of the moving (INDRA) is, like the sun, ever wished for.

7. Resolving to kill the oppressing, malevolent (Rákshasi),¹ not acknowledging INDRA, he sharpened his sharp weapons for (her) destruction, and the fierce (INDRA), the canceller of debts, has kept afar the unknown dawns in which the debts (are to be paid).

8. Many are the waters of Rita:² the adoration of Rita destroys iniquities; the intelligent and brilliant

² Rita ordinarily means sacrifice, or truth, or water: here it may apply, according to Sáyana, to Indra, or to Aditya, or to the three former personified as divinities; the following stanzas are a succession of changes on the word.
praise of \textit{Rita} has opened the deaf (ears) of man.

9. Many are the stable, sustaining, delightful forms of the embodied \textit{Rita}: by \textit{Rita} are (the pious) expectant of food; by \textit{Rita} have the kine entered into the sacrifice.\footnote{As presents made to the officiating priests; or the phrase may mean also, the rays of light have entered into the water, \textit{gáva ritam ávivesuk, rasmaya udakam ávivesuk.}}

10. The (worshipper) subjecting \textit{Rita} (to his will) verily enjoys \textit{Rita}: the strength of \textit{Rita} is (developed) with speed, and is desirous of (possessing) water: to \textit{Rita} belong the wide and profound heaven and earth: supreme milch kine, they yield their milk to \textit{Rita}.

11. Glorified (in the past), glorified, \textit{Indra}, at present, satisfy thy worshipper with food, as rivers (are filled with water): lord of horses, a new hymn has been made for thee: may we, possessed of chariots, be ever diligent in thy praise.

\textbf{Sókta III. (XXIV.)}

\textit{Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.}

\textbf{Varga XII.}

1. What suitable praise may bring the son of strength, \textit{Indra}, before us, to give us wealth: the hero, the lord of cattle, is the donor, oh man, of the wealth of his adversaries to him who glorifies him.

2. He, \textit{Indra}, is to be invoked for the destruction of \textit{Vrītra}: he, the deservedly praised, is to be worshipped: the real donor of wealth, he, \textit{Maghavan}, gives wealth, (acquired) in battle, to the mortal who offers him prayer and libations.

\footnote{\textit{Ritasya susmas-turayá-u-gavyuh}: is rather enigmatic: the scholiast explains it as in the text, \textit{sushmo, balam, turayas tūrnam-gavyuh-u-chárthē; jalahámascha bhavati.}}
3. Men verily call upon him in battle: the (devout) inflicting of austerity upon their persons constitute him their preserver: when both (the worshipping and the priest) approach together the bountiful Indra, men (succeed) in (obtaining) the gift of sons and grandsons.

4. Powerful Indra, men variously dispersed, come mutually together to celebrate sacred rites for the sake of obtaining rain: when men who are combatants assemble in battle, there are some of them who rely upon Indra.

5. Thereupon some verily worship the powerful (Indra); thereupon one man prepares the buttered cake that he may offer it to (Indra); thereupon the offerer of the Soma he distinguishes from him who presents no libation; thereupon some one rejoices to worship the showerer (of benefits).

6. Indra bestows wealth upon him who offers a libation to him, desiring it, though in another sphere; and, with an humble mind, makes him who is devoted to him his friend in combats.

7. Indra accepting graciously the praises of his devoted (worshipper), who to-day pours out the libation to him, who toasts the buttered cakes, or fries the barley for Indra, exercises towards him the power that grants his desires.

8. When the destroyer (of enemies) distinguishes a mortal foe; when the lord is engaged in the long

1. Rīrīkvardas-tanvah, are explained by Sāyāṇa, swahiyani sarirāni tapasā rechayanto yajamānāh, worshippers emaciating their own bodies by penance: if correctly interpreted, therefore, we have the ascetic penances of the Hindus, recognised by the text of the Veda.
(continued) battle, (his) bride summons to the dwelling the showerer (of benefits), encompassed by the offerers of the libation.

9. A man has realized a small price for an article of great value, and again coming (to the buyer he says) this has not been sold; I require the full price; but he does not recover a small price by a large (equivalent): whether helpless or cleve. they adhere to their bargain..

10. Who buys this, my Indra, with ten milch kine? when he shall have slain (your) foes, then let (the purchaser) give him again to me.

1 Dirgham yad ájim abhyakhyad arya: Sáyána explains arya by svámi, lord, that is, Indra; and Patni, in the following passage, he says, is Indra's wife; but it would be more consistent with the concluding passage to render arya as the name of the orthodox Hindu, in whose behalf his wife propitiates Indra.

2 The text is bhuyasá vasnam acharat kaniyas: lit. by much a man acquires a little, wealth or value: kaschid panyena dravyena alpataram múlyam prápnuti: the kaschit must be understood, therefore, of the vendor, which is consistent with what follows in this and the next verse: the meaning of this and the following verse is thus explained, according to Sáyána, by ancient ácháryás, skilled in religious doctrines: one (a vendor) who takes a small price for valuable goods, comes afterwards to the buyer, and says, this has not been sold by me, and, so saying, he requires the balance of the price; but he, the vendor, does not recover the full price, nor does he get back the article: according to the bargain between them it may not be otherwise: the sale has taken place, and if the bargain has been kept, then it has only to be considered that such is the object of the price, and that is the conclusion: a bargain has been made, and the (stipulated) price given; therefore, in the first place, an agreement is to be made by me: so reflecting, Vámadeva, having by much praise got Indra into his possession or subjugation, purposes to make a bargain when about to dispose of him, as in verse 10.
11. Glorified (in the past), glorified, Indra, at present, satisfy thy worshipper with food; as rivers (are filled with water): lord of horses, a new hymn has been made for thee: may we, possessed of chariots, be ever diligent in thy praise.

Sūkta IV. (XXV.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. What friend of man, or worshipper of the gods, deserving the friendship of Indra, has to day enjoyed (it)? or what offerer of the libation on the kindled fire praises him (sufficiently) for his great and unbounded protection?

2. Who has reverenced with (suitable) words the (deity) worthy of the libation? who is devoted (to him)? who supports the cattle (given by him)? who desires the society of Indra? who his friendship? who his fraternity? who (has recourse) to the sage Indra for protection?

3. Who solicits to-day the protection of the gods? who glorifies the Ādityas, Aditi, light?¹ of whose effused libation do the Āświns, Indra, Agni, drink at will, propitiated by his praise?

4. May Agni, the bearer of oblations, grant him felicity, and long behold the rising sun (in the dwelling of him)² who says, let us offer libations to Indra, leader (of rites), the friend of man, the chief leader amongst leaders.

5. Him neither many nor few can molest: may

¹ Jyotir; but the commentator explains it water; Jyotir udakam.

² That is, may the sacred fire long be kindled in the house of the sacrificer at the hour of sunrise.
Aditi grant him infinite happiness: the performer of pious acts is dear (to Indra): dear to Indra is he whose mind is intent upon him; dear is he who approaches him with homage; dear to him is the offerer of the libation.

6. This hero, Indra, the prompt discomfiter (of foes), who is to be approached with homage, grants special maturity to the presenter of the libation: he is not the kinsman, nor friend, nor relative, of him who offers no oblation (to him): he is difficult of access, and the punisher of him who repeats not (his) praise.

7. (Indra), the drinker of the effused Soma, contracts no friendship with the wealthy trader who offers not any libation; he takes away his wealth; destroys him when destitute; but he is a special (friend) to him who presents the libation and oblation.

8. The most exalted, the most humble (invoke) Indra; the middle (classes) invoke Indra; those going, those stopping, (invoke) Indra; those dwelling at home, those going to battle, (invoke) Indra; men needing food invoke Indra.

Sūkta V. (XXVI.)
The deity of the three first stanzas is said to be either Indra or Paramātma: in the first case the Rishi is Vāmadeva, in the second Indra: the deity of the other verses is the Syena or Hawk: Vāmadeva is the Rishi; the metre is Trishtubh.

I have been Manu and Sūrya: I am the wise Rishi, Kakshivat: I have befriended Kutsa, the son of Ārjuni: I am the far-seeing Usanas; so behold me.

1 This and the two following verses are attributed either to Indra or to Vāmadeva: in the latter case it is said the sage uttered them while yet in the womb, knowledge of truth being generated in him, and enabling him to identify himself with universal ex-
2. I gave the earth to the venerable (Manu): I have bestowed rain upon the mortal who presents (oblations); I have let forth the sounding waters: the gods obey my will.

3. Exhilarated (by the Soma beverage) I have destroyed the ninety and nine cities of Sambara; the hundredth I gave to be occupied by Divodasa when I protected him, Atithigva, at his sacrifice.

4. May this bird, Maruts, be pre-eminent over (other) hawks, since with a wheelless car the swift-winged bore the Soma, accepted by the gods, to Manu.

5. When the bird, intimidating (its guardians), carried off from hence (the Soma) it was at large: (flying) swift as thought along the vast path (of the firmament), it went rapidly with the sweet Soma plant, and the hawks thence acquired celebrity in this world.

6. The straight-flying hawk, conveying the Soma plant from afar; the bird, attended by the gods, brought, resolute of purpose, the adorable, exhilarating Soma, having taken it from that lofty heaven.

7. Having taken it, the hawk brought the Soma with him to a thousand and ten thousand sacrifices, and this being provided, the performer of many (great) deeds; the unbewildered (INDRA) destroyed, in the ex- hilaration of the Soma, (his) bewildered foes.

Sūkta VI. (XXVII.)

The deity is the Hawk, or Parabrahma under that personifica- tion; the Rishi is VAMADEVA; the metre is Trishtubh, ex- cept in the last verse, in which it is Sakvari.

1. Being still in the germ, I have known all the births of these divinities in their order: a hundred bodies of iron confined me, but as a hawk I came forth with speed.

2. That embryo did not besouel me into satisfaction, but by the keen energy (of divine wisdom), I tri- umphed over it: the impeller of all, the sustainer of many, abandoned the foes (of knowledge), and, ex- panding, passed beyond the winds (of worldly troubles).

3. When the hawk screamed (with exultation) on his descent from heaven, and (the guardians of the Soma) perceived that the Soma was (carried away) by it, then, the archer Krisānu, pursuing with the speed of thought, and stringing his bow, let fly an arrow against it.

1 That is, according to the scholiast, until the sace comprehended the difference between the body and soul, and learned that soul was unconfined, he was subject to repeated births; but in this stage he acquired divine knowledge, and burst through his bonds with the force and celerity of a hawk from its nest; as the Nātimanjari says, Vamadeva syanarupam āsthāya gar- bhād-yogena nīśrītah, Vamadeva, having assumed the form of a hawk, came forth from the womb by the power of Yoga.

2 The Paramātma, or Supreme Spirit.

3 The vital airs, or life, the cause of worldly existence, which is pain.

4 The Aitareya-Brāhmaṇa, as above mentioned, narrates this incident in the same manner.
4. The straight-flying nawk carried off the Soma from above the vast heaven, as (the Aswins carried off) Bhujyu from the region of Indra, and a falling feather from the middle of the bird dropped from him wounded in the conflict.¹

5. Now may Maghavan accept the pure nutritious (sacrificial) food in a white pitcher, mixed with milk and curds, offered by the priests; the upper part of the sweet (beverage) to drink for his exhilaration: may the hero accept (it) to drink for (his) exhilaration.

Sūkta VII. (XXVIII.)

The deities are Indra and Soma; Ṛishi and metre as before.

1. Through that friendship, Soma, which has united thee with thy (friend) Indra, he has made the waters flow for man; he has slain Ahi; he has sent forth the seven rivers, and has opened the shut-up sources (of the streams).

2. With thee, Soma, for his ally, Indra has quickly taken off by force the wheel of the chariot of the sun, abiding above with the vast and stationary (firmament): the everywhere-going wheel (of the car) of the great oppressor has been taken away.²

3. Indra has slain the Dasyus, Soma, in battle: Agni has consumed them before the noon.³ he (Indra)

² Maho druho, prabhūtasya drogadhuh, of the very mighty oppressor or tyrant, alluding probably to his heat.

³ Purā madhyandināt: in the forenoon, when the Soma is drunk, and thence Indra and Agni have been invigorated.
has destroyed the whole of many thousands, as (robbers are the destroyers of those) going upon (their own) business, in a difficult and dangerous (place).\footnote{The text has only dārge dūrone kratvā na yātāṁ, as of those gone on account of business in a difficult place: where protection is difficult, Sāyana supplies, from robbers.}

4. Indra, thou hast made these Dasyus devoid of all (good qualities); thou hast made the servile races\footnote{Viśo dāsīr-ahvīroraṇaṇapraṣastāḥ: dāsīh as the adjective of viśah, prājak, people, men, is explained, harmahināh having no special or religiously instituted rites or functions, which is not incompatible with the literal purport, slave, or servile: apraṣastāḥ is rendered garhitaḥ, reviled, vile: the expression is important as marking the existence of low and servile classes.} abject: may you, (Soma and Indra), repel (and) destroy (your) enemies: accept (our) homage for their destruction.

5. Possessors of wealth, destroyers of foes, Indra and Soma, it is indeed true that you have distributed great numbers of horses, and of the cattle which had been concealed, and the land which you had recovered by your strength.

Sūkta VIII. (XXIX.)

Varga XVIII.

The deity is Indra, the Rishi and metre as before.

1. Honoured with accepted (sacrificial) viands, come, Indra, exulting, with thy steeds, to our many rites for our protection; thou who art the lord, glorified by hymns, whose wealth is truth.

2. May Indra, the friend of man, the omniscient, come to the sacrifice when invoked by the offerers of libations; he who is possessed of good horses, who is fearless, honoured by the effusers of libations, who rejoices with the heroes (the Maruts).

3. Let (his worshipper) cause his ears to listen so as to invigorate him (by praise), and to give him pleasure in every acceptable place; and being well moistened with the Soma juice, may the vigorous Indra render the holy places (conducive) to our wealth, and free from danger.\(^1\)

4. (That Indra), who repairs to the suppliant for (his) protection, to the sage in this manner invoking and praising him; he who, armed with the thunderbolt, places, of his own accord, hundreds and thousands of swift-going (horses) in the shafts (of their cars).

5. Opulent Indra, may we, who are protected by thee, who are intelligent, devout, and offerers of praise, be participant with thee for the sake of distributing brilliant wealth, and abundant food, entitled to (our) commendation.\(^2\)

Súkta IX. (XXX.)
The deity and Rishi as before; the metre is Gáyatrí, except in the last stanza, in which it is Anushtubh.

1. There is no one, Indra, superior to thee; no one more excellent (than thou);\(^3\) slayer of Vritra there is no one, verily, such as thou art.

2. Verily men are attached to thee as are all the wheels (to the body of the waggon): in truth thou art great and renowned.

3. Verily all the gods, with thee (for) their strength, have warred (with the Asuras); wherfore thou hast destroyed them by day and by night.

4. In which (contests), for the sake of Kutsa and his allies, thou hast stolen, Indra, the (wheel of the car) of the sun.¹

5. In which (contests), thou singly indeed hast warred with all those opposing the gods: thou, Indra, hast slain the malignant.

6. In which (contests), Indra, thou hast, for the sake of a mortal, discomfited the sun, and hast protected Etasa by (thine) exploits.

7. Wherefore, slayer of Vritra, opulent Indra, hast thou thereupon become most incensed, and, in consequence, hast slain the son of Danu (Vritra) in this firmament.

8. Inasmuch, Indra, as thou hast displayed such manly prowess, thou hast slain the woman, the daughter of the sky, when meditating mischief.

9. Thou, Indra, who art mighty, hast enriched the glorious dawn, the daughter of heaven.

10. The terrified Ushas descended from the broken waggon when the (showerer of benefits) had smashed it.

11. Then her shattered waggon reposed (on the bank) of the Vipas' (river), and she departed from afar.

¹ The text has mushaya suryam, thou hast stolen the sun, but this is explained by Sāyana by the more usual legend.

² The dawn, extinguished by the ascendency of Indra throughout the day.

13. By valour thou hast carried off the wealth of Śushṇa, when thou hadst demolished his cities.

14. Thou hast slain the slave Sambara, the son of Kulitara, hurling him from off the huge mountain.

15. Thou hast slain the five hundreds and thousands (of the followers) of the slave Varchin, (surrounding) him like the fellies (round the spokes of a wheel).

16. Thou, Indra, who art Satakratu, hast made Parāvrij, the son of Agru, participant in sacred hymns.\textsuperscript{2}

17. The lord of acts, the wise Indra, has borne across (their difficulties), Turvasas and Yadu, when denied inauguration.\textsuperscript{3}

18. Thou hast slain at once those two Aryas,\textsuperscript{4} Arṇa and Chitraratha, (dwelling) on the opposite (bank) of the Sarayu.

\textsuperscript{1} Sindhum vibālyam vitasthānām: vigatabālyāvasthām, whose youth was passed, i.e. who was full of water, sampūrṇa-jalām; and vitishthamānanām, stopping or being stopped.

\textsuperscript{3} Apārayat, he enabled to cross: according to the scholiast, he made them worthy to be inaugurated, or crowned, which they were not at first, as the text implies, by asmatara, not bathers; alluding to their exclusion from the succession in favour of the youngest son Puru by their father Yayāti: see Vishnu Purāṇa, p. 414.

\textsuperscript{4} The scholiast renders āryā-āryābhimanau; aryatvābhimamaninau, presuming on their dignity as āryas, and being without any faith or devotion to Indra.
19. Slayer of Vṛitra, thou hast restored the (one who was) blind, the (other who was) lame, both abandoned (by their kin):¹ (it is not possible) to exceed the happiness that is given by thee.

20. Indra has overturned a hundred stone-built cities² for Divodás, the donor of oblations.

21. He put to sleep, by delusion, with his destructive (weapons), thirty thousand of the servile (races), for the sake of Dabhiti.

22. Slayer of Vṛitra, thou art the same (to all thy worshippers), the lord of cattle, who castest down all these (thine enemies).

23. When, indeed, Indra, thou excitest thy vigorous manhood, there is no one at the present time who may resist it.

24. Destroyer of foes, may the divine Aryaman distribute thy precious wealth; (may) Púshan (bestow it), (may) Bhága (bestow it); may the toothless deity bestow the desired wealth.³

¹ We have here another, and somewhat contradictory statement from that of a former passage, when the blindness and lameness were attributed to one person, Paravrij, Vol. II. 242, verse 12, and note: here we have not only the dual, jahitá for jahitau, but also dvá for dwau, the two, which agrees better with the still earlier allusion to the same defects in two different individuals; Vol. I. 290, verse 8, and note.

² Aśmanmayínám purám: whether the notion of masonry be confined to the walls, or extended to the dwellings, it indicates familiarity with something more substantial than mud hovels.

³ The text has vámam púshá vámam bhágo vámam devah kárulati: the triple repetition of váma, vananíyam, dhanam, would seem to separate not only Bhága, but Kárulatí from Púshan, but if the last be rightly rendered, by krittadánta or Súkta X. (XXXI.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre as before; but verses three, four, and five are in a variety of Gáyatri, termed Pádaniyárit, having seven instead of eight syllables in each of the three divisions.

1. By what means may he who is ever augmenting, who is wonderful, who is our friend, be present with us, by what most effective rite?¹

2. What genuine and most esteemed of the exhilarating juices of the (sacrificial) beverage may in spirit thee to demolish the substantial treasures (of the foe).

3. Do thou, the protector of us thy friends and praisers, be present with a hundred protections.²

4. (Induced) by the praises of men, return like a revolving wheel to us, dependent (upon thy favour).

5. Thou comest in a downward (direction) to sacred rites, as if to thine own station: I glorify thee together with the sun.

adantaka, the broken-toothed, or toothless, it applies to Púshan: the attribute has not occurred before, though the scholiast quotes the Veda for it, Púshá prapishṭabhágo adantaka hityādi śrutiśtu; according to the Puráṇas, Púshan had his teeth knocked out by Virahadhra’s followers at Daksha’s sacrifice: Vishnu Pur. 67, note 6.

¹ This seems to be a popular stanza; it occurs twice in the Sáma-Veda, 1. 169, 232; once in the Yajush, 27, 29, and once in the Atharvan, xx. 124, 1.

² The same may be said of this and the preceding stanza; they both occur in the other three Vedas, Sáma-Veda, 11. 38, 34: Yajur-Veda, 27, 40, 41; Atharva-Veda, 122, 2, 3.
7. Lord of holy acts, they call thee MAGHAVAN, the munificent, the resplendent.

8. And verily thou givest promptly abundant wealth to him who praises thee and offers thee libations.

9. Adversaries diminish not thy hundred-fold opulence, nor resist the energies of thee opposing (them).

10. May thy hundred, thy thousand, protections, preserve us; may all (thy) desires (be for our defence).

11. Select us, INDRA, on this occasion, for thy friendship, for (our) welfare, for vast and splendid riches.

12. Favour us, INDRA, daily with infinite riches; (protect) us with all protections.

13. With fresh protections, INDRA, like a warrior, open for us those pastures filled with cattle.

14. May our chariot, INDRA, foe-repelling, brilliant, unfailing, proceed (everywhere), possessing us of cattle and of horses.

15. SURYA make our fame exalted among the gods, as (thou hast placed) the sky, the shedder of most copious rain, above (all other regions).

SÓKTA XI. (XXXII.)
The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. INDRA, slayer of VRITRA, come to us quickly: thou who art mighty, (come) with mighty protections.

2. Wonderful INDRA, wanderer at times (through

1 Asmáham arddham, asmáham samipam, near to us: MA- khidhara explains arddha, dwelling-place, nivśa desam, or hall of worship, deva-yajana desam: it is properly, a half, whence Benfey renders it seite, but this is merely inferential, like the interpretations of Mahidhara. space), thou art verily the granter of (our) desires, and doest what is marvellous for the protection (of those who are engaged) in wondrous works.

3. Thou destroyest by thy might the fierce assail-ing foe, associated with the humble friends who are along with thee.

4. We, Indra, are along with thee; we zealously glorify thee: do verily protect us all.

5. Wielder of the thunderbolt, do thou come to us with wondrous, irreproachable, irresistible protections.

6. May we, Indra, be the friends of one like thee, possessed of cattle; allied (to him) for (the sake of) abundant food.

7. For thou alone, Indra, art lord over food com-bined with cattle; therefore do thou grant us ample food.

8. None change thy purpose, Indra, object of lau-dation, when, being praised, thou desirest to bestow wealth upon the praisers.

9. The Gotamas glorify thee, Indra, with praise, that thou mayest grant wealth, and for the sake of abundant food.

10. We proclaim thy prowess, whereby exhilarated (by the Soma), and having gone against them, thou hast demolished the servile cities.

11. The pious celebrate thy manly exploits, Indra, object of laudation, when the juices (of the Soma) are effused.

12. The Gotamas, offerers of praise, exalt thee, Indra; bestow upon them food and posterity.

13. Although, Indra, thou art the common prop-erty of (all) worshippers, we invoke thee (such) as thou art (for ourselves).
14. Giver of dwellings, be present with us; drinker of the Soma, be exhilarated by the beverage of the juices.

15. May the praise (of us) who are devoted (to thee), Indra, give thee to us: guide thy horses towards us.

16. Eat (Indra) our cakes and butter; be pleased by our praises as a libertine (by the caresses) of a woman.

17. We solicit, Indra for a thousand well trained, swift-going horses, for a hundred jars\(^1\) of Soma juice.

18. We seek to bring down from thee, thousands and hundreds of cattle; may riches come to us from thee.

19. May we obtain from thee, ten golden ewers, for thou, slayer of Vritra, art a bountiful giver.

20. A bountiful giver art thou, Indra: give bountifully to us; (give) not little; bring much; for verily thou desirest to give much.

21. Verily thou art renowned amongst many as a bountiful giver; hero, slayer of Vritra, make us sharers in wealth.

22. Wise Indra, I praise thy brown (horses); bestower of kine, (who art) not regardless (of thy worshippers):\(^2\) with those two steeds terrify not our cattle.

\(^1\) Khári, a certain measure; by metonymy, a jar or ewer, drona-kalása, holding such a quantity: in modern use it is the name of a grain measure, equal to sixteen dronas, or about three bushels.

\(^2\) He napáta pátayitah, stótrín avinásayitah, hintu pálayitār, ityarthā; oh thou, not casting down, not injuring or destroying, those who praise, that is, cherishing them.
23. Like two puppets on an arranged, new, and slender stage, thy two brown (steeds) are brilliant at sacrifices.¹

24. Thy two innocuous brown (steeds) are sufficient at sacrifices for me, whether going (to them) in (a waggon drawn by) oxen, or going without (such) a conveyance.

ADHYĀYA VII.

ANUVĀKA IV.

SÓKTA I. (XXXIII.)

The deities are the Rībhus;² the Rishi is Vāmadeva; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. I send my prayer as a messenger to the Rībhus; I solicit (of them) the milch cow, the yielder of the white milk, for the dilution (of the Soma libation); for they, as swift as the wind, the doers of good works, were borne quickly across the firmament by rapid steeds.³

2. When the Rībhus, by honouring their parents

with renovated (youth), and by other works, had achieved enough, they thereupon proceeded to the society of the gods, and, considerate, they bring nourishment to the devout (worshipper).

3. May they who rendered them decrepit and drowsy parents, when, like two dry posts, again perpetually young, Vája, Vibhwan, and Ribhu associated with Indra, drinkers of the Soma juice, protect our sacrifice.

4. Inasmuch as for a year the Ribhus preserved the (dead) cow, inasmuch as for a year they invested it with flesh, inasmuch as for a year they continued its beauty, they obtained by their acts immortality.

5. The eldest said, let us make two ladies; the youngest said, let us make three: Twashtrí, Ribhus, has applauded your proposal.

6. The men, (the Ribhus), spake the truth, for such (ladies) they made, and thereupon the Ribhus partook of that libation: Twashtrí, beholding the four ladies, brilliant as day, was content.

7. When the Ribhus, reposing for twelve days, remained in the hospitality of the unconcealable (sun), they rendered the fields fertile, they led forth the rivers, plants sprung upon the waste, and waters (spread over) the low (places. 1)

8. May those Ribhus who constructed the firm-abiding, wheel-conducting car; who formed the all-impelling multiform milch cow; they who are the bestowers of food, the doers of great deeds, and dexterous of hand, fabricate for us riches.

9. The gods were pleased by their works, illustrious in act and in thought: Vája was the artificer of the gods, Ribhukshin of Indra, Vibhwan of Varuṇa.

10. May those Ribhus who gratified the horses (of Indra) by pious praise, who constructed for Indra his two docile steeds, bestow upon us satiety of riches, and wealth (of cattle), like those who devise prosperity for a friend.

11. The gods verily have given you the beverage at the (third sacrifice of the) day, and its exhilaration, not through regard, but (as the gift of one) wearied out (by penance): Ribhus, who are so (eminent), grant us, verily, wealth at this third (diurnal) sacrifice.

Súkta II. (XXXIV.)
The deities, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Ribhu, Vibhwan, Vája, and Indra, do you come to this our sacrifice, to distribute precious things, for the divine word has indeed now desired the drinking (of the Soma) on the (appointed hours of the) days; therefore the exhilarating draughts are collected for you.

2. Resplendent with (sacrificial) food, prescient of your (celestial) birth, be exhilarated, Ribhus along

1 Rite śrāntasya sakhyāya is the phrase of the text: Sāyana says, na sakhitwāya bhavanti dīvāh, the gods are not through friendship, śrāntāt tupa yuḥtāt rite, except one wearied by penance, which would seem to apply to the worshipper; but again he says, ete śrāntā ato daduh, they, wearied out, therefore gave.

2 Drishanā devī: in the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa it is said, Prajāpati said to Savitri, these are thy fellow-students; do thou drink with them.

with the Ritus: the inebriating draughts are collected for you as well as pious praise: do you confer upon us riches with excellent posterity.

3. This sacrifice, Ribhus, has been instituted for you, the which you, who are eminently resplendent, have accepted after the manner of men: before you have the propitiatory (libations) been placed, for Vájas, you are all entitled to precedence.

4. Now, leaders (of rites), the treasure that ought to be presented is to be given to the mortal performing (the sacred rite), the offerer (of the libation): drink, Vájas, (drink), Ribhus; I present it to you at the third solemn (diurnal) ceremony for your exhilaration.

5. Vájas, Ribhuksás, leaders (of rites), come to us eulogising exceeding wealth: these draughts (of Soma) proceed to you at the decline of day, like newly-delivered cows to their stalls.

6. Sons of strength, come to this sacrifice, invoked with veneration: givers of precious things, associated with Indra, with whom you are intelligent, participate in being gratified (by the libation), drink of the sweet Soma juice.

7. Sympathizing 1 in satisfaction with Varuna, drink, Indra, the Soma juice; drink it, thou who art entitled to praise, sympathizing with the Maruts: drink, sympathizing with the first drinkers, with the

1 It is not easy to find an equivalent for Sajosháh, although the sense is obvious enough: sajoshá Indra Varunena somam páhi, is, literally, Indra, who art co-pleased with Varuna, drink the libation; implying that they both derive the like satisfaction from the beverage which they imbibe together.
drinkers (at the sacrifices) of the Ritus;\(^1\) sympathizing with the protectresses, of the wives (of the gods);\(^2\) the giver of wealth.

8. \textit{Ribhus,} be exhilarated, sympathizing with the \textit{Adityas}, sympathizing with the \textit{Parvatas},\(^3\) sympathizing with the divine \textit{Savitri}, sympathizing with the wealth-bestowing (deities of the) rivers.

9. \textit{Ribhus,} who by your assistance (gratified) the \textit{Aswins,} who (renovated your) parents, who (restored) the cow, who fabricated the horses, who made armour (for the gods), who separated earth and heaven, and who, the all-pervading leaders (of rites), accomplished (acts productive of)\(^4\) good results.

10. \textit{Ribhus,} who possess wealth, comprising cattle, food, progeny, dwellings, and abundant sustenance, do you, who are the first drinkers (of the \textit{Soma}), bestow upon us, when exhilarated, (that wealth, and upon those) who laud your liberality.

\(^1\) \textit{Ritupābhīh} is explained, \textit{ṛituyājadevaḥ}, the deities to whom the \textit{Ritu} sacrifice is dedicated.

\(^2\) \textit{Gnāspatīnābhīh:} \textit{gnā} is usually rendered the wives of the gods: the compound is here explained \textit{strīnāmpūlayitrīyāḥ}, the female protectors of women: it may imply the goddesses, but there is no authority for such an interpretation.

\(^3\) \textit{Parva tebhih, parvavadbhih, parvanyarchyamānair-devavīresaih :} a sort of deities to be worshipped at the \textit{Parvas,} certain periods of the month, as the new and full moon, &c.

11. Ribhus go not away; let us not leave you (thirsting); (be present) unreproached at this sacrifice; be exhilarated, deities, along with Indra, with the Maruts, and with (other) brilliant (divinities), for the distribution of wealth.

Deities, Rishi, and metre as before.

Varga V.

1. Come hither, sons of strength, sons of Súdhánwan; Ribhus, keep not away; may the exhilarating juices proceed to you at this sacrifice, after¹ the munificent Indra.

2. May the munificence of the Ribhus come to me on this occasion, (since) there has been the drinking of the effused Soma, in consequence of one ladle having been made fourfold by their dexterous and excellent work.

3. You have made the ladle fourfold, and have said (to Agni), assent (to the division): therefore have you gone, Vájas, the path of the immortals: dexterous-handed Ribhus (you have joined) the company of the gods.

4. What sort of ladle was that which by skill you have made four? now pour forth the Soma for their exhilaration: drink, Ribhus, of the sweet Soma libation.

5. By your (marvellous) deeds you have made your parents young; by your deeds you have made the ladle (fit) for the drinking of the gods: by your deeds you have made the two horses, the bearers of Indra, swifter than (an arrow from) a bow, Ribhus, who are rich in (sacrificial) food.

6. Distributors of food, Ribhus, showers (of benefits), exhilarated (by the Soma draught), fabricate wealth, comprising all posterity for him who pours out for your exultation, the acrid libation at the decline of day.

7. Drink, lord of horses, Indra, the libation offered at dawn; the noon-day libation is alone for thee; but (in the evening) drink with the munificent Ribhus, whom, Indra, thou hast made thy friends by good deeds.

8. Do you, sons of strength, who have become gods by (your good deeds), soaring aloft in the sky like falcons, bestow upon us riches: sons of Sudhanwan, you have become immortals.

9. Dexterous-handed, since you have instituted, through desire of good works, the third sacrifice, which is the bestower of wealth, therefore, Ribhus, drink this effused Soma with exhilarated senses.

Sūkta IV. (XXXVI.)
The deities and Rishi as before; the metre is Jagati, in the last verse Trishtubh.

1. The glorious three-wheeled car (of the Āświns made, Ribhus, by you), traverses the firmament without horses, without reins: great was that proclamation of your divine (power), by which, Ribhus, you cherish heaven and earth.

2. We invoke you respectfully, Vājas and Ribhus, to drink of this libation, for you are the wise sages who, by mental meditation, made the well-constructed undeviating car (of the Aświns).

3. Therefore, VĀJA, RIBHU, VIBHWAN, was your greatness proclaimed amongst the gods, that you made your aged and infirm parents again young (and able) to go (where they would).

4. You have made the single ladle four-fold: by your (marvellous) acts you have clothed the cow with a (new) hide; therefore you have obtained immortality amongst the gods: such acts, VĀJAS and RIBHUS, are to be eagerly glorified.

5. From the RIBHUS may wealth, the best and most productive of food, (come to me); that which the leaders (of rites) renowned together with the VĀJAS, have engendered; that which has been fabricated by VIBHWAN, and is to be celebrated at sacrifices; that which, deities, you protect, that is to be beheld.

6. He is vigorous and skilled in war, he is a Rishi worthy of homage, he is a hero, the discomfiter of foes, invincible in battles, he is possessed of ample wealth, and (is blessed) with excellent posterity, whom VĀJA and VIBHWAN, whom the RIBHUS protect.

7. An excellent and agreeable form has been assumed by you: (this is our own) praise: VĀJAS and RIBHUS be gratified (thereby), for you are wise, experienced, and intelligent: such we make you known (to be) by this (our) prayer.

8. Do you who are wise, (bestow) upon us, in re- quital of our praises, all enjoyments that are good for man, and fabricate for us, RIBHUS, riches and food, resplendent, invigorating, overpowering (foes), and most excellent.
9. Gratified (by our worship), fabricate for us, on this occasion, progeny, and wealth, and reputation, with numerous adherents: solemn grants to us, Ribhus, abundant sustenance wherewith we may greatly excel others.

Sūkta V. (XXXVII.)

Deities and Rishi, as before; the metre of the first four verses is Trishtubh, of the rest Anushstubh.

1. Divine Vājas, Ribhus, come to our sacrifice by the path travelled by the gods, inasmuch as you, gracious (Ribhus), have maintained sacrifice amongst the people, (the progeny) of Manu, for (the sake of) securing the prosperous course of days.

2. May these sacrifices be (acceptable) to you in heart and mind: may to-day the sufficient (juices) mixed with butter flow to you: the full libations are prepared for you: may they, when drank, animate you for glorious deeds.

3. As the offering suited to the gods at the third (daily) sacrifice supports you, Vājas, Ribhukshans; as the praise (then recited supports you): therefore, like Manu, I offer you the Soma juice, along with the very

1. śrava-viravat might be rendered food-comprehending-offspring, but as prajá has already specified, the scholiast interprets viravat, viros habens, by bhrityādibhirupetam, endowed with dependants.

2. The text has Ribhuksháḥ which is properly the nom. sing. of Ribhukshin, a name of Indra; here Śāyana identifies it with Ribhavah, the plur. nom. of Ribhu: in some of the following verses of this hymn the word appears as Ribhukshanah, the nom. or voc.-plural of Ribhukshin substituting optionally, the short for the long vowel in the antepenultimate, Ribhuksánah for Ribhukshánah: see Sanscrit Gr., 2d edit. p. 460.
radiant (deities) among the people assembled at the solemnity.

4. Vājins, you are borne by stout horses mounted on a brilliant car, have jaws of iron, and are possessed of treasures:  sons of Indra, grandsons of strength; this last sacrifice is for your exhilaration.

5. We invoke you, Ribhukshans, for splendid wealth, mutually co-operating, most invigorating in war, affecting the senses, ever munificent, and comprehending horses.

6. May the man whom you, Ribhus and Indra, favour, be ever liberal by his acts, and possessed of a horse at the sacrifice.

7. Vājas, Ribhukshans, direct us in the way to

1 Juhve manushvat uparásu vikshu yushme sachā brihaddiveshu somam: the meaning is not very clear: uparā is explained, those who are pleased or sport near the worship of the gods, devayajana samīpe ramantah; tāsu vikshu-prajāsu, in or among such people: brihaddiveshu, Sāyaṇa considers an epithet of deveshu understood.

2 Vājinaḥ, the possessors either of horses or food, is here used somewhat irregularly for Vājā: ayahṣiprā, according to the commentator, means as hard or strong as iron, ayovat, sārabhūtaṣiprāḥ: sanishkāḥ having good nishkas, a certain weight of gold, if not a coin.

3 The text has here the nouns in the singular, son of Indra, son or grandson of strength, and inconsistently follows with vah- vos, you, in the plural.

4 Ityagriyam, agre bhamam, would mean the first, the preceding, but Sāyaṇa explains it, tritiyam savanam, which is most consistent with the worship of the Ribhus.

5 Such are the explanations of the epithets given to rāyim, wealth, ribhum, yujam, vājintamam, indraswantam, sadāsūtamam, asvinam, explained as in the text.

6 Medhasatā so arvatā: perhaps a horse fit for the aswamedha is implied.

sacrifice; for you, who are intelligent, being glorified (by us), are able to traverse all the quarters (of space).

8. Vájas, Ribhukshans, Indra, Násatyas command that ample wealth with horses be sent to men for their enrichment.

Súkta VI. (XXXVIII.)
The deities of the first verse are Heaven and Earth, of the rest Dadhikrá; the Rishi is Vámadeva: the metre Trishtubh.

1. Trasadayu has bestowed upon many the ancient (gifts) which were obtained by the liberal (prince) through your (favour, Heaven and Earth) you two have given a horse, a son, a weapon (for the destruction) of the Dasyus, fierce and foe-subduing.

2. And you two have given the swift Dadhikrá, the repeller of many (foes), the defender of all men, the straight-going, the graceful-moving, the resplendent, the rapid, the destroyer of enemies like a heroic prince.

3. Whom all men, rejoicing, praise, rushing everywhere, as if down a precipice, springing with his feet like a hero eager for war, drawing a car, and going as swift as the wind.

1 They are not named in the text, but the dual pron. vám, of you two, is supposed to imply them.

2 So Sáyana explains the kshetrásám and urvarásám of the text, deriving them from kshetra, land, urvará, fertile soil, and san, to give: why these should signify aswa and putra is not very obvious.

3 Dadhikrá, or as also read, Dadhikraván, is given in the Nighantu of Yásha amongst the synonyms of aswa, a horse: the form is noted in Panini, III. 2. 67: according to Mahidhara on Rich 6, of Súkta VII. Yajush, 29, 32, the etymology is dadhi, who bears, who carries his rider, and krama, to go: according to the Aitareya Bráhmaṇa, III. 15. 5, Agni, in the form of a horse, destroyed the Asuras by the desire of Bharadvája.
4. Who, opposing the mingled multitude in battles, rushes eager, passing through the regions, whose vigour is manifest, who, understanding what is to be known, puts to shame the adversary of the (pious) man.¹

5. Whom men call after in battles, as after a thief carrying off a garment, or as (after) a hungry hawk pouncing (upon his prey): they call after him, hastening to obtain food, or a herd of cattle.²

6. And who, issuing forth the first in those encounters, rushes in various directions with rows of chariots; like an elegant (courser), friendly to man, decorated with a garland, raising the dust, and champing his bit.

7. And that swift (horse) enduring in battle, bestowing food, and doing service with his limbs, rushing swiftly upon the quick-moving (host of the enemy), going straight onward, and tossing up the dust, throws it above his brows.

8. And the adversaries of that foe-destroying steed, like (those) of the brilliant thunderbolt, are alarmed; for when he contends, even against thousands on every side, then, rousing (his spirit), he is fearful and irresistible.

² Śravascháchchhá pasumachchha yútham, is explained annam kirtitam vá pasumad yútham cha achchhá abhilakhsha gachchhanam enam anukrósantí, they call after him, that is, Dadhikrá, going, having in view either food or fame, or a herd consisting of cattle: Sáyana rests his interpretation on that of Yásha, Nir. iv. 24: perhaps the anukrósanti should be again supplied as applicable to the pasumad-yútham.
9. Men praise the overpowering rapidity of that fleet (steed), who is the accomplisher (of the desires) of mankind, and, following him to battle, they have said, Dadhikrá with (his) thousands has gone forth against the foe.

10. Dadhikrá has spread abroad the five classes of beings by his strength, as the sun (diffuses) the waters by his radiance: may he, the giver of hundreds and thousands, associate these praises with agreeable (rewards).

SÚKTA VII. (XXXIX.)

The deity and Rishi as before; the metre the same, except in the last verse, in which it is Anushtubh.

1. Verily we praise that swift Dadhikrá and scatter (provender before him) from heaven and earth: may the gloom-dispelling dawns preserve for me (all good things), and bear me beyond all evils.

2. Fulfiller of religious rites, I reiterate the praise of the great Dadhikrá, the liberal, many-honoured showerer (of benefits), whom Mitra and Vṛuna gave for the good of many, the transporter (beyond calamity), as brilliant as Agni.

3. May Aditi, consentient with Mitra and Vṛuna render him free from sin who has performed the worship of the steed Dadhikrá, when the fire has been kindled at the opening of the dawn.

4. Whilst we glorify the name of the great Dadhikrá, the means of sustenance and of strength, the prosperity of those who praise (him), let us invoke

1 Aditi is considered by Sáyaña as an appellative, akhanda-niya, the indivisible or infangible, that is, Dadhikrá.

2 The text has marutám náma bhadram: Sáyaña explains marutám by stotriñám, of the praisers.
(also) for our welfare Varuna, Mitra, Agni, and Indra, the bearer of the thunderbolt.

5. Those who are preparing for battle, those who are proceeding to sacrifice, both invoke (Dadhikrā) as if (he was) Indra: Mitra and Varuna have given to us the horse Dadhikrā as an encourager to man.

6. I have celebrated the praise of Dadhikrā, the rapid and victorious steed: may he make our mouths fragrant,¹ may he prolong our lives.

Sūkta VIII. (XL.)
The deity and Rishi as before; the metre of the first verse is Tristihubb, of the rest Jagati.

Varga XIV.

1. May we repeatedly recite (the praise) of Dadhikrāvan; may all rising dawns excite me (to the adoration) of the waters, of Agni, of Ushas, of Sūrya, of Bṛihāspati, and of Jishnu the son of Angiras.

2. May Dadhikrāvan, the active, the cherisher, the giver of cattle, who abides with the devout, the swift-going, be willing to accept (the sacrificial) food at the time of the desirable dawn: may he who is true, moving, rapid, and leaping like a grasshopper, produce (for us) food, strength, heaven.

3. And after him who is quick-going, hastening, eager (to arrive at his goal, men) follow (as other birds pursue) the flight of a swift (bird)² striving

¹ The mouth having been defiled by the use of inelegant language, according to Mahidhara: the verse occurs in the Sāma-Veda, i. 358; Yajush, 23, 32; and Atharvan, xx. 127. 3: according to the commentator on the Yajush, it is to be recited at the aśvamedha when the priests bring the queen away from the horse.

together to keep up by the side of Dadikrāvan the transporter (of others) as swift as a hawk.¹

4. And that horse bound by his neck, his flanks, his mouth, accelerates his paces: Dadhikrā increasing in vigour after the (sacred rite), following the windings of the roads, goes still more rapidly.

5. He is Hānsa, (the sun), dwelling in light; Vaśu, (the wind), dwelling in the firmament; the invoker of the gods (Agni), dwelling on the altar; the guest (of the worshipper), dwelling in the house (as the culinary fire); the dweller amongst men, (as consciousness), the dweller in the most excellent (orb, the sun), the dweller in truth, the dweller in the sky (the air), born in the waters, in the rays of light, in the verity (of manifestation) in the (eastern) mountain, the truth (itself)).²

Nriṣhad the dweller among men, is explained Chaitanya, consciousness, or Prána, vitality, or, according to Sátyana in the scholia on the Bráhmaña, sight, or the eye, according to the text "the sun, becoming the eye (of the world), entered into the two eyes (of man): 6. Varasad is uniformly rendered the dweller in the most excellent station, that is, the solar orb: 7. Ritasad is he who is present in truth, or in water, or in sacrifice: the comment on the Bráhmaña interprets truth, the text of the Veda, vedaváhya: 8. Vyomasad, the dweller in the sky, has its literal meaning everywhere: only Sátyana makes it out to be the wind: 9. Abjak, who is born in the midst of the water, as, according to another text, udaka madhye khalvayam játaye, Mahidhara says, in the form of a fish, &c.: the Bráhmaña intimates that this refers to the apparent rising of the sun from the ocean and setting in the same: 10. Gojak, born amidst, gosho, rays; Mahidhara says, gavi, prithivyám, in the earth, being identical with the elements: 11. Ritejak, born of truth, from being visible by all, not invisible like Indra and the rest, is Sátyana's explanation in this place; in his scholia on the Bráhmaña he interprets it, born from the mantras of the Vedas: 11. Adrija, mountain-born, that is, in the eastern mountain, where he rises: Mahidhara says, born in stone in the form of Agni, as if alluding to flint; or adri, having for one meaning a cloud, he may be said to be generated in the clouds in the form of rain: finally he is Ritam, truth, that is, according to Sátyana, in both his comments, sound truth; or Parabrahma, as by another text, "Satyam jnánam anantam

2. Divine Indra and Varuna, the mortal diligent in offering (you) sacrificial food, who has through friendship made you his kinsmen, destroys (his own) sins, and his enemies in battle; and by your great favours he becomes renowned.

3. Indra and Varuna (you are) most liberal givers of wealth to men praising you in various ways, when as friends well plied with (sacrificial) food, you are exhilarated by the Soma juice effused through friendship.

4. Fierce Indra and Varuna you hurled the bright-shining and most mighty thunderbolt against this (our foe), who is difficult to be resisted by us; (who is) rapacious, malevolent: grant us strength to overcome him.

5. Indra and Varuna, be the exciters of this our praise, as the bull is of the milch cows: may that cow (of praise) yield us (reward), like a large cow that has gone forth to pasture, whose thousand channels (are filled) with milk.

6. May Indra and Varuṇa, the overthrowers (of foes), be around us with (their) protections; (that thereby we may have) good sons and grandsons, and fertile lands, and long life, and virility.

7. Desirous of (possessing) cattle, we have recourse to you, Indra and Varuṇa, for full protection, you who are powerful and kind as (kinsmen); we have recourse to you, adorable heroes, for (your) friendship and affection, (to you who are), like parents, givers of happiness.

8. Liberal givers, those (our) praises soliciting (abundant) food have proceeded to you for (your) protection: longing for you as (soldiers long) for battle, and as cattle approach the Soma for (its) advantage, so my heartfelt hymns (approach) Indra and Varuṇa.

9. These my earnest praises approach Indra and Varuṇa, desirous to obtain wealth, as dependants attend (upon an opulent man) for the sake of riches, like humble (females) begging for food.

1 Paritakmyāyām: it is rendered paritakane, which is not more intelligible: paritakmā occurs also in the sense of night, in which case it may mean, may Indra and Varuṇa protect us in the night against evil spirits.

2 Sūro driṣṭhe is the text, which is interpreted sūryasya chirakālādāraṇāya, for the sight of the sun for a long time, i.e. chirajīvanāya, for long life.

3 Yuvayūḥ is explained, yuvām kāmayamānāh.

4 Śriye na gāva upa somam asthuk, alluding to the mixture of milk and curds with the Soma libation, dadhyādīpayaṇāya.

5 Jostāra iva vasvo, sevakā dhanikam svāminam: as servants upon a rich master, or as derived from jush, to please, jostāraḥ may be rendered flatterers, parasites.

6 Raghvīr-iva sravaso bhiḥkhamānāḥ; raghvīr iva laghūya
10. May we of our own (right) be the masters of permanent riches,\(^{1}\), comprising horses, chariots, and nourishment: may those two, traversing (the regions), direct their Niyut steeds towards us, associating (them) with riches and with recent protections.

11. Mighty Indra and Varuna come to us in battle with (your) powerful protections, and where the bright (weapons) play amidst the (hostile) hosts, may we be triumphant in that conflict (through) your (favour.)

SUKTA X. (XLII.)

The Rishi is the royal sage Trasadasyu: as the first six verses are in his own praise, he is considered to be the divinity also: of the other four stanzas the deities are Indra and Varuna; the metre is Trishuubh.

1. Twofold is my empire,\(^{2}\) that of the whole Kshatriya race, and all the immortals are ours:\(^{3}\) the gods associate me with the acts of Varuna:\(^{4}\) I rule over (those) of the proximate form of man.

2. I am the king Varuna; on me (the gods) bestow those principal energies (that are) destructive of \(^{1}\) Manah patayah syama; that is, according to the scholiast, without any effort or labour, aprayatmena.

\(^{2}\) Mama dwitah rashtram kshatriyasya viswahyoh: here, therefore, we have a positive indication of the military and regal order.

\(^{3}\) Vishce amritah yathah nah: therefore he is king also over Swarga.

\(^{4}\) Krutum sahans Varunasya devah, rajam krishter-upamasya varvah: except the last word, which the scholiast renders rupa, form, there is nothing unusual in the terms; but even with the explanations attempted by Sāyana, the purport of the sentence is quite unintelligible, beyond its being probably the identity of Varuṣa and Trasadasyu, as asserted in the next verse.
the Asuras; (they) associate me with the worship of Varuṇa: I rule over (the acts) of the proximate form of man.

3. I am Indra, I am Varuṇa, I am those two in greatness: (I am) the vast, profound, beautiful, heaven and earth: intelligent, I give like Twashṭṛi animation to all beings: I uphold earth and heaven.

4. I have distributed the moisture-shedding waters; I have upheld the sky as the abode of the water;¹ by the water I have become the preserver of the water, the son of Aditi, illustrating the threefold elementary space.²

5. Warriors well mounted, ardent for contest, invoke me: selected (combatants invoke) me in battle: I, the affluent Indra, instigate the conflict, and, endowed with victorious prowess, I raise up the dust (in the battle).

6. I have done all these (deeds): no one resists my divine, unsurpassed vigour; and when the Soma juices, when sacred songs, exhilarate me, then the unbounded heaven and earth are both alarmed.

7. All beings recognise thee (Varuṇa), and thou, worshipper, addressest these (encomiums) to Varuṇa: thou, Indra, art renowned as slaying Vṛitra; thou hast set the obstructed rivers free to flow.

8. The seven Rishis were the protectors of this our (kingdom) when the son of Durgaḥa was in bonds:

² That is, according to Sāyana, for me the creator has made the three worlds, madartham eva kshityādilokatrayam ahārhit parameswarah.
performing worship they obtained for (his queen) from the favour of Indra and Varuna, Trasadasya, like Indra the slayer of foes, dwelling near the gods. 9. The wife of Purukutsa propitiated you two, Indra and Varuna with oblations and prostrations, and therefore you gave her the king Trasadasya, the slayer of foes, dwelling near the gods. 10. May we, glorifying you both, be delighted by riches; may the gods be pleased by oblations, the cows by pasture: and do you, Indra and Varuna, daily grant us that same milch cow, (riches), free from any imperfection.

Súkta XI. (XLIII.)
The deities are the Aswins, the Rishis are Purumílha and Ajamílha, sons of Suhotra; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. Which of those who are entitled to sacrifice will listen (to our prayers)? which of the gods will hear our praise? which will be propitiated (by it)? upon the heart of whom among the immortals may we im-

1 Purukutsa, son of Durgaha, being a prisoner, it is not said on what occasion, his queen propitiated the seven Rishis to obtain a son who might take his father's place: they advised her to worship Indra and Varuna, in consequence of which Trasadasya was born.

2 Ardhadhavanam is explained devánáms samípe vartamánam; or we might render it, demi-god, though such an appellation would not apply to Indra, to whom Trasadasya is compared: on the contrary, Indra is declared to be one half of all the gods, and therefore entitled to the largest share of offerings, yat sáraveshám arddham Indrah prati tasmád Indro devatánám bhuyishthabháktamah.

3 Anapaspahvantím ahinsitám, unharmed, according to Sáyana: Mahádhara, Yajur-Veda, 7. 10, explains it, not going to another, ananyagáminám.
press the devout affectionate adoration, accompanied by sacred oblations?

2. Who will make us happy? which of the gods is the most prompt to come to our sacrifice? which the most willing to grant us felicity? what chariot do they say is quick and drawn by rapid steeds? that which the daughter of Sūryā selected.

3. Moving, you proceed rapidly by day, as Indra, at the end of the night, (manifests his) power: descended from heaven, divine, of graceful motion, (Aswīns), by which of (your) acts are you most distinguished?¹

4. What may be the fit measure (of your merits)? invoked by what praises do you come to us? who (can exist as) the object of your great wrath? Daśras, dispensers of sweet (water), defend us with your protection.

5. Your chariot travels widely round the heaven until it places you beyond the firmament: dispensers of sweet (water, the priests) are diluting the Soma juice with milk, that the boiled (barley) may be united with the libation offered to you.

6. The flowing (stream)² has sprinkled your steeds with moisture: the radiant horses (like) birds (in swiftness) pass on, bright with lustre: well known is that quick-moving chariot, whereby you became the lords of Sūryā.

7. May the earnest praise, distributers of food,

sambodhīnāṁ karmanāṁ saktināṁ vā, acts or energies connected with you.
² Sindhu: but it may here mean either water in general, or a cloud.
wherewith I associate you both like-minded at this sacrifice, be (beneficial) to us: do you protect your worshipper: my desire, Násatyas, directed towards you is gratified.

Sūkta XII. (XLIV.)

Deities, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. We invoke, Aświns, to-day, your rapid car, the associator of the solar ray:¹ the banked car which bears Sūryā, vast, wealthy, and laden with praises.

2. Aświns, grandsons of heaven, divinities, you enjoy that glory by your actions, that (sacrificial) food is administered to your persons, and powerful horses² draw you in your chariot.

3. What offerer of oblations addresses you to day with hymns for the sake (of obtaining) protection, for the drinking of the Soma, or for the ancient fulfilment of the sacrifice? what offerer of adoration may bring you Aświns (to this rite).

4. Násatyas, who are manifold, come with your golden chariot to this sacrifice; drink of the sweet Soma beverage, and give precious things to the man who celebrates (your worship).

5. Come to our presence, whether from heaven or earth, with your well-constructed golden chariot: let not other devout worshippers detain you, for a prior attraction awaits you (here).

¹ Sangatim goh, is only explained, goh sangamayithram, the bringer into union, or associator of Go: what the latter is intended for is not explained, and the translation is purely conjectural, founded upon the connection of the Aświns with light, or the sun.

² Kaukhasah, is explained mahánto aśwáh, or it may be praises, stutayah.
6. Dasras, mete out for us both\(^1\) great opulence, comprising many descendants, since the leaders of the rite (the Purumīḥas), have addressed to you, Āṣwina, their praise, and the Ajamīḥas have united with it their laudation.

7. May the earnest praise wherewith, distributors of food, I associate you both like-minded at this sacrifice, be (beneficial) to us: do you protect your worshipper: my desire Nāsātyas, directed towards you is gratified.

Sūkta XIII. (XLV.)

The deities as before; the Rishi is Vāmadeva; the metre of the last verse is Trishṭubh, of the rest Jagati.

1. The sun rises: your chariot, (Āṣwina), traversing (the regions), is associated with the divine (orb) on the summit (of the eastern mountain): in it are the three analogous kinds of food,\(^2\) and the leather vessel of the sweet Soma juice appears as the fourth.

2. Your food-bearing, Soma-laden, well-horsed chariots, appear at the opening of the dawn, scattering the surrounding darkness like the sun, and spreading bright radiance over the firmament.

3. Drink of the Soma juice with mouths (fit for) imbibing the beverage: harness your beloved chariot for the Soma juice: (come to the dwelling) of the sacrificer: enliven the path with the Soma: bring, Āṣwina, the leather vessels filled with the Soma juice.

\(^1\) The two Rishis, the authors of the Sūkta.

\(^2\) Pṛthkhaso mithunā tryak: mithunā is properly twins, or a pair, but it may be used, according to Śāyana, for a greater number of analogous or connected objects, as mātā pīta putras-tadeva mithunam, mother, father, son, constitute a twin or pair: the three sorts of food are said to be aśanam, pānam, khādah: in what the last differs from the first is not specified.
4. Come to sacrifices as flies to honey, (with those horses) that are swift of speed, gentle, unrefractory, golden-winged, bearers (of burthens), wakers at dawn, dispensers of water, exulting and sipping the Soma juice.

5. The sacred fires, the instruments of holy sacrifice, the conveyers of libations, praise the associated Aświns at the break of day, when the observant (priest) the conductor of the rite, with washed hands has expressed by the (grinding) stones the sweet-flavoured Soma juice.

6. The near-advancing (rays), dispersing (the darkness) by the (light of day), are overspreading the firmament with lustre like the sun: the sun, harnessing his horses, (proceeds on his way): do you make known all his paths by (following) after (him) with sacrificial food.

7. Celebrating (sacred) rites, I glorify you, Aświns: well-horsed and undecaying is that chariot, whereby you quickly traverse the regions (of space), and come to (our sacrifice) abounding in oblations, promptly passing away, and the yielder of enjoyment.

ANUVĀKA V.

SÚKTA I. (XLVI.)

The deities are Indra and Vāyu, except in the first verse, which is addressed to Vāyu alone; the Rishi is Vāmadeva; the metre Gāyatrī.

1. Drink first, Vāyu, the effused libation of the Soma at the rites that secure heaven, for thou verily art the first drinker.

2. Vāyu, who art drawn by the Nīyuts, and hast Indra for charioteer, come (for the fulfilment) of our numerous wishes, and do thou (and Indra) drink of the libation.

3. Indra and Vayu, may a thousand steeds, eager for food, bring you to drink the Soma.

4. Mount, Indra and Vayu, the golden-seated chariot, propitious to sacrifice, soaring to heaven.

5. Indra and Vayu, come with your very strong chariot to the sacrifice: come hither.

6. Indra and Vayu, this (libation) is poured out: sympathizing with the gods, drink it in the dwelling of the donor.

7. Hither be your course; here, Indra and Vayu, be the letting of your horses loose, for your drinking of the Soma.

Sukta II. (XLVII.)

Deities and Rishi as before; the metre is Anushthubh.

Varga XXIII.

1. Purified (by holy acts) I bring to thee, Vayu, the Soma, first (offered to thee at sacrifices) that seek to gain heaven: deity, who art ever longed for, come with thy Niyut steeds to drink the Soma juice.

2. Indra and Vayu, you are fit for the drinking of these Soma libations, for the drops flow towards you as waters (run) together into a deep place.

1 Sukrah-vratacharyadinā dipto aham, illustrious by observing vows, &c.

2 Ayāmi te madhvo agram: this is consistent with the passages in the preceding hymn; also Sāma-Veda, ii. 975: according to Sāyaṇa, madhvo here is for madhum, the gen. for the acc.; but this is not necessary, as, I bring to you of the Soma would be no unusual construction: Ayāmi is explained pra-payāmi, and agram, itarebhyah pūrvam: Mahādhara, Yajur-Veda, 27, 30, has a partly different version: may the cup (sukra-graha) come to thee, ayāni, āgachchhatu, which is the essence of the Soma, agram, sārabhūtah madhumah rasasya.
3 Indra and Vāyu who are lords of strength, vigorous, and drawn by the Niyut steeds, come (riding in) the same car: drink the Soma for our protection.

4. Leaders (of rites), conveyers of sacrifices, Indra and Vāyu give to us for the offerer (of the oblation), those Niyuts which are your (steeds), and are desired of many.

Sūkta III. (XLVIII.)
The deity is Vāyu; the Rishi and metre are the same as in the last.

1. Drink, Vāyu, the oblations yet untasted, like (a prince) the terrifier of foes: (bestow) upon the worshipper wealth: come with thy brilliant car to drink the Soma juice.

2. Vāyu, who art the represser of calumnies, who art drawn by the Niyuts, and hast Indra for thy charioteer, come with thy brilliant car to drink the Soma juice.

3. The dark nurses of wealth, the universal forms (heaven and earth), attend upon thee: come Vāyu with thy brilliant car to drink the Soma juice.

4. May the ninety-nine steeds harnessed together, that are as swift as thought, convey thee: come, Vāyu, with thy brilliant car, to drink the Soma juice.

5. Harness, Vāyu, a hundred plump steeds, or even a thousand, and let thy chariot come with rapidity (hither).

Súkta IV. (LXIX.)

The deities are Indra and Brihaspati; the Rishi is Váma-deva; the metre Gáyatrí.

Varga XXV.

1. (I present) the agreeable oblation to your mouths, Indra and Brihaspati, and the hymn and the exhilarating beverage are offered.

2. This delicious Soma is effused, Indra and Brihaspati, for you, for (your) drinking and exhilaration.

3. Indra and Brihaspati, come to our dwelling, drinkers of Soma, to drink the Soma juice.

4. Grant to us, Indra and Brihaspati, riches comprising a hundred (cattle), a thousand horses.

5. Indra and Brihaspati, we invoke you with praises, when the libation is effused, to drink of this Soma juice.

6. Drink, Indra and Brihaspati, the Soma, in the dwelling of the donor, and be exhilarated in his abode.

Súkta V. (L.)

The deity of the first nine verses is Brihaspati alone, and of the last two conjointly with Indra; the Rishi is as before; the metre is Trishtubh.

Varga XXVI.

1. The ancient sages, illustrious, intelligent, have placed before (them) the pleasing-tongued Brihaspati, who propped up by (his) strength the ends of the earth, and who abides with noise in the three regions.\(^1\)

2. Brihaspati, protect the fruit-yielding, progressive, uninjured, ample sacrifice of this (thy wor-shipper, at which) they who are the terrifiers (of foes), the delighters of thee who art possessed of great wisdom, glorify (thee) in our behalf.

3. Those (steeds), Brihaspati, which had come from that distant (region), the best (of all), have sat down in connexion with the ceremony, and to thee the Soma juices expressed by the stones flow copiously, (accompanied) by the sounds of praise, like deep wells that supply water.

4. Brihaspati, when first being born in the highest heaven of supreme light, seven-mouthed,¹ multiform, (combined) with sound, and seven-rayed, has subdued the darkness.

5. (Aided) by the praised and brilliant troop (of the Angirasas), he destroyed with sound the mischievous Bala: Brihaspati, shouting aloud, set free the boon-bestowing, oblation-supplying kine.

6. Thus may we offer worship with sacrifices, with oblations, with praise, to the paternal, universal deity,² the showerer (of benefits); and may we, Brihaspati, become possessed of riches, and be blessed with excellent progeny and valiant descendants.

7. That prince overcomes by his strength and prowess all hostile people, who cherishes liberally Brihaspati, and glorifies and honours him as the first sharer (of the offering).

8. Verily he abides prosperous in his own abode; for him the earth bears fruit at all seasons; to him deity presiding over mantras, he is the same with every deity;

(his) subjects willingly pay homage, the prince, to whom the Brahman first, (duly reverenced), repairs.

9. Unopposed he is the master of the riches of hostile people, and of his own subjects: the Raja who bestows riches upon the Brahman seeking his protection, him the gods protect.¹

10. Bṛihaspati, do thou and Indra, both exulting and showering riches, drink the Soma at this sacrifice: may the all-pervading drops enter you: bestow upon us riches comprising all male descendants.

11. Bṛihaspati, Indra, elevate us: may the favourable disposition of you both be combined for us: protect our rites: be awake to our laudations, confound the arrogant (foes) of us who are the donors (of obliations).

ADHYAYA VIII.
SÓKTA VI. (LI.)
The deity is the DAWN; the Rishi is VĀMADEVĀ; the metre Trishtubh.

Varga I.

1. This widely-spread and sense-bestowing light

¹ This and the two preceding stanzas are cited in the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa, viii., 5, 24, 26, as authority for the indispensable employment by a prince of a Brahman as Purohit, or priest, to conduct solemn rites on his behalf; “the gods eat not the food of a Raja who has no Purohita; therefore, when about to sacrificence, let him appoint (lit. place before) a Brahman, na havā apurohitasya Rājno devā annam adanti, tasmād Rājā yaksh-yamāna Brāhmanam puro dadhita: Sāyana, in commenting upon the verses cited, adopts some explanations differing from those here followed, but the variations are not of any great moment; as I, food, instead of Earth, his food increases at all seasons; and sajanyā, allies of his enemies, instead of his own people: wherever Brahmā occurs he renders it Brāhmaṇa.
has sprung up in the east from out the darkness: verily the brilliant Dawns, the daughters of heaven, are giving to man (the faculty to act).¹

2. The many-limbed Dawns rise up in the east, like the pillars planted at sacrifices (round the altar); radiant and purifying, they are manifested, opening the gates of the obstructing gloom.

3. The gloom-dispelling, affluent Dawns animate the pious worshippers to offer (sacrificial) treasure: may the churlish (traffickers)² sleep on unawakened, in the unlovely depth of darkness.

4. Divine Dawns, may your chariot, whether old or new, be frequent at this day’s (worship), wherewith, affluent Dawns, possessing riches, (you shine) upon the seven-mouthed (troop of the) Angirasas,³ the observers of the nine or ten days rite.⁴

5. Divine Dawns, with horses that frequent sacrifices, you quickly travel round the regions (of space): awake the sleeping being, whether biped or quadruped, to pursue (his functions).

6. Where is that ancient one of those (Dawns), through whom the works of the Ribhus were accomplished? for as the bright Dawns happily proceed, they are not distinguished, being alike and undecaying.⁵

7. Verily those auspicious Dawns have been of old,

¹ Gátum kriñavan janáya; that is, yajamanánam gamanádi-vyápórasádmartyam akurvan; they give to the offerers of sacrifice the ability to perform the acts of going and the like.

² Pañjaya in the text, vanijah in the comment; that is, according to the latter, additáraḥ, non-givers.

³ Repeating the seven vaídik metres.

rich with desired blessings, truthful (bestowers) of the results of sacrifice; at which the sacrificer, adoring with (silent) praise, glorifying (with hymns), has quickly obtained wealth.

8. They spread around of similar form, (coming) from the east, (coming) from the same region alike renowned: the divine Dawns, arousing the assembly of the sacrifice, are glorified like the (rays) creative of the waters.

9. Those Dawns proceed verily all alike, of similar form, of infinite hues, pure, bright, illumining, concealing by their radiant persons the very great gloom.

10. Divine, resplendent daughters of heaven, bestow upon us wealth, comprehending progeny: awaking you for our benefit, may we be the lords of excellent descendants.

11. Daughters of heaven, resplendent Dawns, I address you (as) the announcer of the sacrifice: may we be (the possessors) of celebrity amongst men, and may heaven and the divine earth perpetuate (it).¹

SÓKTA VII. (LII.)

The deity and Rishi as before; the metre is Gáyatris.

1. The daughter of heaven has been seen; the kind conductress (of men), the parent (of benefits), shedding radiance upon (the departure of her) sister night.²

2. Like a beautiful mare, the radiant mother of the rays of light,³ the object of sacrifice, (she) is the friend of the Aświns.⁴

3. Thou art the friend of the Aświns: thou art the mother of the rays of light: thou, Ushas, rulest over riches.¹

4 With praises we awaken thee, thou who art endowed with truth; thee, the baffler of animosities,² the restorer of consciousness.

5 The auspicious rays are visible like showers of rain;³ the dawn has filled (the world) with ample light.

6 Brilliant Ushas, filling (the world with light), thou dispersest the darkness with radiance: thereafter protect the oblation.

7 Thou overspreadest, Ushas, the heaven with rays, as well as the vast and beloved firmament with pure lustre.

Sókta VIII. (LIII.)

The deity is Savitri; the Rishi Vámadeva; the metre Jugati.

1. We solicit of the divine, powerful, and intelligent Savitri that desirable and ample (wealth), along with which he grants a dwelling to the offerer of the oblation of his own accord: may the great deity grant us such every day.⁴

2. The supporter of heaven, the protector of the world, the wise (Savitri) puts on his golden armour:⁵

² Yávayad-dweshasam: according to the scholiast, the dawn puts to flight those enemies who had been endeavouring to destroy their adversaries during the night.
³ Gavám sargá na: the first is here explained by udakánám, (see above, verse 2), of waters: udakánám sargáh means, according to Sáyana, varshadháráh.
⁴ Tachchhardir no mahán udayán devo ahtubhik; chhardíh is explained by griha, a house, or it may mean light: ahtubhik is lit. by nights, by metonymy for days.
⁵ Piśangam drápin prati munctate, is explained by Sáyana, hiranmayam kavacham áchchhádayati pratyudayam, every morning he puts on a golden cuirass.
discriminator (of objects), filling (the world with light), Savitri has engendered great and laudable felicity.

3. The divine (Savitri) fills (with radiance) the celestial and terrestrial regions, and boasts of his own functions: Savitri puts forth his arms\(^1\) for (the work of) production, regulating the world, and animating it with light.

4. The divine Savitri unrestrained, illuminating the regions, protects the righteous acts (of men); he extends his arms for (the direction of) the people of the earth: observant of obligations, he rules over the wide world.

5. Savitri, encompassing them by his magnitude, pervades the three (divisions of the) firmament,\(^2\) the three worlds, the three brilliant spheres,\(^3\) the three heavens,\(^4\) the threefold earth:\(^5\) may he, by his three functions,\(^6\) of his own (pleasure) protect us.

6. May that divine Savitri, who is the source of great happiness, the engenderer (of good works), the comprehender (of all beings), the regulator of both the moveable and the stationary, grant us happiness in the three worlds, and (be) to us for the destruction of sin.

7. May the divine Savitri approach along with the progeny and food: may he be favourable to us by night and by day: may he heap upon us wealth comprehending offspring.

Sūkta IX. (LIV.)
The deity and Rishi are the same; the metre is also Jagati, except in the last verse, in which it is Trishṭubh.

1. The divine Savitri has been manifested: he is at once to be glorified by us: he is to be praised by the priests at the present (rite), and at the close (of the day), in order that he who apportions precious things to the descendants of Manu may bestow upon us, on this occasion, most excellent wealth.

2. First thou engenderest1 for the adorable gods the best portion, immortality; then, Savitri, thou settest open (the day) to the donor (of the oblation), and (grantest) successive existences to men.2

3. If, Savitri, through ignorance, through pride in feeble or powerful (dependants), or through human infirmit y, we have committed (offence) against thy divine person, or against gods or men, do thou on this occasion hold us to be unoffending.

4. (It is) not (fit) to obstruct (the acts) of the order of fathers, sons, &c.: the verse occurs Yajur-Veda, 33.

amongst men the consequent offices of vitality, that is, the daily duties following on the return of morning.
divine Savitri, since by them he upholds the whole world, whereby his gracious hand spreads fertility over the extent of the earth, and the magnitude of the heaven: such is his true (power).

5. Thou elevatest those, of whom Indra is chief, above the vast clouds: for these, (thy worshippers), thou providest dwelling (places) filled with habitations: as when advancing they detained thee, so in like manner at thy command they stayed.¹

6. May Indra, heaven and earth, Sindhu with the waters, and Aditi with the Adityas, bestow happiness upon us, who, offering libations, Savitri, pour out the auspicious Soma, day by day, thrice a day.

Súkta X. (LV.)
The deities are the Visvádevas; the Rishi as before; the metre of the first seven verses is Trishtubh, of the last three Gayatri.

Varga VI.

1. Which of you, Vasus, is a defender? which is a protector? heaven and earth and Aditi preserve us:² defend us, Mitra and Varuna, from the strong man: who is it, gods, that offers you wealth at the sacrifice?³

2. The (deities) who bestow ancient places (of enjoyment on their worshippers), and (with minds) unperturbed, are the separators of light (from darkness);

¹ Yathá-yathá-patayantah, gachchantus, tvám viyemire evaiva tasathuk, savāya te; tavānujñayā eva eva tishthanti; it does not appear very clearly who are alluded to, but possibly it applies to the worshippers.

² Dyávahúmi adite trásitáhám nah: adite, undivided, indivisible, may be an epithet here, according to the comment, of heaven and earth.

³ Ko vo adhvare varivo dháti deváh may also mean, which of you gods bestows wealth at the sacrifice?
they, the eternal distributors (of rewards), grant (what is desired), and shine of pleasing aspect, the true (recompensers) of pious acts.\footnote{There is no peculiar difficulty in the words of this stanza, but its purport is not the less doubtful.}

3. I adore the venerated \textit{Aditi}, the \textit{Sindhu} and the divine \textit{Swasti}\footnote{\textit{Swastim} is explained, \textit{sukhanivásám, etan námihám devim}, the abode of happiness: well-being is its usual acceptation, but it is said to be here a goddess so named.} for their friendship: (I praise you) both, Day and Night, that you may protect us unimpeded; night and morning do (what we desire).

4. \textit{Aryaman} and \textit{Varuṇa} instruct us in the path (of worship): \textit{Agni}, the lord of food, points out the way to happiness: \textit{Indra} and \textit{Vishnu}, being glorified, bestow upon us desirable prosperity comprehending descendants and strength.

5. I have recourse to the protection of \textit{Parvata}, of the \textit{Maruts}, and of the divine protector, \textit{Bhaga}: may the lord (\textit{Varuṇa}) preserve us from human wretchedness, and may \textit{Mitra} defend us with a friendly regard.

6. Divine Heaven and Earth, I praise you together with \textit{Ahībudhnyā} for those (good things that are) desired, as those desirous of acquiring (riches) praise the ocean on traversing it (in which) the sounding rivers disappear.\footnote{\textit{Samudram na sancharane sanishyavah} is explained, \textit{dhanánám sambhaktum icchchantah samudramadhyagamanāya samudram yathā stavanti}, as those wishing to possess riches for the sake of going through the midst of the ocean praise the ocean: that which follows is less obvious: \textit{gharmanavarao nadyo apavran}, is rendered, \textit{dīptadhvanayo nadyo apavrinvan-titii paroksha īva}, but there is no copulative: the scholiast refers the phrase to the deities, may they, Heaven and Earth, cherish or replenish the rivers.}
7. May the divine Aditi, with the gods, preserve us: may the ever-attentive protecting (deity, Indra,) protect us: we are not able to withhold the elevated (sacrificial) food of Mitra, of Varuna, of Agni.

8. Agni is lord over treasure: Agni (is lord) over great good fortune: may he bestow them upon us.

9. Opulent Ushas, truth-speaking, food-abounding, bestow upon us many good things.

10. May Savitri, Bhaga, Varuna, Mitra, Aryaman, Indra, come to us with the wealth (that each bestows).

Sūkta XI. (LVI.)
The deities are Heaven and Earth; the Rik is as before; the metre of the three last stanzas is Gāyatrī, of the rest Trīshṭubh.

1. Vast and most excellent Heaven and Earth, be present with splendour at this (sacrifice, attracted) by sanctifying hymns; since that the showerer sounds everywhere with (his) heralds, the rapid (winds), passing through the two spacious and mighty (regions).

2. May the divine, adorable, benevolent, fertilizing, truthful, unoppressive Heaven and Earth, the leaders of sacrifice,¹ whose sons are the gods, be present with the adorable gods, (attracted) by sanctifying hymns.

3. Verily he was the doer of a good work in the regions, who generated these two, Heaven and Earth, and, firm of purpose, gave an impulse by his deed to the two vast, immovable, beautiful, unsupported worlds.

¹ Devi-yajate, aminati, ukshamāne, ritāvarī, adruhā, deva putre, yajnasya netrī, are the epithets; literally, the shining, or, as usually rendered in this translation, divine, objects of worship, unharming, sprinkling (rain, and therefore fertilizing), possessing truth, or water, or sacrifice, not oppressing or violent, having gods for sons, leaders or investigators, or subjects of sacrifice.

4. May Heaven and Earth, vast, universal, adorабle, united in satisfaction, and disposed to give us food, protect us with our spacious dwellings, inhabited by our wives, and may we for our (pious) acts be possessed of chariots and slaves.

5. We offer earnest praise to you both, resplendent (Heaven and Earth); we approach you who are pure, to offer adoration.

6. Mutually sanctifying (each other)¹ of your own substance, you shine by your own power, and ever bear away the offering.

7. Mighty (Heaven and Earth), you fulfil the desires of your friend: distributing food and giving sustenance, you have sat down at the sacrifice.

SÚKTA XII. (LVII.)
The deities, as will appear from the hymn, are so only in relation to the stanzas referring to them, being, in fact, personifications of circumstances connected with agriculture; and accordingly it is said in the Gríhya Sátras that each verse is to be silently repeated, with an oblation to fire, at the commencement of ploughing: the deity then of the first three verses is termed Kshetrapati; of the fourth, Sūna; of the fifth and eighth, Sunāśira of the sixth, and seventh Sīrā: the Rishi is, as before, Vāmadeva; the metre of the first, fourth, sixth, and seventh verses is Anushṭubh, of the rest Trishṭubh.

¹ Punáne tanvá mithāh, according to the scholiast, may be differently explained: it may apply to the worship or the worshipper, purifying them severally by each individual form, svakhyayá mūrttyá sodhvantau yajnam yajamánam vá; or it may apply to the regions, heaven and earth, the former purifying or fertilizing the latter by rain, the latter supporting the former by cultivation: dyauh svakhyenásárena bhvam, sá cha svakhyena kárśyena, the comment adds, chandramasi sthitena divam, by that which is in the sky or the moon, the sense of which is not obvious: the phrase is probably incomplete, being a quotation: these three verses occur in the Sáma-Veda, xi. 946, 947, 948.

Varga IX.

1. With the master of the field, our friend, we triumph: may he bestow upon us cattle, horses, nourishment, for by such (gifts) he makes us happy.

2. Lord of the field, bestow upon us sweet, abundant (water), as the milch cow (yields her) milk, dropping like honey, bland as butter: may the lords of the water make us happy.

3. May the herbs (of the field) be sweet for us; may the heavens, the waters, the firmament, be kind to us; may the lord of the field be gracious to us: let us, undeterred (by foes), have recourse to him.

4. May the oxen (draw) happily, the men (labour) happily; the plough furrow happily; may the traces bind happily; wield the goad happily.

5. Sūna and Sīrā be pleased by this our praise,

1 Kshetrasya patinā may be understood in its literal acceptation, or as intending Rudra or Agni.

2 This, as well as the epithet of the Kshetra-puti that follows, is the same as that of the herbs, madhumat, literally, having sweetness.

3 Śunam vāhāḥ śunam narah, &c.: śunam the scholiast renders sukham, sukham yathā bhavati tathā, so that pleasure is or may be: as a personification it is the divinity through whose favour the work goes well, sukhakrid devah, who may be either Vāyu or Indra.

4 Sunāśirau is here given in the dual as the name of two divinities, of whom Sūna, according to Saunaka, is the dyudevah, the deity of the sky, that is, Indra, when Sīrā will be Vāyu, according to Śāyana: Yāsha Nirukta, 9, 40, makes Sūna, Vāyu, and Sīrā, Āditya: in ordinary acceptation, Sunāśira is a name of Indra.
and consequently sprinkle this (earth) with the water which you have created in heaven.

6. Auspicious Sītā, be present, we glorify thee: that thou mayest be propitious to us, that thou mayest yield us abundant fruit.

7. May Īndra take hold of Sītā; may Pushan guide her; may she, well stored with water, yield it as milk, year after year.

8. May the ploughshares break up our land happily; may the ploughman go happily with the oxen; may Parjanya (water the earth) with sweet showers happily: grant, Suna and Sirá, prosperity to us.

Sōkta XIII. (LVIII.)

A choice of deities is proposed, either Agni, Sūrya, Water, the Cow, or Clarified Butter (Ghrita); the Rishi is as before; the metre Trishtubh, of the last verse Jagati.

1. The sweet water swells up from the firmament: by the (solar) ray (man) obtains immortality: that

1 Sītā is usually a furrow, and in that sense it occurs as a personification of the deity, or object of four stanzas in the Yajush, 12. 69—72, four furrows being drawn at the ceremony at which these stanzas are to be recited; but in the next stanza Sāyana explains it the wood supporting the furrow, sitādharakaśthām, which Indra is to take hold of, Indra grihnaṭu; unless kāśthā in the fem. retain its usual acceptance of quarter of the horizon, when Sītā may mean the sky, as in the next line, só, she, is interpreted by the scholiast, dyau, the sky.

2 The two last verses occur also in the Atharvan, iii. 17, 4, iii. 17, 13.

3 Samudrād-ürmir-madhumán udárat: the meaning, according to the scholiast, varies greatly according to the signification given to samudra; as, samodante asmin yajamánāh, that in which worshippers delight, sacrificial fire; or, samudrād-dru- vanti ápah, that from which waters rush, celestial fire, lightning: úrmi in the first case may imply reward or consequence, in the

VOL. III.
which is the secret name of clarified butter is the tongue of the gods, the navel of ambrosia.
2. We celebrate the name of Ghrīta at this sacrifice, we offer it with adorations: may the four-horned Brahmā listen to its being glorified; the fair-complexioned deity perfects this rite.

latter, rain; and in the latter sense of úrmi, samudra may have one of its more ordinary meanings, antariṣṭha, the firmament:
the passage, as it is said, may be also made to apply to other objects of the hymn; as, for instance, samudra may imply, etymologically, the udder of the cow; whence flows milk, samudrāravati, from which comes úrmi, ghi or butter: the whole hymn occurs in the Yajush, 17. 89—99, where Mahīdhara limits the objects to two, Ghi and Agni, atra annādhyāsenā ghrītam stūyate prānādhyāsenā cha agnīḥ: as the representative of food, ghi is here praised; as that of vitality, Agni: accordingly the phrase is differently interpreted: samudra is the ocean of ghi, from which it rises as its wave, samudrād ghrīta-mayād madhumān rasa-vān úrmir-udagachchhat, and, having so arisen, it pervades immortality by Agni, as the life of the world with whom it is combined: udgatyā cha sā úrmiṣ-ansunā jagatprānabhuṭenāg nīmā, sam-āhiṭhāya amritatvam vyāpnoti: it may be doubted if this is more intelligible than Sāyana's, but it is clear that both the commentators intend Agni, with whom ghi, as the material of the oblation, is meant to be identified.

1 Ghrītasya náma guhyam yad asti jihvā devānām amritasya nābhih; that is, the material of sacrifice commonly called ghi is, in the mantras of the Veda, designated the tongue of the gods, being used metonymically for Agni; also the navel or binding, that is, the means of securing immortality for him who offers it in oblations.

2 Brahmā chatuh-śringah: Brahmā is explained by Sāyana as usual, parivṛtθdo devah, the augmented, developed, or great deity: his four horns are the four Vedas: Mahīdhara separates the attribute as presently to be noticed, and explains Brahmā by Ritvij, priest.

3 Avamīd-gaura etat: the text gives Sāyana's explanation;
3. Four are his horns; three are his feet; his heads are two, his hands are seven: the triple-bound showerer (of benefits) roars aloud: the mighty deity has entered among men.¹

Mahidhara explains gaura by yajna, and attaches to it the epithets chutuk sringa, the sacrifice with four, priests, obtains the object for which it is solemnized: the stanza, according to Sāyana, applies especially to Agni as the sun: Mahidhara apparently refers it to ghti: the former, however, declares it applicable to all the subjects of the hymn following the etymology of the Nirukta.

¹ Sāyana, in conformity with the opinion of Yāska and others, applies this verse also preferentially to Agni, identified either with yajna or with āditya: the four horns of the former are the four Vedas; of the latter, the four cardinal points of the horizon; the three feet of Yajna are the three daily sacrifices; of Āditya, morning, noon, evening: the two heads of Yajna are two particular ceremonies termed Brahmaudanam and Pravargya; of Āditya, day and night; the seven hands of Yajna are the seven metres; of Āditya the seven rays, or the six seasons and their aggregate, or the year, as the seventh: the term vrishabhā phalānāṁ varshitā, the rainer of rewards, applies to either; and so does roravite, he roars, implying the noise made by the repetition of the mantras of the Vedas: the three bonds of Yajna are, mantra, halpa, and Brāhmaṇa, the prayer, the ceremonial, the rationale; of Āditya, the three regions, earth, mid-air, and heaven; Mahidhara limits vrishabhā, kāmānām varshitā to Yajna, and explains the attributes accordingly, but with an occasional difference: the four horns are the priests, the Hotri, Udghātri, Adhvaryu, and Brahmana; the three feet are the three Vedas; the two heads the Havirdhāna and Pravargya rites; the hands are the seven priests, or seven metres; the three bonds the three daily sacrifices: he somewhat gratuitously also applies the terms to grammatical speech, the four horns being nouns, verbs, prepositions, and particles; the three feet, either the three persons or the three times; the two heads, the agent and the object; the seven hands, the seven cases; and the three bindings,
4. The gods discovered the \textit{Ghī} concealed by the \textit{Pānis}, placed three-fold in the cow: \textit{Indra} generated one (portion), \textit{Sūrya} another, the (other gods) fabricated one from the resplendent (\textit{Agni}), for the sake of the oblation.\footnote{The \textit{Pānis} are as usual explained \textit{Asuras}: the three forms or states in which the \textit{ghī} was deposited in the cow were milk, curds, and butter, of which \textit{Indra} engendered \textit{jajōna}, milk, \textit{Sūrya} butter, and the gods (\textit{devāsah}) fabricated (\textit{tatakhuh}) curds from the shining, \textit{venāt}, that is, \textit{Agni}: \textit{Mahiddhara} renders \textit{devāsah dwijātayah}, the twice born, but does not differ materially in the rest.}

5. These hundred-channelled showers fall from the heart-delighting firmament, unobserved by the hostile (cloud): I look upon these showers of \textit{Ghī} (and behold) the golden \textit{Vetasa} in the midst of them.\footnote{According to the sense given to \textit{samudra}, the showers, first indicated by the epithet \textit{sata vṛajā}, implying merely copious, may be either of water or \textit{ghī}: \textit{vetasa} is said to be a name of \textit{Agni}, either as lightning or the sun, or the fire of sacrifice: \textit{Mahiddhara} very superfluously, and incompatibly with his explanation of the objects of the \textit{Sākta} chooses, to understand, as one meaning; \textit{stā arshanti, vácha udgachchhanti}, these words originate from the ocean of the water of faith, purified by the metres and other supplementary portions of the Vedas, amidst which words the \textit{Rishi} sees the golden form of \textit{Agni}, for \textit{Agni} is the deity presiding over speech, or holy texts, \textit{agnir hi váchām adhishthātrī devatā}: he gives as an alternative, however, a similar interpretation to that of \textit{Sāyaṇa}.}

6. They flow uninterruptedly like pleasing rivers, purified by the mind that is seated in the heart: these streams of Ghí descend (upon the fire), like deer flying from the hunter.

7. The streams of Ghí fall copious, swift as the wind, and rapid as the waters of a river down a declivity, breaking through the confining banks, and hurrying on with their waves, like a high-spirited steed.

8. The streams of Ghí incline to Agni as devoted wives, auspicious and smiling, to a husband: they feed (the flame) like fuel, and Játavedas, propitiated, accepts them.

9. I contemplate these streams of Ghí as they flow from where the Soma is effused, where the sacrifice (is solemnized), as maidens decorating themselves with unguents to go to the bridegroom.

1 Sáyana considers that in this verse the ghi that is poured from the ladle on the fire is alluded to: Mahídhara interprets dhená, which Sáyana makes an epithet of saritah, and renders prínayitryah, by váchah, words, texts, which he says flow like rivers, freed from error by the heart and the mind; separating antar-hridá by the copulative from manasá, manasá cha, whilst Sáyana makes the former the adjective of the latter, antarhridá manasá, hridayamadhyagataena chittena, by the mind gone within the heart.

2 Vástrapramiyah, váyuvat prakríshbagai: Mahídhara refers the comparison to sindhu, a river agitated by the wind.

3 Káshthá bhindan úrmibhih pinvamánah: káshthá, according to Sáyana, means limiting circles, muryádábhútán pari-dhín, limits within which the flowing butter increases with its juices; Mahídhara makes it part of the comparison, with the rapidity of the steed rushing into the boundaries of the battle, káshthá meaning sangráma pradesán: according to Sáyana, ghrita may here also mean water, when sindhu will imply the antariiksha.
10. (Priests) address the pious praise, (the source) of herds of cattle: bestow upon us auspicious riches: convey this our sacrifice to the gods, (whereat) the streams of G̣hí with sweetness descend.

11. The whole world, (Agni), finds an asylum in thine effulgence, whether it be in the ocean, in the heart (of man), in the life (of living beings), in the assemblage of the waters, or in warfare: may we attain that sweet-flavoured wave which is established in thy (essence).
The deity is Agni; the Rishis are Budha and Gavishṭhira, of the race of Athri; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. Agni is awakened by the fuel (supplied by) the priests at the dawn, approaching like a cow (to pasture): his flames rise up to the sky like stately (trees) throwing aloft their branches.\(^1\)

2. The offerer of the oblation is awakened for the worship of the gods: favourably minded, Agni has risen up with the dawn: the radiant vigour of the kindled (fire) is manifested; the great deity has been liberated from the darkness.

3. When Agni has seized upon the (confining) girdle of the aggregated (world),\(^2\) then, bright-shining, he makes all manifest with brilliant rays: thereupon the precious food-desiring (oblation) is added (to the flame), and Agni, soaring aloft, drinks it as it is (spread out) recumbent\(^3\) by the ladles.\(^4\)

\(^1\) Sáma-Veda, 1. 79, 11. 1096, Yajur-Veda, 15. 24: Mahidhara explains prati dhenum áyatim uśhásam, as the cow is awakened in the morning by the calf, and men by day-break: he differs also in the explanation of the simile in the second hemistich, yadvá iva pra vayám ujñihánáh, rendering it, as large (birds) springing from the branches of the trees, or as the largest birds from their nests.

\(^2\) Yad-im gaṇasya raśanám ajigah, when he has seized the rope of the company, i.e. the darkness encompassing the world, like a cord or rope, obstructing all active exertion, jagato rajjur-iva vyápárapratibandhakam tamas.

\(^3\) Uttánám is explained vistritám, an epithet of ájyadháram, stream of ghti, understood.

\(^4\) This and the preceding occur in the Sáma-Veda, 11. 1097—8.
4. The minds of the devout turn to Agni, as the eyes (of men) look towards the sun: when the multi-form\(^1\) (heaven and earth) bring him forth along with the dawn, he is born as a white courser in the beginning of the days.

5. (Agni), capable of birth, is born in the beginning of the days; radiant, he is deposited in the friendly woods, and then the adorable Agni, the offerer of the oblation, displaying seven precious (rays), is seated in every house.

6. The adorable Agni, the offerer of the oblation, has sat down in a fragrant place\(^2\) on the top of his mother (earth): youthful, wise, many-stationed, the celebrator of sacrifice, the sustainer (of all), kindled (he abides) amongst men.

7. They glorify at present with hymns that Agni, who is intelligent, the fulfiller (of desires) at sacrifices, the offerer of oblations, who has charged heaven and earth with water, and whom they always worship with clarified butter as the bestower of food.

8. Entitled to worship, he is worshipped in his own (abode); humble-minded, eminent amongst sages, our auspicious guest, the thousand-rayed, the showerer (of benefits), of well-known might,\(^3\) thou, Agni, sur-passest all others in strength.

9. (Too) quickly, Agni, dost thou pass to others from him to whom thou hast been manifest: most beautiful, adorable, radiant, many-shining, the loved of people, the guest of men.

10. To thee, youngest (of the gods), men present oblations, whether nigh or from far: accept the praise of him who most extols thee; for the felicity (which thou conferrest), Agni, is great, vast, auspicious.

11. Ascend to day, radiant Agni, thy resplendent, well-conducted chariot, together with the adorable hither, by the vast firmament, the gods to partake of the oblation.

12. We have uttered aloud this encomiastic praise to the wise, holy, vigorous (Agni), the showerer (of benefits): Gavishtihira offers with reverence (this) praise to Agni, like the wide-sojourning (sun), effulgent in the sky.

Súkta II. (II.)
The deity is Agni; the Rishi is Kumára, the son of Atri, or Vriṣa, the son of Jara, or both; the metre is Trishtubh, except in the last verse, in which it is Sakvari.

in secret, and gives him not up to the father: men behold not his mutilated form, but (see him) when placed before (them) in an unresting (position). 2 rijnánaván, having knowledge of the gods who are to be worshipped; the last, with regard to the ways of worshipping them, devayajanamárgán prati.

2 According to what is no doubt the most accurate interpretation of this verse, and of those which follow, they contain only a metaphorically obscure allusion to the lighting of the sacrificial fire: the mother is the two pieces of touchwood, which retain fire, the child, and will not spontaneously give it up to the father, the yajamána, until forced by attrition: till then, also, people, the priests, do not behold it, but they see it when bursting into ignition: this, however, has not satisfied the commentators, and a curious and strange legend has been devised for the interpretation of the text, or has been, perhaps, applied to it by way of explanation, having been previously current: it is more probably, however, suggested by, than suggestive of, the verses: Sāyana quotes the Sātyāyana Brāhmaṇa as the authority: the story is this: Raja Tryaruna, the son of Trivriṣṇa, of the race of Ikṣuvaikuṇa, had for his Purohit Vrīṣa, the son of Jara: it was the custom, it is said, when a Raja and his Purohit went out in the same chariot, that the latter should drive, and, on an occasion of this kind, the chariot went over a Brahman boy who was playing in the road, and killed him: a dispute ensued between the Raja and the priest as to which was the murderer, the former accusing the latter because he was driving, the Purohit retorting, that as the chariot was the Raja's, he was the responsible person: they referred the matter to an assembly of the Ikṣuvaikuṇa, who decided against the Purohit: Vṛīṣa restored the boy to life by the prayer thenceforth called after him the Vāraṇa-sāman, but being offended with the Ikṣuvaikuṇa for what he considered their partiality, fire thenceforth ceased to perform its functions in their dwellings, and the cooking of their food and other offices ceased: attributing this to the displeasure of the Rishi, the Ikṣuvaikuṇa respectfully invoked his presence, and, with the same mantra, he prayed that the energy of fire would be restored to them, which accordingly took place: this energy or activity is designated by the unusual term of Haras, Agner haras: so far the legend is intelligible, but what follows is rather obscure: Sāyana proceeds: so singing, the Rishi having seen distinctly the Brahmanicide become the wife of king Trasadasyu, in the garb of a Pisāchī, and that she, having taken the Haras away from the fire-chamber, was concealing it in her regal clothing (kaśipau?) he, having propitiated that Haras by the Vāraṇa Sāma, re-united it with Agni, upon which the offices of fire, in cooking and the like, were discharged as own accord: they apprehended not those (flames of his), but he has (again) been born, and they which had become grey-haired are (once more) young.¹

5. Who have disunited my people from the cattle?² was there not for them an invincible protector? may they who have seized upon that (people) perish, for he who knows (our wishes) approaches to (protect) the cattle.

6. Enemies have secreted amongst mortals the king of living beings, the asylum of men: may the prayers of Atri set him free; may those who revile be reviled.

7. Thou hast liberated the fettered Sunahsepa from a thousand stakes, for he was patient in endurance: so, Agni, free us from our bonds, having sat down here (at our sacrifice), intelligent offerer of oblations.

8. When angered, (Agni), depart from me: the protector of the worship of the gods, (Indra), has spoken to me: the wise Indra has looked upon thee, and, instructed by him, I have come, Agni, to thee.

9. Agni shines with great and varied radiance; he makes all things manifest by his might; he overcomes undivine malignant delusions; he sharpens his horns for the destruction of the Rakshas.

² Ke me maryaham viyavanta gobbih: what enemies have despoiled my kingdom, is the explanation of Sāyana.
³ That is, Agni.
⁴ See vol. i. p. 59, the text here divides the two parts of the name, as Sunaschichchhepa, interposing chit, a general particle, by Vaidik license.
10. May thy roaring (flames), Agni, be manifest in the sky as sharp weapons wherewith to slay the Rākshasas: in his exhilaration his shining (rays) inflict (destruction), and undivine opposing (hosts) arrest him not.

11. This praise have I, a devout worshipper, composed for thee, (Agni), who art born with many (faculties), as a steady dexterous (artisan fabricates) a car: if, divine Agni, thou approve of it, then may we obtain abundant flowing water.

12. The many-necked, the showerer (of benefits), ever increasing, collects together the wealth of the enemy without opposition: the immortals have enjoined Agni that he will bestow happiness on the man who offers sacrifice; that he will bestow happiness on the man who offers oblations.¹

Sókta III. (III.)
The deity is Agni; the Rishi, VasuŚruta, of the race of Agni; the metre is Trishtūbh.

1. Thou, Agni, art born Varuṇa, thou becomest Mitra when kindled: in thee, son of strength, art all the gods: thou art Indra, son of strength, to the mortal who presents (oblations).

2. Thou art Aryaman in relation to maidens;² thou bearest, enjoyer of sacrificial food, a mysterious name:³ they anoint thee, like a welcome friend, with milk.

² Tvam aryaṁa yat hāniṁdm: as regulator of the ceremony the nuptial fire may be regarded as Aryaman: the stanza is to be recited at marriages.
³ That of Viśvānara, according to the scholiast, the friend of all, viswa, men, nara.

3. For thy glory the \textit{Maruts} sweep (the firmament), when thy birth, \textit{Rudra}, is beautiful and wonderful:\textsuperscript{2} the middle step of \textit{Vishnu} has been placed, so thou cherishest the mysterious name of the waters.\textsuperscript{3}

4. Divine (\textit{Agni}), the gods, (made) comely by thy glory, and bearing (thee) great (affection), sip the ambrosia: men adore \textit{Agni}, the conveyer of the burnt-offering, presenting oblations on behalf of the institut-or of the rite, desirous of (its) reward.

5. There is no more venerable offerer of oblations, \textit{Agni}, than thou, nor (one) prior to thee; neither, giver of food, is any one subsequent (to be more glorified by hymns): the man of whom thou art the guest destroys hostile men by sacrifice.

6. May we, desirous of wealth, \textit{Agni}, and arousing thee by oblations, secure in thy protection, acquire (riches): may we (be victorious) in battle, (successful) in sacrifices every day; and may we, son of strength, obtain with riches male (descendants).

7. May \textit{Agni} inflict (evil) upon the evil doer who commits offence or wickedness against us: destroy, sagacious \textit{Agni}, the calumniator\textsuperscript{4} who injures us in these two ways.\textsuperscript{5}

\textsuperscript{1} \textit{Anjantimitrasm sudhitaman gobbhih}: the last, lit. with cows, is put by metonymy for the products of the cow.
\textsuperscript{2} \textit{Agni}, as the lightning.
\textsuperscript{3} \textit{Pūsi guhyam nāma gōnām}: \textit{Śāyana} renders it \textit{udahānām guhyam nāmāni rakṣasi}, but gives no explanation.
\textsuperscript{4} \textit{Abhiśastim etām}, is, properly, this calumniator, but as the antecedent of \textit{yak}, he who, in the masculine, the relative requires the sense of \textit{abhiśastri}, accuser or calumniator.
\textsuperscript{5} Offence, \textit{āyas} or \textit{aparādha}, and sin or wretchedness, \textit{enās}, or \textit{pāpa}.
8. Former (worshippers) constituting thee, divine (Agni), the messenger (of the gods), have worshipped thee with oblations at the dawn of day; when thou proceedest to the place (of the aggregation) of the wealth (of sacrifice),¹ bright-shining, kindled by the mortals who have given thee an abode.²

9. Convey him (to safety) in war, son of strength, who like a wise son offers to thee (reverence) as to a father:³ when, sagacious Agni, dost thou look upon us; when, director of sacrifice, dost thou direct us (to good ways).

10. Glorifying thee, he offers the copious oblation,⁴ if, bestower of dwellings, thou as a father art pleased to accept it: Agni, ever augmenting, and desirous (to befriend), by his might, the devout (worshipper, offering) copious oblations, bestows upon him happiness.

11. Agni, youngest (of the gods), verily thou bearest thine adorer (safe) beyond all calamities:

¹ Sansthe yad Agni iyase rayinám: lit. to the heap of riches, but the riches, according to the scholiast, are here those of the oblation, havirlakshanánám.
² Martair vasubhir idhyamánah: the second, according to Sáyana, is an epithet of the first, meaning, vásakaik, placing or fixing in an abode or place of dwelling, i.e. either the altar, or the chamber of sacrifice.
³ So in v. 2 of the next Súkta, may the bearer of the oblation, the undecaying Agni, be a father to us: or the relationship may be reversed; protect him, Agni, who, like a father, cherishes thee as a son, Agni being generated and maintained by the sacrificer; as, by another text, thou art the son of him who maintains thee.

thieves have been detected, and hostile men with covert evil intentions, have been avoided (by us).

12. These (encomiums) are directed towards thee, but perhaps an offence has thereby been uttered to (thee), the giver of dwellings:¹ may Agni, augmenting (by our praise), yield us not up to the maligner or the malevolent.

Súkta IV. (IV.)
The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

Varga XVIII.

1. Royal Agni, I glorify at sacrifices thee who art the lord of vast riches; may we who are in want of food obtain food through thee, and (through thee) may we overcome hosts of (hostile) men.

2. May the undecaying Agni, the bearer of oblations, be a father to us, all pervading and resplendent (may he be) to us of pleasing aspect: supply us plentifully with food in return for our well-maintained household fire: grant us viands abundantly.

3. You possess (priests) the wise lord of human beings,² the pure, the purifying, Agni, cherished with oblations of butter; the offerer of the burnt-offering, the all-knowing; he among the gods bestows desirable (riches).

4. Be propitiated Agni, sharing in satisfaction with Ilā, viesing with the rays of the sun: be gratified, ² In the first verse we had vasupatim vasunām, the lord of riches, of riches; so here we have a similar redundancy of construction, viśām viśpatim, the lord of men, of men.

Jātavedas, by our fuel, and bring the gods to partake of the oblation.

5. Propitiated, lowly-minded, a guest in the dwelling, come, thou who art wise, to this our sacrifice: having destroyed, Agni, all our adversaries, bring off the possessions of those who bear us enmity.

6. Demolish, Agni, with thy weapon, the Dasyu, appropriating the sustenance to thine own person; and inasmuch, son of strength, as thou satisfiest the gods, so do thou, Agni, chief of leaders, protect us in battle.

7. We worship thee, Agni, with hymns; we (worship thee), purifier, and of auspicious lustre, with oblations: bestow upon us all desired riches; bestow upon us all sorts of wealth.

8. Accept, Agni, our sacrifice: son of strength, the abider in the three regions, (accept our) oblation: may we be (regarded) amongst the gods as doers of good: cherish us with triply-protected felicity.

9. Thou conveyest us, Jātavedas, across all intolerable evils, as (people are carried) over a river by a boat: Agni, who art glorified by us with reverence, such as (that shewn) by Atri, know thyself the protector of our persons.

10. Inasmuch as I who am a mortal earnestly invoke thee who art an immortal, praising thee with a

11. Upon whatsoever performer of good works thou, Agni, who art Játavedás, castest a favourable regard, he enjoys welfare, and riches, comprehending horses, cattle, sons, and male descendants.²

Sókta V.. (V.)
The deities are the Ápris;³ the Rishi is Vásuṣrūta, the metre Gáyatri.

Varga XX.

1. Offer abundant butter to the resplendent Susamiddha,⁴ to Agni, to Játavedás.

2. Narášansa animates this sacrifice, he who is uninjurable, who verily is wise and sweet-handed.

3. Agni, who art Ílita, bring hither the wonderful and friendly Indra, with his easy-going chariots for our protection.

4. (Grass),⁵ soft as wool, be spread; the worshippers praise thee: be to us radiant (grass the source of) liberality.

5. Open divine doors, our passages to preservation; fill full the sacrifice (with its rewards).

² These last two stanzas are to be recited at the sacrifice for obtaining sons, putrahámeshṭi.
³ See vol. ii. p. 329.
⁴ This agrees with the first hymn, vol. i. p. 31, in making Susamiddha a name, not merely an epithet of Agni.
⁵ The Barhis or Posa cynosuroides.
6. We glorify the evening and the morning, lovely, food-bestowing, mighty, the mothers of sacrifice.

7. Praised (by us), divine invokers of the gods, come, moving on the path of the wind,¹ to this sacrifice of our patron.²

8. May Ilā, Saraswati, Mahī, the three goddesses who are the sources of happiness, sit down, benevolent, upon the sacred grass.

9. Tashtṛí being propitious, thou who art diffusive in kindness, come of thine own accord, protect us in repeated sacrifices.

10. Wherever thou knowest, Vanaspati, the secret forms of the gods to be,³ thither convey the oblations.

11. The oblation is offered with reverence⁴ to Agni, to Varuna; with reverence to Indra, to the Maruts; with reverence to the gods.

Sūkta VI. (VI.)
The deity is Agni; the Rishi as before; the metre is Pankti.

1. I glorify that Agni who is the giver of dwellings; to whom, as to their home, the milch kine, the lightings, to whom the milch kine, the light-faced steeds, the well-born, devout worshippers repair: do thou,

Agni, bring food to thine adorers.²

3. Agni, the all-beholding, gives, verily, to the man (who worships him, a son) possessing abundant that wealth which is of its own nature precious: do thou, Agni, bring food to thine adorers.³

4. We kindle thee, divine Agni, bright, undecaying, so that thy glorious blaze shines in heaven: do thou bring food to thine adorers.⁴

5. To thee, radiant Agni, lord of light, giver of pleasure, destroyer (of foes), protector of man, the bearer of oblations, to thee the oblation is offered with the sacred verse: do thou bring food to thine adorers.⁵

abroad; they crave perpetually (sacrificial) food: bring, Agni, food to thine adorers.

7. These thy flames, Agni, fed with abundant food, increase, as, by their descent, they seek the pastures of the hoofed cattle: bring, Agni, food to thine adorers.

8. Grant, Agni, to us who praise thee, new dwellings, and (abundant) food: may we be those who worship thee, having thee for a messenger (to the gods) in every house: bring, Agni, food to thine adorers.

9. Giver of delight, thou receivest into thy mouth the two ladles (full) of butter; so mayest thou fulfil (our desires), lord of strength, at our solemn rites: bring, Agni, food to thine adorers.

10. Thus have they repaired to Agni with praises and with sacrifices successively, and have established (the manner of his worship); and he has given us male descendants, and wealth of fleet horses: bring, Agni, food to thine adorers.

Sūkta VII. (VII.)
The deity as before; the Rishi is Isha, of the race of Athi; the metre is Anushṭubh, except in the last verse, in which it is Pankti.

1. Friends, offer fitting praise and food to Agni, the most liberal benefactor of men, the powerful son of strength.\footnote{\textit{Urjo naptre}, Sāyana renders, \textit{balasya putrāya}: Mahidhara, \textit{Yajush}, 15. 29, translates \textit{Urj}, water, and the appellative, grandson of water, timber being the offspring of water, and fire the offspring of fuel.}

2. Where is (the deity) upon whose presence the rejoicing conductors (of the ceremony) are offering homage in the hall of sacrifice, (he) whom they kindle, and living beings generate.

3. When we present to him (sacrificial) food, when (he accepts) the oblations of men, then by the power of the brilliant (viands), he assumes the radiance of the rite.\footnote{\textit{Ritanyā raśmim ādade} is variously explained by the schol-iast, he accepts the ray that is the apprehender or absorber, grāhaka, of water, alluding to the production of rain as the result of burnt-offerings; or he becomes endowed with the energy generative of the reward of the sacrifice, \textit{phalajanaham tejah} \textit{sukhritavān}; or, again, he accepts the praise which is, as it were, the lustre or ray of the sacrifice.}

4. Verily he gives a signal by night to one who is far off, when he, the purifier, the undecaying, consumes the forest Lords.

5. At whose worship (the priests) pour the drip-ing (butter) upon the flames, and (the drops) mount upon the fire as if they were its own numerous offspring, as (boys ride) upon the back (of a father).\footnote{\textit{Bhumā prishtheva}, is, literally, like many or much on the back: the scholiast explains \textit{bhumā} as signifying offspring, or that which is many, \textit{bahu bhavatīte bhumā apatyam}; and \textit{prishtha}, he adds, implies the backs of the father, \textit{pituh prishthadesān iva}; as boys mount upon the fathers' side, so do the flames, \textit{putrā yathā piturankam ārohanti tad vāt}.}

6. Him whom the desired of many, the (devout) man recognises as the sustainer of all, the flavourer of food, the provider of dwellings for men.

7. He crops the dry ground strewn (with grass and wood), like an animal grazing; he with a golden beard, with shining teeth, vast, and of irresistible strength.

8. Bright as an axe is he to whom the (worshipper), like Atri, proceeds (to offer worship): he whom his prolific mother has brought forth, bestowing (a benefactor on the world), when (Agni) obtains (sacrificial) food.

9. To thee, Agni, the accepter of the oblation, the upholder (of all), there is pleasure (from our praise): do thou bestow upon these thy worshippers wealth, and food, and a heart (grateful for thy favour).

10. May the sage who is in this manner the offerer of exclusive praise (Agni, to thee), accept the cattle which are to be given to thee; and thereupon may Atri overcome the irreligious Dasyus: may Isha overcome the hostile men.

1 Dhanwákshitam dáti: dhanva the commentator explains a place without water, nírudákaprađeşam; and ákshitam, triña- kháshthádibhir ákshiptam, tossed over with grass, timber, and the like.

2 Suchi sma yasmá atrivat pra svadshitva ryate: it is not very obvious whether the comparisons apply to Agni, or the worshipper; they might both be understood by the worshipper, eager to offer oblation as an axe to cut; or both might be applied to Agni; atri, meaning an eater, or devourer, or an animal eating grass: it seems, however, most reasonable to apply atrivat to the yajumána, and svadhitá to Agni.

3 Isha saśakhyán nriń: ishah may be, according to Sáyana, the Rishi of the Súkta; or derived from ish, and being the accus.-plur., it may be an epithet of nriń, encountering or opposing men.
Sūkta VIII. (VIII.)

The deity and Rishi as before; the metre is Jagati.

Varga XXVI.

1. Manifestor of strength, Agni, ancient worshippers have kindled thee of old for their preservation; thee, the delighter of many, the adorable, the all-sustaining, the lowly-minded, the lord of the house, the excellent.

2. Men have established thee, (Agni), their ancient guest, as the lord of the house; (thee), the blazing-haired, the vast banded, the multiform, the dispenser of wealth, the bestower of happiness, the kind protector, the destruction of decaying (trees).¹

3. Human beings glorify thee, Agni, the appreciator of burnt-offerings, the discriminator (of truth), the most liberal giver of precious (things), abiding (awhile), auspicious one, in secret, (at other times) visible to all, loud sounding, offering worship, thriving upon clarified butter.

4. We approach thee, all-sustaining Agni, adoring thee in many ways with hymns and with prostrations: do thou, Angiras, when kindled, be propitious to us: may the divine (Agni be pleased) by the (sacrificial) food (offered by the) worshipper, and by the bright flames (of his sacrifice).

5. Agni, the praised of many, thou who art multiform, givest of old food to every mortal; thou reignest with strength over the various (sacrificial) viands; the splendour of thee when blazing brightly is not rivalled (by any).

¹ Jara-d-visham is, literally, that which is poison to the old: the commentator explains it jara-tam vriksaham vyadpakam, the pervader or consumer of old trees; or it may mean jirno-dakam, that by which water is dried up.
6. Agni, youngest (of the deities), the gods have made thee, when kindled, their messenger, the bearer of oblations; thee, who art rapid in movement, and of whom butter is the source, they have made, when invoked, the brilliant eye (of the universe), instigated by the understanding.

7. The ancient seekers after happiness have kindled thee, Agni, when invoked, (and fed thee) with abundant fuel; and thou (thereby) increasing, and supplied with shrubs, art dominant over all terrestrial viands.\(^1\)

\(^1\) Abhi jrayáśni párthivá vi tishthase: Sáuya explains jrayáśni by annáni, food, eatables; and párthivá by vriksháh, trees; or he admits it to be an epithet of jrayáśni, earthly eatables, as the cakes and butter presented in sacrifices with fire.

SUKTA IX. (IX.)

The deity is AGNI; GAYA, of the race of ATRI, is the Rishi; the metre of the fifth and seventh stanzas is Pankti, of the rest Anushtubh.

1. Mortals bearing oblations glorify thee, AGNI, the divine: I praise thee, JATAVEDAS,\(^1\) for that thou conveyest successively oblations (to the gods).\(^2\)

2. AGNI is the invoker of the gods (on behalf of) him, the donor (of the oblation), the abode (of the fruit of good works), by whom the sacred grass has been strewn; (he) in whom congregate all sacrifices securing food and fame.

3. He (it is) whom the two sticks have engendered like a new-born babe; the supporter of men the descendants of \textit{Manu}, the fit object of sacrifice.

4. Thou art laid hold of with difficulty like the young of tortuously-twining (snakes);\textsuperscript{1} thou who art the consumer of many forests, as an animal is of fodder.

5. Of whom smoke-emitting, the flames intensely collect; then, when diffused in the three regions\textsuperscript{2} \textit{Agni} inflates himself in the firmament, like the blower of a bellows, and sharpens (his flames), as (the fire blazes from the blast) of the blower.\textsuperscript{3}

6. By the protections of thee, \textit{Agni}, the friend (of all), and by our praises (of thee), may we pass safe from the evil acts of men, as if from malignant (enemies).

7. Powerful \textit{Agni}, bestow upon us the institutors (of pious rites), that wealth (which we desire): may he discomfit (our foes): may he cherish us: may he be ever ready to bestow upon us food: and do thou,\textsuperscript{4} \textit{Agni}, be present in battles for our success.

\textsuperscript{2} \textit{Yadim aha trito divi upadhamati} is explained, \textit{tríshú stháneshu vyáptah}, spread in the three regions; or, \textit{tríni sthánáni atitya}, having gone beyond the three regions; \textit{átmánam upa varddhayati}, he blows up or enlarges himself.

\textsuperscript{3} The text has \textit{sípite dhmútari}, he sharpens as in a blower; which the scholiast explains, like the fire, which, in the proximity of one blowing with a bellows, blazes up, so \textit{Agni} sharpens his flames, or of himself adds to their intensity.

\textsuperscript{4} The confusion of the second and third person is that of the original.
SÚKTA X. (X.)
The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Agni, of irresistible prowess, bring to us most powerful treasure; (invest us) with surrounding wealth; mark out the paths to abundance.\(^1\)

2. Marvellous Agni, (gratified) by our acts, (produce) in us greatness of vigour: in thee abides the strength destroying evil spirits: thou who art to be worshipped, like Mitra, art the doer (of great deeds).\(^2\)

3. Augment, Agni, our dwelling and prosperity, for the devout men (who have propitiated thee) by their praises have acquired riches.

4. Delightful Agni, those men who glorify thee with hymns become rich in horses, and are invigorated with (foe-destroying) energies; and their great renown, spread through the firmament, arouses (thee) of thine own accord.\(^3\)

5. These thy bright and fierce flames, Agni, spread around like the circumambient lightnings, and are like a rattling chariot rushing (into battle) for booty.

6. Be prompt, Agni, for our protection, and for the \(^1\) Sáma-Veda, 1. 81: there is a slight difference in the text of the second half of the stanza.

\(^2\) The text has only hráná for kurvána: the acts alluded to are such as driving away the Rákshasas or other disturbers of religious rites.

\(^3\) Diváśchid yeshám brihat sukhrtrir bodhati tmaná: the application of the two last words is somewhat doubtful: Sáyāna disconnects them from the preceding, and supplies the name of the Rishi of the Súkta, Gaya, as the nominative of bodhati; evamvidham tvám Goyastmaná swayam eva bodhayati, Gaya of his own accord, or of himself, as it were, arouses thee, Agni, so described.
gift of poverty-repelling (riches); and may our pious (descendants be able to) compass all their desires.

7. Agni, who art Angiras, glorified in the past, glorified (at present), invoker (of the gods), bring unto us riches (enabling us) to overcome the mighty: give to thy praisers (ability) to praise thee, and be (at hand) for our success in battles.

Śūkta XI. (XI.)
The deity is Agni; the Rishi is Sutambhara, of the race of Atri; the metre is Jagati.

Varga III.

1. The vigilant, the powerful Agni, the protector of man, has been engendered for the present prosperity (of the world): fed with butter, (blazing) with intense (radiance) reaching to the sky, the pure Agni shines brilliantly for the Bharatas.¹

2. The priests have first kindled,² in three places, Agni, the banner of sacrifice, the family priest, (riding) in the same car with Indra and the gods: he, the performer of pious acts, the invoker (of the gods), has sat down on the sacred grass for the (celebration of the) rite.

3. Thou art born unobstructed of two mothers:³ pure, adorable, wise, thou hast sprung up from (the devotion of) the householder: they have augmented thee with butter: Agni, to whom burnt-offerings are made, the smoke is thy banner spread abroad in the sky.

² Trishadhashe samidhikre, that is, as the three fires, the Gárhapatya, Áhavanïya, and Daksîna.

4. May Agni, the fulfiller (of all desires), come to our sacrifice: men cherish Agni in every dwelling: Agni, the bearer of oblations, has become the messenger (of the gods): those adoring Agni adore him as the accomplisher of the sacrifice.

5. To thee, Agni, this most sweet speech (is addressed); may this praise be gratification to thy heart: pious hymns fill thee, and augment thee with vigour, as large rivers (replenish) the sea.

6. The Angirasas discovered thee, Agni, hidden in secret, and taking refuge from wood to wood: thou art generated, being churned with great force; therefore they have called thee, Angiras, the son of strength.

Sókta XII. (XII.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. I offer to the great, the adorable Agni, the rainer of water, the vigorous, the showerer (of benefits), the present acceptable praise, like well-purified butter (poured) at sacrifices into his mouth.

2. Agni, who knowest (the purpose of) the sacrifice, assent to this rite: be favourable to the copious

1 Sáma-Veda, ii. 258. Yajur-Veda, 15. 28: Mahidhara agrees with Sáyana: he adds as the explanation of guhá, apnu, in the waters, referring to the familiar legend, see vol. i. p. 4, note.
showers of water:¹ (endowed) with strength, (I undertake) not (to obstruct) sacred acts, nor adjure the rite with both (truth and untruth),² but (repeat the praise) of the resplendent showerer (of benefits).

3. Agni, bestower of water, by what (act of) truth mayest thou, who art adorable, be cognizant of our adoration: may the divine Agni, the guardian of the seasons, recognise me: I (know) him not (yet) as the lord of the riches of which I am the possessor.³

4. Who, Agni, among thy (followers) are the prisoners of foes? who among them are the protectors (of men), the splendid distributors of gifts? who

¹ When the author of a Sūkta takes a fancy for the word rita, probably, in one of its meanings, the Latin ritus, it is difficult to follow him in respect of its various significations of sacrifice, praise, truth, water: ritasya dhārā, however, necessarily implies the last.

² The text is very elliptical and obscure: nāham yātum sahasā na dwayena ritam sapāmi arushasya vrishnāh: it is, literally, not I to go by strength, not by the two I swear, the sacrifice of the shining showerer: Sāyana supplies yukta, joined or endowed sahasā, with strength, and makes yātum mean to injure, or injury of pious acts, connecting it with sapāmi, which he renders by spritāmi or karomi, I touch or do; I do not proceed to injure sacred offices: by the two, he explains satyāṅrītābhāyām, by truth and untruth, that is, āvaidhām kṛityam na sapāmi, na karomi, I perform not any act not enjoined by the Veda: ritam here he interprets praise, and again attaches to it sapāmi, without the negative, I vow or repeat the praise of Agni.

among them defend the asserter of untruth? who are the encouragers of evil deeds?¹

5. These thy friends, Agni, everywhere dispersed, were formerly unhappy (in abandoning thy worship), but are again fortunate (by its renewal): may they who, with (censorious) words, impute fraudulent (practices) to me who pursue a straight path, bring evil upon themselves.

6. May the dwelling of him, Agni, who celebrates thy worship with reverence, of him who protects the sacrifice (offered) to the resplendent showerer (of benefits), be well stored; and may a virtuous successor of the man who diligently worships thee come in his place.

Sókta XIIII. (XIII.)

The deity and Rishi as before; the metre is Gáyatrí

1. Adoring thee, Agni, we invoke thee: adoring thee we kindle thee, adoring thee for protection.

2. Desirous of wealth, we recite to day the effectual praise of the divine Agni, (whose radiance) reaches the sky.²

3. May Agni, who amongst men is the invoker of the gods, accept our praises; may he offer sacrifice to the divine beings.

4. Thou, Agni, art mighty and gracious, the (ministrant) priest, the desired (of all): through thee the worshippers complete the sacrifice.

¹ The two last are persons not worshipping Agni; but the verse may be also thus rendered, who are they that confine their foes? who are they that preserve men from uttering untruth? who are they that vindicate people from calumny? they are, Agni, thy worshippers.

² This and the two next verses occur Sáma-Veda, ii. 755—757.
5. Wise worshippers exalt thee, Agni, the bountiful giver of food, the deservedly lauded: do thou bestow upon us excellent strength.

6. Agni, thou encompassest the gods as the circumference (surrounds) the spokes (of a wheel): bestow manifold wealth upon us.

SÓKTA XIV. (XIV.)
The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

Varga VI.

1. Waken the immortal Agni with praise, that, being kindled, he may bear our oblations to the gods.

2. Mortals worship him an immortal divinity at their sacrifices, most adorable among the human race.

3. Numerous (worshippers), pouring out butter from the (sacrificial) ladle, glorify him, the divine Agni, that he may convey their oblation (to the gods).

4. Agni, as soon as born, blazes brightly, destroying the Dasýus, and (dispersing) the darkness by his lustre: he has discovered the cows, the waters, the sun.

5. Worship the adorable Agni, the sage, whose summit blazes with butter: may he hear and comprehend my invocation.

6. They have augmented Agni, the beholder of all, with oblations and with praises, along with the gods, the objects of pious meditation, desirous of praise.

ANU VÁKA II.

SÓKTA I. (XV.)
The deity is Agni; the Rishi Dharuna, of the family of Angiras; the metre is Tristubh.

Varga VII.

1. I offer praise to Agni, the creator, the far-seeing, the adorable, the renowned, the first (of the gods); he who is propitiated by oblations, the strong, the giver of happiness, the possessor of riches, the receiver of oablutions, the bestower of dwellings.

2. They are detaining by sacrifice the true recipient (of offerings) in the most eminent place of the ceremony, who brings together the leaders (of the rite), the unborn with the born, (or gods and men), as seated at the solemnity which is the stay of heaven.

3. They who (present) to the chief (of the gods) the great food (of sacrifice), unattainable (by the Rākshasas), enjoy forms exempt from defect: may that new-born Agni scatter assembled (hosts): let them stand from around me, as (deer avoid) an angry lion.

4. When, everywhere predominating, thou cherishest all men like a mother, and (art implored by all) to behold and to support them; and when, being detained, thou maturest every kind of food, then, multiform (Agni), thou comprisest (all beings) in thyself.

5. Divine Agni, may the (sacrificial) food, the vast yielder (of benefits to men), the sustainer of riches, support the utmost of thy vigour; and do thou, considering (the means of acquiring) great riches, like a thief keeping concealed the article (he has stolen), be propitious to Atri.¹

Súkta II. (XVI.)

The deity as before; the Rishi is Púru, of the race of Atri; the metre is Anuṣṭubḥ, except in the last verse, in which it is Pankti.

1. Offer abundant (sacrificial) food to the brilliant divine Agni, whom mortals have placed before them by praises as a friend.²

2. For that Agni, (endowed) with the lustre of the strength of his arms, is the ministrant priest of mortals, who (presents) the oblation to the gods in succession, and like Bhaga³ distributes desirable wealth.

3. (May we be assiduous) in the praise, (and cherished) in the friendship, of that very radiant possessor of wealth, on whom, loud-sounding and all-ruling, (his) universal (worshippers) have conferred vigour.

4. Now verily, Agni, (be disposed) for bestowing excellent strength on these (thy worshippers): heaven and earth have invested him with glory like the vast (sun).⁴

¹ This may, perhaps, also imply that wealth bestowed upon the Rishi is deposited in a secure receptacle, like the hidden booty of a thief, padam na táyur guhám dadhánah, but the whole Súkta is obscurely worded.
² Sáma-Veda, i. 88: the latter reads prastāaye, for praise, instead of prastāthih, by praises.
³ Bhaga, according to Sáyána, here means Súrya.
⁴ The text has only yahvam na, like the great; the scholiast has mahántam súryam iva, like the great sun.
5. Glorified by us, Agni, come quickly, and bring us desirable wealth: we who (are thy worshippers), we (who are thine) adorers, offer thee welcome together with oblations: be thou favourable to us; be (our) success in battles.

Śūkta III. (XVII.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Divine Agni, a mortal thus with sacrifices (calls upon thee) who art endowed with lustre for protection: Púru adores Agni for protection when the sacred rite is solemnized.

2. Performer of various functions,1 who art deservedly renowned, thou praisest by thy words that Agni, who is possessed of wonderful splendour; who is exempt from pain; who is adorable and supreme in understanding.

3. He who is endowed with vigour, is (glorified) by praise, and by whose radiance, like that of the sky, the rays of light shine brightly: by his lustre, verily, (the sun is luminous).2

4. By the worship of him who is pleasing of aspect the provident (heap) wealth in their cars: Agni, to whom oblations are due, is then glorified by all people.

5. Quickly, (Agni, give us) desirable (wealth), such as the devout, combining with (pious) praise, (obtain): son of strength, (be favourable) to (my)

1 Vidharman: it applies either to the Rishi or the yajamāna.
2 The text has only asya vásā u archishá, vá asá being put for vá asau; literally, by the light of him, he verily: asau, he, according to the commentator, designates the sun; and the entire phrase is, by the light of him, that is, of Agni, the sun becomes radiant; ādityo archishmán bharati.
desires; protect us (from calamity); be alert for our prosperity;¹ come for our success in battles.

Súkta IV. (XVIII.)
The deity and metre as before; the Rishi is Dwíta, of the race of Atri.

Varga X.

1. Let Agni, the beloved of many, the guest of man, be present at dawn; he who, immortal, desires the oblations of mortals.²

2. Be (willing to make) a grant of thine own strength to Dwíta, the bearer of the pure oblation; for he, immortal Agni, thy diligent praiser, brings to thee continually the Soma juice.

3. I invoke thee bright-shining, through a long life, with praise, (for the benefit) of the affluent, that their chariot, giver of horses, may proceed unimpeded.

4. Amongst whom the ceremonial of many kinds is observed; who perpetuate the sacred hymns by their recital; by them the sacrificial viands are placed upon the strewn grass (at the sacrifice which) leads (the worshipper) to heaven.³

5. Immortal Agni, bestow upon those opulent men, who, upon (my) praise (of thee), gave to me fifty

¹ Śagdhi svastaye: the commentator says the verb may here be put for the first person, and mean yáche, I ask for, or it may mean, as translated, saktá bhava, be able.

² Sáma-Veda, i. 85: the reading of the second half of the stanza somewhat differs: our text is visváni yo amartya havyá martyesu ranyati: the Sáma has visve yasminn-amartya havyam martásu indhati, in or upon all that which is immortal, mortals offer oblations.

³ Swarg-nare, a synonyme here of yajñe, swargam yajmánam nayati, it leads the yajmánam to heaven.
horses, and brilliant, ample, and abundant food, (supporting numerous) dependants.

ŚUKTA V. (XIX.)
The deity as before; the Rishi is named Vāvri; the metre of the two first stanzas is Gāyatrī, of the two next Anushtubh, and of the fifth Virāṭrāpā.

1. Unprosperous circumstances affect Vāvri: may the accepter (of oblations) become cognizant (of them), as, reclining on the lap of his mother, he beholds all things.

2. They who know (thy power) invoke thee incessantly, and nourish (thy) strength (by oblations):
they dwell in an impregnable city.

3. Living men, with collars of gold, earnest in praise, desirous of food, augment by this laudation the vigour of thee abiding in the white firmament.

4. May (Agni) with his two relatives, (heaven and earth), hear this faultless (praise), acceptable as milk: he who, like the mixed oblation, is filled with food,¹ and, unsubdued, is ever the subduer of his foes.

5. Radiant (Agni), who art made manifest by the wind, and art sporting amidst the ashes (of the forest), be present with us: and may the fierce fiery flames, destructive of foes, be gentle to this thy worshipper.

¹ Gharma na vājajatahratah, he in whose belly is food like the gharma: besides its ordinary sense of warm, hot, and that of day, assigned to it by Yāska, the word has other meanings: Śāyāṣa apparently identifies it with the ceremony called Pra-vargya, pravargya iva gharma yathā havendājyaṇapayasyāsikha, like the Pravargya the gharma, sprinkled with the oblation butter and milk; perhaps we should read pravargye, at the Pravargya, for, by a subsequent passage, gharma means a vessel, a pitcher.
SŨKTA VI. (XX.)

The deity as before: certain persons of the race of ATRI, called Prayāsvata, are the Rishi; the metre of the last stanza is Pankti, of the rest Anushtubh.

Varga XII.

1. That (sacrificial) wealth, Agni, bounteous giver of food, of which thou approvest, and which deserves to be commended by our praises, do thou convey to the gods.¹

2. May those prosperous men who do not offer oblations to thee become destitute of great strength, and may (the followers) of other (than vaidik) observances incur (thy) enmity and punishment.

3. We, Prayāsvata,² have recourse to thee, the invoker (of the gods), the means of strength: we glorify thee first at sacrifices with praise.

4. Possessor of strength, day by day so (provide), that we may enjoy thy protection; doer of good deeds, may we (be deserving) of wealth through sacrifice, and may we be happy with cattle, happy with male descendants.

SŨKTA VII. (XXI.)

The deity as before; the Rishi is Sasa; the metre as before.

Varga XIII.

1. Like MANU, we meditate, Agni, upon thee; like MANU, we kindle thee: worship the gods on behalf of the (worshipper), devout as MANU.

2. When thou art pleased, Agni, thou shinest upon the human race: well-born, feeder upon clarified butter, the ladles are constantly uplifted to thee.

3. All the consentient divinities have made thee

¹ Yajur-Veda, 19. 64: instead of vājasátama, the printed Yajush reads havayavāhana, conveyer of offerings to the manes.
² Prayāsvantah is, literally, those having food, annavantah.
their messenger; therefore the pious worship thee who art divine, wise Agni, at sacrifices.

4. Man praises thee, divine Agni, to convey his offerings to the gods: bright Agni, blaze when kindled: take thy seat in the chamber (of sacrifice), in the chamber of the sincere Sasa.

Sūkta VIII. (XXII.)

The deity and metre as before; the Rishi is Viśvasāman.

1. Sing, Viśvasāman, like Atri, (a hymn) to the dispenser of purifying light: (to him) who is to be praised at sacrifices, the invoker of the gods, the most adorable by man.

2. Cherish the divine Agni, by whom all that exists is known, the priest (of the rite): may the sacrifice most suitable for the gods duly this day proceed to them.

3. Men have recourse to thee, divine Agni, who art of intelligent mind, for security: we praise thee who art most excellent, seeking thy protection.

4. Agni, son of strength, recognise the words of this our (laudation): handsome-chinned, lord of the dwelling, the sons of Atri exalt thee, such (as thou art), by their praises: they embellish thee by their hymns.

Sūkta IX. (XXIII.)

The deity and metre as before; the Rishi is Dyumna.

1. Bestow, Agni, upon Dyumna a son, overcoming foes by his prowess; one who may with glory subdue all men in battle.

2. Mighty Agni, grant us a son able to encounter

1 The text has rayim, rem, riches, but the scholiast understands it metaphorically, and renders it putram, a son, a meaning consistent with what follows.
hosts; for thou art true and wonderful, and the giver of food with cattle.

3. All men concurring in satisfaction, bearing the clipt sacred grass, solicit thee, as the kind invoker of the gods, to the chambers (of sacrifice) for infinite wealth.

4. May the (sage) on whom all men rely, possess foe-subduing strength: radiant Agni, so shine in our habitations that they may abound in riches: shine, purifying Agni, dispensing light.

Súkta X. (XXIV.)
The deity is Agni; the Rishis are termed Gaúpáyanas and Lau-páyanas, and are four in number, named severally, Bandhu, Subandhu, Shrutarbandhu, and Víprarbandhu, to each of whom a half stanza of the two stanzas of which the Súkta consists is attributed; the metre is Viráj.

1, 2.1 Agni, who art to be adored, be ever nigh to us,

1 These two verses seem to be favourites: the first pada of the first occurs twice in the Sáma-Veda, i, 448, ii. 457; the second once, ii. 459: the second pada of the second stanza occurs in the same, ii. 459: we have both of them (twice in the Yajush, 3. 25, 15. 48: Mahidhara's explanation is much the same as Sáyana's, except in one or two words; as varúthyah in the first line of the first stanza: Sáyana explains it varaniyakah, sambhajanyakah, that which is to be chosen, to be enjoyed, to be worshipped: Mahidhara interprets it favourable or auspicious to the family or the house, varútha meaning, he says, either putra samúha, an assemblage of sons, or gríha, a house: Sáyana also gives as an alternative, endowed or inclosed with circumferences or defences, parídhíbhír-vritak, alluding, perhaps, to the common import of varútha the fender of a carriage: again, rasu-ravas, in the second line of the first verse, which Sáyana interprets vyáptánnak, he by whom food is dispensed, Mahidhara explains renowned for wealth. our protector and benefactor: do thou, who art the giver of dwellings and dispenser of food, be present with us: bestow upon us most brilliant wealth.

3, 4. Understand us, Agni; hear our invocation; defend us from all malevolent (people): most bright and resplendent Agni, we earnestly solicit thee for the happiness (of ourselves) and our friends.

Sûktâ XI. (XV.)
The deity as before; the Rishis are those of the race of Atri, named Vasúyus; the metre is Anushthubh.

1. Celebrate the divine Agni for his protection:
may he who presides over dwellings grant (our desires): may the son of the Rishis, the observers of truth, save us from those who hate us.

2. That Agni is true whom the ancients, whom the gods have kindled, as the bright-tongued invoker of the gods, radiant with holy splendours.

3. Agni, to be propitiated by praises, (gratified) by our choicest and most excellent adoration and hymns, bestow upon us riches.

4. Agni shines amongst the gods: Agni is present amongst mortals: Agni is the bearer of our oblations:
glorify Agni with praises.

5. May Agni bestow upon the donor (of the oblation) a son, abounding in food, abounding in devotion, extcellent, unharmed, conferring honour upon his progenitors.

1 Agni is termed the son of the Rishis, as generated by their rubbing the sticks together which produce fire.

2 Satya: by true, in this and other passages, is meant, it is said, one who does not fail to bestow upon his worshippers the recompense of their devotions.
6. May Agni bestow a son, the protector of the good, who, with his followers, may be victorious in battle: may he bestow a swift-footed steed, conquering, unconquered.¹

7. That (praise) which best conveys (our veneration is due) to Agni: affluent in splendour, grant us, (Agni), great (wealth), for from thee vast riches and ample food proceed.²

8. Brilliant, Agni, are thy rays: mighty art thou termed, like the stone (that bruises the Soma), and thy voice spontaneously spreads through the sky like thunder.

9. Thus we, Vasúyus,³ glorify the vigorous Agni:

¹ This and the preceding verse are directed to be recited at a sacrifice performed to obtain male offspring, putrakámeshti.

² Sáma-Veda, i. 86. Yajur-Veda, 26. 12: Mahidhara differs from Sáyaña in his interpretation of this verse in several respects: considering the first line, yad vákishtham tad agnaye vrihad archa vibhávaso, to be addressed to the Udgátri, he renders it, sing to Agni, that Vrihad-sáma (a hymn of the Sáma-Veda), which is the most effectual means of obtaining our desires; and he refers the vocative, Vibhávaso, to the second line in which a more important variation occurs: it runs, mahishí iva tvad rayistvad vája udírate: Sáyaña makes mahishí the adjective of rayi, great riches, and observes of iva that it is a pleonasm, iveti púráṇah: Mahidhara understands it as denoting a comparison, and explains the passage, as the first-married bride proceeds from her home to her husband, prathamaparīṇātā stri grihát patim prati udgachchhati, so riches and food proceed to the worshipper, Agni, from thee: the necessity of supplying a whole sentence is rather against this rendering, and mahishí as an adjective is of not unfrequent occurrence.

may he, the performer of great deeds, enable us to pass over all our enemies as (we cross a river) with a boat.

Sūkta XII. (XXVI.)

The deity and Rishis as before: the metre is Gāyatrī.

1. Divine purifier, Agni, with thy radiance and pleasing tongue, bring hither and worship the gods.¹

2. Feeder upon butter, bright and variegated radiance, we solicit thee, the beholder of heaven, to (partake of) the (sacrificial) food.

3. We kindle thee at the sacrifice, wise Agni, whose food is the oblation, who art brilliant and vast.²

4. Come, Agni, with all the gods, to the donor (of the oblation): we have recourse to thee as their invoker.

5. To the institutor of the rite, pouring out the libation, bring excellent vigour; sit down with the gods upon the sacred grass.

6. Victor over thousands, thou favourest, when kindled, our holy rites, the honoured messenger of the gods.

7. Reverence Agni, by whom all that is, is known, the bearer of oblations, the youngest of the gods, the divine, the ministrant priest.

8. May the sacrifice most solemnly offered by the devout duly proceed to day (to the gods): spread the sacred grass for their seat.

9. May the Maruts, the Aświns, Mitra, Varuṇa, the gods, with all their attendants, sit down upon this grass.

² Sāma-Veda, ii. 872, 873.
SūKTA XIII. (XXVII.)

The deity as before, but in the sixth stanza Indra is associated with Agni; the Rishis are three Rājās, Tryāruṇa the son of Trivrishna, Trasadasyu the son of Purukutsa, and Aswamedha the son of Bharata; 1 or Atri alone may be the Rishi: 2 the metre of the three first stanzas is Trishtubh, of the last three Anushtubh.

Varga XXI.

1. Agni, who art the protector of the good, most wise, powerful, and opulent; Tryāruṇa the son of Trivrishna has become renowned, Vaiswánara, in that he has bestowed upon me a pair of cattle with a waggon, and with ten thousands of treasure.

2. Agni, Vaiswánara, who art deservedly praised and exalted (by us), bestow happiness upon Tryāruṇa, who gives me hundreds (of Suvarṇas), 3 twenty cattle, and a pair of burden-bearing horses.

3. As Tryāruṇa, pleased by the eulogies of me who have many children, presses with earnest (mind,

1 Of these princes we have yet met only with the second, vol. i. p. 292: in the Vishnu Purāṇa a Trayāruṇa occurs, (p. 371), but he is the son of Tridhanwan, and the seventh in descent from Trasadasyu, with whom, therefore, he could not be contemporary; so that either the Veda or the Purāṇa is wrong: the latter enumerates a Trayāruṇa among the Vyāsas, p. 273: no other authority gives Bharata a son named Aswamedha.

2 For in fact the Rājās are rather the Devatās, they do not commemorate their own donations: it is Atri, or some member of his family, who speaks.

3 The text has only ṣatāni, the hundreds: the scholiast adds suvarṇānām of suvarṇas: it is not impossible, however, that pieces of money are intended; for if we may trust Arrian, the Hindus had coined money before Alexander: the people of Sambas, Raja of Sindomana, present him with told money, ḍρηματα αναρήμησαν.
gifts upon me), so does Trasadasya, desirous, Agni, of thy valued favour through thine exceeding praise.

4. When Aswamedha gives to him who solicits of him as a benefactor, saying (bestow wealth) upon me, and comes (to him) with a verse (in thy praise), do thou, Agni, grant intelligence to (the Raja) who wishes to offer sacrifice (to thee).

5. Whose hundred robust oxen yield me delight, as the triple-mixed Soma,1 the offering of Aswamedha (gratifies thee).

6. Indra and Agni, bestow upon the munificent Aswamedha infinite wealth with excellent posterity, undecaying as the sun in heaven.

Sukta XIV. (XXVIII.)
The deity as before; the Rishi is Viswavara, a lady of the family of Atri: the metre of the first and third stanzas is Trishtubh, of the second Jagati, of the fourth Anushthubh, and of the two last Gayatri.

1. Agni, when kindled, spreads lustre through the firmament, and shines widely in the presence of the dawn: Viswavara, facing the east, glorifying the gods with praises, and bearing the ladle with the oblation,2 proceeds (to the sacred fire).

1 Mixed with curds, milk, and parched grain.

2 Havishā ghritāchā is explained by the scholiast purodāsādi-lakshānena yuktayā ghritāchāḥ sruchā sahilā, with the ladle of ghī connected with the cakes and other articles of the oblation: the whole passage is remarkable, whether this explanation be admitted or not, as it leaves no doubt that a female is described as discharging the offices of a priest worshipping the gods at dawn with hymns and oblations: besides Viswavara being feminine, the epithets prāchī ilānā ghritāchā are of the same gender: the term is explained the repeller of all enemies of the nature of

2. When about to be kindled, Agni, thou rulest over ambrosial (water): thou art present with the offerer of the oblation for his welfare: he to whom thou repairest acquires universal wealth; he places before thee, Agni, the dues of hospitality.

3. Repress, Agni, (our foes to ensure our) exceeding prosperity: may thy riches ever be excellent: preserve in concord the relation of man and wife, and overpower the energies of the hostile.

4. I praise the glory, Agni, of thee when kindled and blazing fiercely: thou art the affluent showerer (of benefits), thou art fitly lighted at sacrifices.

5. Agni, who art kindled and invoked, worship the gods at the holy rite, for thou art the bearer of the oblation.

6. Offer worship and adoration to Agni when the sacrifice is solemnized: select the bearer of the oblation to the gods.

Sūkta XV. (XXIX.)

The deity is Indra, but one hemisticch may be assigned to Uśanas; the Rishi is Gaurivīti, of the race of Śakti; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. In the adoration of the gods by Manu there are

1. Sanjāspatyam suyamam kurushva, make perfect the well-connected duty of wife and husband, an appropriate prayer for a female, Yajur-Veda, 33. 12.

2. According to the Taithātya, there are three kinds of sacrificial fire: the havyavāhana, which receives the oblation intended for the gods; the havyavāhana, that intended for the Pītris; and the Saharakshas, that intended for the Āsuras: the worshipper is therefore directed on this occasion to select the first.
three effulgences, and they, (the Maruts), uphold three luminaries\(^1\) in heaven: the Maruts of pure energy worship thee, for thou, Indra, art their intelligent Rishi.

2. When the Maruts worship Indra, exulting and drinking of the effused libation, he grasps the thunderbolt therewith he destroys Ahi, and sets the abundant waters free to flow.

3. Or, mighty Maruts, and thou also, Indra, drink of this my copiously-effused libation: then the offered libation obtains cattle for the offerer,\(^2\) and Indra, drinking of it, kills Ahi.

4. Thereupon he fixed firmly heaven and earth, and, resolutely advancing, filled (Vritra), like a deer, with terror: stripping off his covering, Indra slew the Danava, endeavouring to hide, and panting with affright.

5. Then, for this exploit, all the gods gave thee, Maghavan, in succession, the Soma beverage; whence thou hast retarded, for the sake of Etasa, the advancing horses of the sun.

7. To aid (the undertaking of) his friend, Agni, the friend (of Indra), has quickly consumed\(^1\) three hundred buffaloes; and Indra, for the destruction of Vritra, has at once quaffed three vessels of Soma, offered by Manu.

8. When thou hadst eaten the flesh of the three hundred buffaloes, when thou who art Maghavan hadst drunk the three vessels of Soma, when he had slain Ahi,\(^2\) then all the gods summoned Indra, full of food, as if he had been a servant, to the battle.

9. When, Indra, thou and Ushanas, with vigorous and rapid coursers went to the dwelling of Kutsha, then, destroying his foes, you went in one chariot with Kutsha and the gods, and verily thou hast slain Sushna.

10. Thou hast formerly detached one wheel (of the car) of Surya: another thou hast given to Kutsha wherewith to acquire wealth: with the thunderbolt thou hast confounded the voiceless Dasysus,\(^3\) thou hast destroyed in battle the speech-bereft (foes).

13. Although, knowing the heroic acts which, Maghavan, thou hast performed, how may I adequately offer thee adoration: most mighty Indra, we ever celebrate at sacred rites the recent exploits which thou hast achieved.

14. Unmatched (by any), thou hast done, Indra, all these many (deeds) by thine innate energy: wielder of the thunderbolt, whatever thou, the humbler of (foes) hast undertaken, there is no one the arrester of this thy prowess.

15. Most mighty Indra, be pleased to accept the prayers which we are about to offer, and the present praises which we repeat: firm, doing pious acts, and desirous of wealth, I have fabricated acceptable and pious works like (rich) garments, and like a chariot.¹

History of Man, i, 340, referring to this text, proposes to separate anása into a, non, nása, the nose, noseless, alluding to that feature in the aborigines, as contrasted with the more prominent nose of the árya race: the proposal is ingenious, but it seems more likely that Śāyana is right, as we have the Dāsyus presently called also mṛidhraváchas, hinsitavágindriyán, having defective organs of speech.

Sūkta XVI. (XXX.)
The deity as before, or it may be the Rājā Rīṇanchaya, who is occasionally praised; the Rishi is Babhrū; the metre Trishtubh.

Varga XXVI.
1. Where is that hero? who has seen Indra seated in his easy chariot, travelling with his horses, the thunderer, the invoked of many, who, desirous of the libation, is proceeding with riches to the habitation (of his worshipper) for his preservation?

2. I have looked down upon the secret and fearful place of his abiding; I have repaired, desiring him, (to the place of) the self-sustainer; I have inquired (of him) from others: they, the leaders (of rites), the searchers after wisdom, have said to me, let us have recourse to Indra.

3. When the libation is offered, Indra, we celebrate thy exploits; those (exploits) which thou hast been pleased (to achieve) for us: let him who is ignorant acquire knowledge (of them); let him who is acquainted (with them) make them known: this Maḫhavan (is) the lord of hosts.

4. As soon as generated, Indra, thou hast made thy mind resolved: thou hast gone alone to contend against numerous (foes): thou hast rent asunder the rock by thy strength: thou hast rescued the herd of milk-yielding kine.

5. When thou hast been born most excellent and supreme, bearing a name widely renowned, then the gods have been in dread of Indra, and he has subjugated all the waters, the brides of the slave (Vṛitra).

6. These devoted Maruts¹ eulogise thee with pious praise, and pour out to thee the sacrificial food: Indra has overcome by his devices the guileful Ahi, harassing the gods and arresting the waters.

7. Maghavan, who art glorified by us, assailing with the thunderbolt the antagonist (of the gods), thou hast slain those who were ever hostile (to thee) from thy birth: desiring to do good to Manu,² thou hast bruised the head of the slave Namuchi.

8. Verily thou hast made me, Indra, thy associate when grinding the head of the slave Namuchi like a sounding and rolling cloud:³ and the heaven and earth (have been caused) by the Maruts (to revolve like a wheel).

9. The slave (Namuchi) made women his weapons: what will his female hosts do unto me?⁴ the two his best beloved, (Indra) confined in the inner apartments, and then went forth to combat against the Dasyu.⁵

² Manave gátram ichchhah: gátram is explained sukham, but the scholiast identifies Manu with the Rishi of the Súkta, namuchiná apahritagodhanáya mahyam, to me whose wealth of cattle has been carried off by Namuchi, an Asura who has been before named.
³ Aśmánam chit swaryam vartamánam: Sáyána renders the two first megham ita, like a cloud.
⁴ Indra is supposed to say this.
⁵ These legends are apparently Vaidik, except the decapitation of Namuchi by Indra, which is related in the Gadá section of the Sályá Parva of the Mahábhárata, where it is related that Namuchi, through fear of Indra, took refuge in the solar rays: Indra promised that he would not harm him if he came
10. When the cows were separated from their calves, they wandered about hither and thither; but when the well-offered libations had exhilarated him, then Indra, with his vigorous (Maruts), reunited them (with their calves).

11. When the libations effused by Babhrû had exhilarated him, the showerer (of benefits) shouted aloud in the combats: Indra, the destroyer of cities, quaffing (the Soma), restored to him his milk-yielding cattle.

12. The Rusamas\(^1\) giving me four thousand cows, Agni,\(^1\) have done well: we have accepted the wealth, the donation of the leader of leaders Rînanchaya.

13. The Rusamas, Agni, have presented to me a beautiful abode, with thousands of cattle: the sharp libations have exhilarated Indra upon the breaking up of the (gloom-)investing night.

14. The (gloom-)investing night has dispersed with the dawn (upon the appearance of) Rînanchaya, the Rájá of the Rusamas: Babhrû being summoned, going like a fleet courser, has received the four thousand (cattle).

15. We have accepted, Agni, the four thousand cattle from the Rusamas: and the glowing, the golden

\(^1\) The Rusamas, according to Sâyana, are the people of a country of the same name, the principality of Rînanchaya.

ewer prepared for the solemnity, we who are wise have accepted it.

Śūkta XVII. (XXXI.)
The deity is Indra; the Rishi is Āvasyu, of the race of Atri; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. Indra, the possessor of opulence, directs downwards the car over which, intended (to receive sacrificial) viands, he presides: he proceeds unimpeded, the first of the gods, driving (his enemies before him), as a herdsman drives the herds of cattle.

2. Hasten to us, lord of horses: be not indifferent to us: distributor of manifold wealth, befriend us; for there is nothing else that is better, Indra, than thou: thou hast given wives to those who were without women.

3. When the light (of the sun) overpowers the light (of the dawn) Indra grants all (sorts of) wealth (to the worshipper): he has liberated the milk-kine from the interior of the obstructing (mountain); he dissipates the enveloping darkness with light.

1 Gharmay-chit taptah pravijye ya āsid ayasmayah: according to the commentator, ayas maya, properly, made of iron, is here, made of gold, hiranyamaya, kalaṣa, a ewer: gharmay-chit he explains mahaśīva iva, that is, like the ewer, or vessel so termed, containing a mixture of Soma, melted butter and milk, perhaps put upon the fire, as by a text cited in the note of Sāyaṇa on v. 7. of Śūkta xliii. yad ghra ityatapat tad gharmanya gharmanvoam iti sruti; see also Śūkta xix. 1; pravijye for the pravargya ceremony.

2 Amenān-schij-janivaṭas-chakartha: menā is here used in the sense of strī, woman in general, and jani, as usual, in that of wife: the commentator explains it apagatastrikāṇchī jāyāvata karoshi, thou makest sundry persons, from whom women are separated, possessed of wives.
3. The Ribhus have fabricated thy car, Indra, the invoked of many, adapted to its horses: Twashtri (has made) thy radiant thunderbolt: the venerable Angirasas, praising Indra with hymns, have given him vigour for the destruction of Ahi.

5. When the Maruts, the showerers (of benefits), glorify thee, Indra, the showerer (of desires), with praises, and the exulting stones delight (to bruise the Soma), then, without horses, without chariots, they, the purifying (Maruts), dispatched by Indra, have overcome the Dasyus.

6. I celebrate, Maghavan, thine ancient exploits, and those which thou hast newly achieved: wielder of the thunderbolt, subjugating both heaven and earth, thou hast distributed the wonderfully bountiful waters to man.

7. Handsome and sagacious Indra, this is thy deed, that, slaying Ahi, thou hast here displayed thy vigour: thou hast arrested the devices of Sushna urging the combat: thou hast overcome the Dasyus.

8. Thou, Indra, (abiding on the further bank), hast rendered the fertilizing waters agreeable to Yadu and Turvasu: you two, (Indra and Kutsa), have assailed the fierce (Sushna), and, (having slain him), thou hast conveyed Kutsa (to his dwelling), and

1 The text has anavah, which the scholiast explains manuskyah, and applies to Ribhavah.

2 Brahmânah: Brahmans is the expression of the text, explained by the scholiast angirasah: the verse occurs, with the hemistics transposed, Sáma-Veda, i. 439, 440.

3 Sushnaya chit pari mayáh agríbhñáh: Sáyana explains mayáh by gYWath, young damsels, thou hast seized upon, or carried off, the young women of Sushna.
Usanas and the gods have therefore honoured you both.

9. May your steeds bring you both, Indra and Kutsa, riding in one chariot, to the worshipper: you have expelled him (Sushna) from the waters, from his proper abode: you have driven the glooms (of ignorance) from the heart of the affluent (adorer).

10. The sage Avasyu has obtained docile horses, endowed (with the speed) of the wind: all thine adorers, Indra, in this world, thy friends, augment thy vigour by their praises.

11. He, (Indra), has formerly arrested in battle the rapid chariot of the sun: Etasa has borne away the wheel, and (with it Indra) demolishes (his foes): may he, giving us precedence, be propitiated by our rite.

12. Indra, oh people, has come to see you, wishing to behold his friend the offerer of the libation: let the creaking stones, for whose rotation the priests hasten, supply the altar.

13. Immortal (Indra), let not the mortals who are wishing, anxiously wishing for thee, fall into sin: be indeed pleased with the sacrificers, and grant vigour to those men amongst whom may we be (especially) thine.

The deity is the same; the Rishi is Gātu; the metre Trishṭubh.

hast set open the flood-gates, thou hast liberated the obstructed streams, thou hast opened the vast cloud, and hast given vent to the showers, having slain the Dánava.

2. Thou, thunderer, (hast set free) the obstructed clouds in their seasons; thou hast invigorated the strength of the cloud: fierce INDRA, destroying the mighty AHI when slumbering (in the waters), thou hast established the reputation of thy prowess.

3. INDRA, by his prowess, has annihilated the weapon of that mighty beast, from whom another more powerful, conceiving himself one and unmatched, was generated.

4. The wielder of the thunderbolt, the render of the rain-cloud, has destroyed with his bolt the mighty ŠUSHNA, the wrath-born (son) of the Dánava, the walker in darkness, the protector of the showering cloud, exhilarating himself with the food of these (living creatures).

5. Thou hast discovered, INDRA, by his acts, the secret vital part of him who thought himself invulnerable, when, powerful INDRA, in the exhilaration of the Soma, thou hast detected him preparing for combat in his dark abode.

3 From the body of Vritra, it is said, sprang the more powerful asura, Šushna, that is, allegorically, the exhaustion of the clouds was followed by a drought, which Indra, or the atmosphere, had then to remedy.
4 Miho-napátam, meghasya rakshitáram: napát, here meaning pátri, a protector, a preserver, as in the Bráhmaṇa cited by the scholiast, práno vai tanánapát sa hi tanvah páti: vital air is called the body-preserver, for it preserves the limbs.
6. Indra, the showerer (of benefits) exhilarated by the effused juices, uplifting (his thunderbolt), has slain him enjoying the dews of the firmament, sleeping (amidst the waters), and thriving in sunless darkness.

7. When Indra raised his powerful irresistibl weapon against the mighty Dánava, when he struck him with the blow of the thunderbolt, he made him the lowest of all creatures.

8. The fierce Indra seized upon him, that vast moving (Vrátra), when slumbering, (after) having drunk the Soma, subduing (his foes), and enveloping (the world), and then slew him with his great weapon in battle, footless, measureless, speechless.¹

9. Who may resist the withering might of that Indra: he, single and irresistible, carries off the riches (of the enemy): these two divine (beings, heaven and earth), proceed swiftly through fear of the strength of the quick-moving Indra.

10. The divine, self-sustaining (heaven) comes to him; the moving (earth), like a loving (wife), resigns herself to Indra: when he shares all his vigour with these (his people), then, in due succession, men offer reverence to the potent Indra.

11. Verily I hear of thee as chief amongst men, the protector of the good, friendly to the five classes of beings, the begotten, the renowned; may my (progeny), representing (their wishes), and uttering his praises night and day, propitiate the glorified Indra.

SECOND ADHYÁYA.

ANUVÁKA III.

Sókta I. (XXXIII.)

The deity is Indra; the Rishi is Samvaraṇa, the son of Prajakapati; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. Feeble as I am, I offer praise to the great and vigorous Indra, for this purpose, (that he may grant) strength to (our) people: he who, associated with the Maruts, shews favour to this person when praised for the sake of sustenance.

2. Thou, Indra, meditating upon us, fastenest the traces of thy horses, (incited), showerer (of benefits), by those praises in which thou takest suitable delight, and do thou therefore overcome (for us) hostile men.

3. Since, mighty Indra, those who, differing from us, and not united with thee through their lack of devotion, are not thine; therefore, divine holder of the thunderbolt, who art possessed of excellent horses,

1 Samarya, as an epithet of Indra, is of somewhat doubtful meaning: Sáyana gives three explanations, martyrī, stotribhiḥ, sahitaj, together with mortals, that is, with worshippers, yuddhamānair-marudādibhiḥ, with the Maruts and other combatants, or saṃara-arhak, fit for or suited to war.
ascend the car, whose reins thou guidest, (to come to our sacrifice).

4. Inasmuch, Indra, as many praises are thine, therefore, combating for the sake of (shedding) water on fertile (lands), thou hast effected (the discomfiture of its obstructors); thou, who art the showerer (of benefits), hast, on behalf of the sun, destroyed in his own dwelling the very name of (the asura), Dasa, in battle.

5. We, Indra, are thine, and thine are they who are the leaders (of rites), promoters of (thy) strength, and willing applicants (to thee): all-powerful Indra, may adherents worthy of commendation, and faithful, come to us, like Bhaga, in battles.

6. Glorious, Indra, is thy strength, exulting, immortal, and clothing (the world with light): do thou

1 This verse occurs in the Yajush 10. 22, with some variety of reading, chiefly in the first hemistich, as ma ta Indra te vayam Turashad ayuktaso abrahamata vidasama, which Mahidhara interprets, Indra Turashat, may we who are thine, may we, unattached (to thy car), never perish, like that which is not of the nature of spiritual existence: in the second line we have rasmin swaasvan, reins with good horses, instead of rasmin yamase swaasvan.

2 Ahiushma, a rather unusual epithet of Indra: the scholiast explains it, sarvato vyaptabala, of all pervading strength.

3 Satvā Bhago na havyaha prahritheshu chauroh may be explained differently, as prahritha signifies war or sacrifice: may a faithful follower or ally, satvā-bhrityādīh, come, like Bhaga, as an associate, chauro sangantā, to be commended, havya, in sacrifices, or defied, pratibhaatairāhāvātavya, in battles: as the divine Bhaga comes as our ally, so may followers and others come.

4 Nyitamāna is, literally dancing, nrityan.
give us riches, and brilliant wealth,¹ and I will greatly praise the munificence of the opulent lord.

7. Hero, Indra, with thy protection defend us, praising and worshipping (thee), and be propitiated (by drinking) of the well-effused and agreeable Soma-juice that yields (a defensive) covering in combat.

8. May those ten bright horses, the gift to me of the pious gold-possessing Trasadasyu, the son of Purukutsa, of the race of Girikshita, convey me (to the sacrifice), and may I proceed quickly with the rites.

9. Or may those bay, well-actioned horses, the donation of Vidatha, the son of Marutaswa,² (convey me); or (may) the thousands (of treasure) which he was bestowing upon and giving to me,³ entitled to respect, and the ornaments which he presented (to decorate) the person, (contribute to the ceremony).

10. Or may the bright and active steeds bestowed upon me by Dhwanya, the son of Lakshmana⁴ (bear me): the riches, endowed with greatness, that have been presented, have passed (to the dwelling) of the Rishi Samvarana, like cows to their stalls.

Súkta II. (XXXIV.)
The deity and Rishi as before; the metre is Jagati, except in the last verse, in which it is Trishṭubh.

Varga III.

1. The undecaying, heaven-conferring, unlimited

² We have had Vidathin before, Súkta xxix. verse 11, the father of Rijiswan: these names are not found in the principal Puránas.
³ Chyavatána dadána, causing to alight upon, giving.
⁴ We have here, also, an unusual name in Dhwanya, and Lakshmana must be a different person from the brother of Ráma.
FOURTH ASHTAKA—SECOND ADHYÄTA.

(sacrificial) food, goes to the tamer (of enemies), whose adversaries are unborn: therefore (priests) pour out (the libation), dress (the cakes and butter), diligently discharge (your offices) to him who is the accepter of prayer, who is glorified by many.

2. Maghavan, who fills his belly with the Soma, is exhilarated (by drinking) of the sweet-savour ed beverage, whereupon he has lifted up his destructive thousand-edged\(^1\) weapon, desiring to slay (the Asura) Mriga.

3. He who pours out the libation to that Indra, by day or by night, undoubtedly becomes illustrious: Sakra disregards the man who is proud of his descendants and vain of his person,\(^2\) and who, though wealthy, is the friend of the base.

4. Sakra does not turn away\(^3\) from him whose father, whose mother, whose brother he has slain,\(^4\) but

\(^{1}\) Sahasra bhrishtim, the scholiast interprets aparimita tejas, of unbounded lustre.

\(^{2}\) Tatanushtim, tanusubhram, are explained, he who desires, (vashti) an extended (tata) race (santatim) and he whose person (tanu) is decorated (subhra) with ornaments, and in both implying swaposhakaham ayajvanaam, a self-cherisher not offering sacrifice.

\(^{3}\) Na ata tshate, he does not fear, or does not go up, or from hence: na bibheta na gachchhati va is the explanation of the scholiast.

\(^{4}\) Avadhita has no other nominative than Sakra, but in the second line we have na hilvishad ishate, he, Indra, does not go from sin, sin being put for sinner, that is, from one who is a parricide or the like, pitraadi badha yuktat; that is, he does not turn away from him who has committed these crimes: the reason also is given, vett iadvaya prayatata, for verily he desires his offerings, prayatani danani: the doctrine, therefore, is here inculcated, that devotional merit compensates for want of moral merit:
is willing to accept his offerings: the regulator (of acts), the bestower of riches, does not turn away from iniquity.

5. He desires not (association in) enterprises with five or with ten; he associates not with the man who does not present libations; and cherishes not (his dependants): nay, the terrifier (of foes) punishes him or slays him, but he places the devout man in a pasturage stocked with cattle.

6. Thinning (his enemies) in battle, and accelerating the wheels (of his car), he turns away from him who offers no libation, and augments (the prosperity of) the offerer: Indra, the subduer of all, the formidable, the lord, conducts the Dāsa at his pleasure.

7. He proceeds to plunder the wealth of the (avaricious), and bestows the riches that are prized by man upon the donor (of the libation): every man is involved in great difficulty who provokes the might of Indra to wrath.

8. When Indra, the possessor of opulence, discriminates between two men, both wealthy, and exerting themselves (against each other) for the sake of valuable cattle, he takes one of them as his associate, causing (his adversaries) to tremble, and the agitator (of the clouds), together with the Maruts, bestows upon him herds of cattle.

9. I, Arya, Agni, 1 praise Satri, the son of Agnithe converse is also implied by the passage quoted by Sāyana from the Vedas, that sanctity does not compensate for want of devotion; Indra being represented as saying, I gave to the wolves the Paulomas in the firmament, and the Yatis, the hālakāṇjyas, and arumukhas upon earth; because, Sāyana observes, these Yatis did not worship or praise him.

1 Indra is intended, according to the scholiast, as identical vesa, the bestower of thousands, a type for comparison: may the collected waters yield him abundance; may wealth, and strength, and glory be upon him.

Sūkta III. (XXXV.)

The deity as before; the Rishi is Prabhūvasu, of the race of Angiras; the metre is Anushṭubh, except in the last verse, in which it is Pankti.

1. Perfect for our protection, Indra, that thine act which is most effective; which is the subduer of men; holy, and difficult to be encountered in battles.

2. Whatever protections, Indra, may be thine, whether four, or, hero, three, or those accorded to the five (classes) of men,³ bestow them freely upon us.

3. We invoke the desirable protection of thee, the most liberal showerer (of benefits); that (protection) which thou, the distributer of rain, the quick destroyer (of foes), grantest, (associated) with the present (Maruts).

4. Thou art the showerer (of benefits); thou art born to (bestow) riches; thy strength rains (blessings); thy self-invigorated mind is the restrainer (of adversaries); thy manhood, Indra, is the destroyer of multitudes.

5. Indra, wielder of the thunderbolt, rider in an all-pervading car, object of many rites, and lord of with Agni: of the following names, Agnivesa appears in the Purānas as a Rishi, a son of Brahmā, but here his son at least must be a Rājā.

³ Whatever favours may be granted to the four castes, the three lohas, or the five orders of men, pancha kshitīnām.
strength, proceed against the mortal who entertains hostility towards thee.

6. Slayer of Vritra, men with clipped sacred grass invoke thee, who art fierce and foremost among many, for aid in battle.

7. Defend, Indra, our chariot, 1 difficult (to be stopped), mingling foremost in combats, followed by attendants, and eagerly striving for repeated spoil.

8. Come, Indra, to us; defend by thy providence our car: we contemplate in thee who, most mighty one, art divine, all desirable vigour: (to thee), who art divine, we offer praise.

Súkta IV. (XXXVI.)

The deity and Rishi as before; the metre is Tristubh.

Varga VII:

1. May that Indra who is the donor of wealth, who knows (how) to distribute riches, come (to our sacrifice) marching boldly like a warrior; and may he, being thirsty, and desirous (of the draught), drink of the effused Soma-juice.

2. Hero, lord of horses, may the Soma ascend to thy destructive jaw, 2 as if to the summit of a mountain: may we all, royal Indra, who art invoked of many, give pleasure to thee with our hymns, as to horses with fodder.

3. Wielder of the thunderbolt, the invoked of many,

1 Ava ratham: the latter may also signify, the scholiast suggests, a son, he whose nature it is to give delight to his parents, rankatnasaabhávam, putram.

2 Hanú śipre drukhaḥ: as the two nouns have usually the same sense, as Sáyana observes, one should be regarded as the epithet of the other, and he therefore explains hanu as the means of destroying, or destructive, hananasúdhānam.
my mind trembles through dread of poverty like a whirling wheel: Mahavan, ever prosperous, may thy worshipper, Puruvasu, praise thee promptly and abundantly, seated in thy chariot.

4. This thine adorer, Indra, like the stone (that expresses the Soma-juice), urges praise to thee, participating in the great (reward): thou bestowest, Mahavan, riches with thy left hand, (thou bestowest them, lord of horses, with the right: be not reluctant.

5. May the effective eulogium melt thee, the showerer (of benefits): thou, the showerer, art borne (to the sacrifice) by vigorous steeds: sender of rain, thou of the handsome chin, wielder of the thunderbolt, showerer, whose car showers down (blessings), do thou defend us in battle.

6. Maruts, may all men bow in obedience to that youthful Srutaratha, the possessor of abundance, who has bestowed (upon us) two bay steeds accompanied by three hundred (cattle).

SUKTA V. (XXXVII.)
The deity and metre as before; the Rishi is Atri.

1. The piously worshipped (Agni), when invoked, glistening with the oblation, vies with the splendour of the sun: may the dawns rise innocuous to him who says, let us offer oblations to Indra.

2. He whose fire is kindled, whose sacred grass is strewn, offers worship: he whose stone is uplifted, whose Soma-juice is effused, offers praise: the priest,

1 Amater-id: amati is explained either dāridryam, poverty, or atotri, one who does not praise or worship.

2 Another instance of the abuse of the derivations of vrish, to rain or shower.
of whom the stones utter the sounds of bruising, descends with the oblation (for previous ablution) to the stream.

3. The bride (of Indra), devoted to her lord, attends him (to the rite), who thus brings (with him) his accompanying queen: may his car convey to us ample food; may it sound loudly; may it scatter around many thousands (of riches).

4. That prince suffers no evil in whose realm Indra drinks the sharp Soma-juice mixed with milk: attended by faithful (followers), he moves (in all directions): he destroys his enemy, he protects his subjects: enjoying prosperity, he cherishes the name of Indra.

5. He cherishes (his kin); he (reigns) in welfare and prosperity; he is victorious in present and continuous (time): dear is he to the sun, dear to Agni, who, with prepared libation, offers it to Indra.

Sukta VI. (XXXVIII.)

The deity and Rishi as before; the metre is Anushtubh.

1. Indra of many exploits, liberal is the distribution of thine abundant riches: therefore, all-beholder, possessor of excellent wealth, bestow upon us opulence.¹

2. Although, most mighty Indra, thou possesest well-known abundance (of food), yet golden-hued (deity) it is most notoriously reported as difficult (to be procured).

3. Wielder of the thunderbolt, thine are the strong (Maruts), who are adorables, and whose exploits are renowned: both divinities, (thou and they), rule at pleasure over heaven and earth.

4. Slayer of Vṛitra, bring to us, thy (worshippers), the wealth of any powerful (man) whatsoever, for thou art disposed to enrich us.

5. May we, Sātakrātu, speedily (partake of) thy felicity through these our prayers: may we be well secured, Indra, (by thee): may we be carefully protected, hero, by thee.

Śūkta VII. (XXXIX.)
Deity and Rishī as before; the metre also is the same, except in the last verse, in which it is Pankti.

1. Wonderful Indra, wielder of the thunderbolt, since precious treasure is to be distributed by thee, bestow it, possessor of riches, with both hands, upon us.

2. Whatever food thou considerest desirable, Indra, bestow it: let us be to thee (in the relation of thy) gift of unlimited sustenance.

3. Since thy bountiful and praiseworthy will is notorious and vast, therefore, thunderer, thou hast ready for bestowing upon us substantial food.

1 Mehanaśī tu dātam rādhās, is explained by Sāyaṇa manhanāya dhanom tvayo dātavyam, praisable wealth is to be given to thee: Yāska gives a like interpretation, but notices another interpretation of mehanāśī, me iha nāsti, what is not in this world, or on this occasion, mine, Nirukta, iv. 4: the verse occurs, Sāma-Veda, i. 345. ii. 522.

2 Taśya akūpārasya dāvane, in the giving of that unlimited food, annasya: Yāska would fill up the ellipse with dānasya, gift: he explains akūpāra by dūrapāra, or mahāpāra, having a distant or great opposite boundary, whence it is also an appellative of the sun and of the ocean: it also means a tortoise, one who does not go into a well, kūpa: the verse occurs Sāma-Veda, ii. 523.

3. Dictu, desiderative of dā, desiring to give, an epithet of manas, mind or will: Benfey's text of the Sāma reads dhiṣku, ii. 524.
4. With ancient (hymns) the pious approach Indra, to laud him who is most worthy of the beverage (the offering) of you who are opulent; (him) who is the king of men.

5. To that Indra is the poetical and articulate prayer to be recited: to him the conveyers of pious praise, the sons of Atri, raise their hymns: the sons of Atri illumine their hymns.

Sûkta VIII. (XL.)

Indra is the divinity of the first four verses, Sûrya of the fifth, Atri of the last four, but he is also the Râshi of the whole; the metre of the three first stanzas is Usâghih, of the fifth and ninth Anushtubh, of the rest Trishtubh.

Varga XI.

1. Come, Indra, (to our sacrifice); drink, lord of the Soma, of the juice expressed by the stones: showerer (of benefits), utter destroyer of Vritra, (come) with the showering (Maruts).

2. The stone is the showerer, the inebriation is the showerer, this effused Soma is the showerer; showerer (of benefits); Indra, utter destroyer of Vritra, come with the showering (Maruts).

3. Effusing the libation, I invoke thee, the showerer (of benefits), for thy marvellous protections: showerer (of benefits), Indra, utter destroyer of Vritra, come with the showering (Maruts).

4. May the accepter of the spiritless libation, the

2 Rijishán: the possessor or ruler of the rîjishá, which is here explained gatasâra somarasa, or that which has been offered at the morning and mid-day ceremonies, and of which the residue is now presented at the evening sacrifice.
wielder of the thunderbolt, the showerer (of benefits), the overcomer of quick-(flying foes), the mighty, the monarch, the slayer of Vrītra, the drinker of the Soma, having harnessed his horses, come down (to us):
may Indra be exhilarated at the mid-day sacrifice.

5. When, Sūrya, the son of the Asura Swarbhānu,1 overspread thee with darkness, the worlds were beheld like one bewildered, knowing not his place.

6. When, Indra, thou wast dissipating those illusions of Swarbhānu which were spread below the sun, then Atri, by his fourth sacred prayer,2 discovered the sun concealed by the darkness impeding his functions.

7. Sūrya speaks]: Let not the violator, Atri, through hunger, swallow with fearful (darkness) me who am thine: thou art Mitra, whose wealth is truth:
do thou and the royal Varuṇa both protect me.

8. Then the Brahman, (Atri), applying the stones together, propitiating the gods with praise, and ador-ing them with reverence, placed the eye of Sūrya in the sky: he dispersed the delusions of Swarbhānu.

9. The sun, whom the Asura, Swarbhānu, had enveloped with darkness, the sons of Atri subsequently recovered: no others were able (to effect his release).

---

1 Swarbhānu is a name of Rāhu, the personified ascending node, and the causer of an eclipse: he was a son of Kasyapa, by Danu, the mother of the Dānavas, or Asuras: Vishnu Pur.
p. 147: another genealogy makes him the son of Viprachiitti, by Sinhihā, the sister of Hiranyakāsipu, ibid. p. 148.

2 That is, by the four stanzas of this hymn, from the fifth to the eighth.
SÓKTA-IX. (XLI.)
The deities are the Viṣwadevas; the Rishi is Brauma; the metre is Trishtubh, except in the sixteenth and seventeenth verses, in which it is Atiṣṭup, and in the twentieth, in which it is Virāy, and of one hemistich.

Varga XIII.

1. Who, Mitrá and Varuṇa, desiring to sacrifice to you, (is able to do so)? do you, whether (abiding) in the region of heaven, or of the vast earth, or of the firmament, protect us, and give to the donor (of the oblation), and to the sacrificer, cattle and food.

2. May those divinities, Mitra, Varuṇa, Aryaman, Ayu, Indra, Ribhuskshin, the Maruts who accept pious praise,¹ be pleased by our adorations, partaking of the gratification afforded to Rudra, the showerer (of benefits).²

3. I invoke you, Aswins, the restrainers (of desire), for the acceleration of your chariot with the swiftness of the wind: (priests) offer praise and oblations to the celestial destroyer of life,³ to the accomplisher of the sacrifice.

4. May the divine accepter of sacrifice, of whom the Kāṇvas are the priests, Tríta⁴, Váyu, and Agni, ¹ According to the commentator, divinities are of two orders, those who share praises, stotrabhājah, and those who share oblations, kavirbhājah: the first is here alluded to.

² This last clause may be considered as applying especially to the Maruts as the sons of Rudra.

³ Divo asuraśya is explained dyotamánaya prāṇapakartre, that is, to Rudra: and yajyave, yāga sādhakāya: or Asura may be rendered prāṇadātri, the giver of life, when it will imply Sūrya or Vāyu.

⁴ Or Tríta may be an epithet of Vāyu, the threefold, pervading the three regions of heaven, mid-air, and earth.
concurring in satisfaction with (the ruler of) heaven, or (Sūrya and) Pūshan, and Bhaga, and they who are the protectors of the universe, (come quickly) to the sacrifice, as the fleetest coursers rush to battle.

5. Maruts, do you bring wealth comprising horses: to acquire and preserve riches the wise man offers you praise: may the ministrant priest, (Atri), of the son of Uṣij (Kakshīvat), be made happy by those swift-going (horses) which are the swift-going (horses), Maruts, of you who are rapid in motion.

6. Prevail, (priests), by your prayers, on Vāyu, the divine, the fulfiller of desires, the adorable, to harness his chariot: may the light-moving accepters of sacrifice, the lovely and excellent wives (of the gods), come hither to our rite.

7. Mighty Day and Night to you, along with the adorable (deities) of heaven, I present (the oblation) with prayers delighting and explicit: knowing, like two sages, all (that is required), do you bring (it) to the worshipper for his sacrifice.

8. I glorify you, leaders (of rites), cherishers (of many), gratifying (with oblations, you) Twashtri the lord of foundations, and the goddess of speech, bestower of opulence, and sharer in the satisfaction (of the other divinities); also the lords of the forest, and the herbs, that I may obtain riches.

9. May the Parvatās

2 Tuje nas-tane: tane is rendered by visrīte, expanded, and tuje by dāne, gift, or tuje may mean son, and tane grandson.
the establishers (of the world) like heroes;¹ may the adored and adorable (deity), who is accessible (to all),² who is friendly to man, ever grant us increase, being propitiated by our praise.³

10. I glorify with unqualified praise the embryo of the earth-fertilizing rain,⁴ the grandson of the waters, Agni, who is threefold, who rages (upon me) not, when travelling, with (his) withering rays,⁵ but, bright-haired, consumes the forests.

11. How can we offer (fit praise) to the mighty posterity of Rudra, or to the all-knowing Bhaga, for (the sake of obtaining) riches: may the waters, may the plants, protect us, and the heaven, the woods, and the mountains, whose tresses are trees.

12. May the lord of vigour, (Vayu), hear our prayers; he who traverses the firmament, the circumambient: may the waters hear, bright as cities,⁶ flowing round the towering mountains.

¹ Ye vasavo na virāh, jagato vāsayitārah virā iva is the explanation of the scholiast.
² Ápyo yajataḥ: according to Sāyana, the first means áptavyah sarvaikh, to be obtained-by all; the second, yajaniya, to be worshipped, that is, Áditya.
³ Nāh sansam abhiśtau, our praise in seeking or approaching; the want of a verb renders this somewhat doubtful.
⁴ Vrishno bhúmyaṁya garbham: bhúmya, Sāyana explains by, either suited to the earth or the firmament, bhúmir-antarikhsham: in the latter case the embryo of the firmamental rain will mean Agni as the lightning, according to Sāyana.
⁵ Grīnte Ágni etarī na śishāik; mayī gantari na krudhyati sukharakai raśmibhiḥ, who is not angry upon me when going with his agreeable rays; but this seems inconsistent with the sense given to the verb: śishā, drying up, would be more congruous.
⁶ Puro na śubhrā, purāṇī iva diptā, shining like cities.
18. Mighty Maruts, of goodly aspect, quickly hear (the praises) that we who repair to you repeat, offering acceptable (oblations): (the Maruts) coming hither, well disposed, come down to us, (destroying) with their weapons the mortals opposed to them, (overcome) by agitation.

14. I offer adoration to the company of the Maruts deserving of sacred sacrifice, to obtain the waters, whether born of heaven or earth: may my praises prosper: may the joy-bestowing heavens (flourish): may the rivers cherished (by the Maruts) be filled with water.

15. My praise has been continually proffered as a protectress, powerful with (the means of) preservation: may the maternal and venerable earth accept our (praises), and, (pleased) with her pious worshippers be (to us) straight-handed, and the giver of good.

16. How may we (duly) worship the liberal (Maruts) with praise, how adore the Maruts with present praise in a fitting manner, the glorious Maruts with present praise? may Ahirbudhnya contrive not for our harm; may he be the destroyer (of our enemies).

17. The mortal (sacrificer) worships you, gods, at all times for progeny and cattle: verily, gods, the mortal worships you: may Nirriti, on this occasion, sustain my body with salutary food, and keep off decay.

1 Varútri, asmad upadravavárayitrí, what or who keeps off oppression upon us.
2 See page 123, note 2.
18. Divine Vasus, may we obtain from the adorable cow invigorating, and mind-sustaining food: may that liberal and benignant goddess, hastening (hither), come for our felicity.

19. May Ilá, the mother of the herd, and Urvashi, with the rivers, be favourable to us: may the bright-shining Urvashi (come), commending our devotion, and investing the worshipper with light.

20. May she cherish us (as the servants) of our patron Urvāya.

Śūkta X. (XLII.)

The deities and Ṛishi as before; the metre is Trishtubh.

Varga XVII.

1. May our most animating praise, together with our offerings, successfully attain Varuna, Mitra, Bhaga, and Aditi: may the ministrant of the five (vital airs, Vāyu), the dweller in the dappled (firma-

1 Ilá may here be the earth, or the daughter of Manu, in the form of a cow, the mother of the herd, yūthasya mātā; or the latter may be explained nirmātri, she who measures; or yūtha may be applied to the company of the Maruts, when Ilá, it is said, may be mādhyamikā vāch, middle, articulate or human speech; or the latter sense may be applied to Urvāśi.

2 Abhyūrvanā prabhritoṣya āyoh: the latter, the commentator says, is to be read āyuṃ, in the accusative, man, or the Yajamāna: prabhrita, upon the authority of Yāsha, Nirukta, 11. 49, may mean either light, tejas, or water, udakam, and, being in the genitive, requires some such term as dānena, by the gift of, to be supplied; or the ellipse may be filled up by yajnam, when the sentence will be, covering or protecting the sacrifice of the man making the offering.

3 Sishtaktu na urjavyasya pushteḥ: urjavya is the name of a Rájá; pushteḥ is for poshakarya, one who cherishes or patronises: the nominative to the verb may be either Urvāśi or Ilá, or the Marudgaṇah, the company of the Maruts.
ment), he whose path is unimpeded, who is the giver of life, the bestower of happiness, hear.

2. May Aditi accept my affectionate and devoted praise, as a mother (the endearments of) a son: the pleasing, delightful prayer that is approved of by the gods I address to Varuna and Mitra.

3. Celebrate, (priests), the most prophetic of the prophets;¹ imbue him with the sweet libation, and may the divine Savitri bestow upon us ample, beneficial, and delightful riches.

4. With a (willing) mind, Indra, thou associatest us with cattle, with pious (priests), and, lord of steeds, with prosperity, with (sacrificial) food that is agreeable to the gods, and with the favour of the adorable deities.²

5. May the divine Bhaga, Savitri the lord of wealth, Anśa, Indra (the slayer) of Vritra, (all) the conquerors of riches, Ribhukshin,³ Vāja, and also Purandhi, immortals, hastening (to our sacrifice) preserve us.

6. We celebrate the exploits of Marutvat, the unrecoiling, the victorious, the undecaying: neither the ancients, Māghavan, nor their successors, have attained thy prowess, nor has any one recent attained it.

¹ Kavitaman kaviṇām: kavi, as before observed, is usually explained krānta darśi, a seer or shewn of the past, whence may be inferred the application of his knowledge to the future, "Till old experience doth attain,
To something of prophetic strain."

² Yajur Veda, 2. 16: there are one or two varieties of reading, but they are not of any importance.

³ Ribhukshin is usually considered to be a name of Indra, but here it implies Ribhu, whilst Purandhi is equivalent to Vībhu, making, with Vāja, the triad.
7. Glorify the first donor of precious treasure, Brihaspati, the distributor of riches, the bestower of great happiness upon him who recites or chants (his praise), who comes laden with ample wealth to his invoker.

8. Associated, Brihaspati, with thy protections, (men) are unharmed (by foes), and become opulent and blessed with descendants: may wealth devolve on those who are generous, and givers of horses, of cows, of clothes.

9. Render transitory the riches of those who partake of enjoyment without giving satisfaction (to those who are eminent) by holy hymns: put apart from the sun¹ those who perform not sacred rites, and who, though prospering in their posterity, are the adversaries of prayer.²

10. Send, Māruśā, into darkness, with (cars) devoid of wheels, the man who invites the Rākshasas to the food of the gods; (him also) who reviles me when offering praise to you: whilst sweating, he toils (to realise) vain desires.

11. Praise him who has the sure arrow, the strong bow, who presides over all sanitary drugs; worship Rudra for a comprehensive and sound understanding; adore the powerful divinity with prostrations;

12. May the dextrous-handed, humble-minded artisans (of the gods, the Ribhus); may the wives of the showerer (Indra); may the rivers carved out by ² Brahmadweshtrin, Śāyana says, may mean haters of Brahmans, or of mantras, that is, in the latter case, of the Vedas.

VIBHU; may SARASWATI and the brilliant RĀKĀ, the illustrious granters of desires, be willing to grant us riches.

13. To the great protector, (INDRA), I offer devoutly pious praise, new and originated (at this time): to him, the showerer, who, for his daughter (earth), giving form to the rivers, has provided this water for our (use).

14. May thy pious praise, oh worshipper, assuredly reach the thundering, roaring lord of IJĀ, who, impelling the clouds and distributing the rain, proceeds, illuminating the heaven and earth with lightning.

15. May this hymn reach up to the presence of the might of the MARUTS, the youthful sons of RUDRA: the desire of riches incites me to holiness: glorify those who go to sacrifice on spotted steeds.

16. May this hymn attain (the divinities) of earth and heaven, the trees, the herbs, for (the sake of) wealth: may each individual deity be successfully invoked by me: let not mother earth take us into unfavourable thought.

17. May we ever, gods, enjoy great and uninterrupted felicity.

18. May we ever be participant of the unprecedented, joy-conferring, and well-guided protection of the ĀŚWINS: bring to us, immortal (ĀŚWINS), riches, male progeny, and all good things.

Sūkta XI. (XLIII.)

The deities as before; The Rishi is ATRI; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. May the milch kine,¹ quick-moving, doing no harm, come to us, (laden) with their sweet fluid: the wise worshipper invokes the seven vast and joy-diffusing (rivers) for the sake of ample riches.

2. (I purpose) to approach with pious praise, and with oblations, for (the sake of) the uninjured heaven and earth: may the paternal (heaven), and the sweet-spoken, free-handed, maternal (earth), both enjoying renown, defend us in every battle.

3. Priests, who are preparing (the libation), first offer to Váyu the delightful and brilliant (Soma); and do thou, divine Váyu, like the Hotrí, first drink of this sweet juice, (which) we offer for thine exhilaration.¹

4. The ten expressers of the juice, (the fingers), and the two arms of the priest, which are the dextrous immolators of the Soma, take hold of the stone: the exulting, skilful-fingered (priest) milks the mountain-born juice of the sweet Soma, and that Soma (yields its) pure juice.²

5. The Soma has been effused, (Indra), for thy gratification, for (giving thee) strength in action, and for thy great exhilaration: therefore, Indra, when invoked by us, put to thy two beloved, docile, well-trained horses in thy car, and come down.

6. Agni, being well pleased with us, bring to us, by paths frequented by the gods, the divine (female) Gná,³ mighty and omnipresent, to whom oblations are

² The text has only sukram anśuh, which is thus explained, sa cha anśuh sukram nirmalam rasan dugähe, and that Soma has milked the pure juice; or Anśu may be an epithet of Adhvaryu, the extensively present priest, anśur vyapto adhwaryuh.

³ Gná is a synonyme of strí, a woman, a wife: it commonly offered with reverence, who is vast and cognizant of rites, to partake of the exhilaration of the sweet Soma.

7. The vessel which the priests, celebrating (it), supply with butter, as if roasting a marrow-yielding animal with fire, has been placed, desirous of the sacrifice, upon the fire, like a son upon the lap of his father.

8. May this adoring, earnest, and gratifying praise go like a messenger to summon the Aświns hither: come, Aświns, givers of happiness, riding in one chariot, come down to the deposited (Soma), as the bolt (is essential) to the axle of the waggon.

9. I offer adoration to the powerful and rapid Pūshan, and to (the powerful and rapid) Vāyu, who are both instigators of the desire of wealth and of food, (who are both) distributors of riches.

10. Bring hither Játaavedas, who art invoked by us all, the Maruts, under their several names and forms: come, all ye Maruts, with all your protecting faculties, to the sacrifice, the praises, and the adoration of the worshipper.

11. May the radiant Saraswatī come to the sacrifice from the heavens or the spacious firmament: may the goddess, the showerer of water, propitiated by our invocation, and desirous of our gratifying praises, hear.

expresses the wife of a deity: here, Śhyāṇa says, it is a proper name, Gnáṁ, etanními kám devatáṁ.

1 Gaśrma: see Śúkta xxx. verse 15.

2 As the cart cannot move if the axle of the wheel is not fastened by the pin or bolt, so the offering of the Soma is without efficacy unless the Aświns be present.
12. (Priests) place the mighty Brihaspati, the creator, whose back is dark blue,¹ in the chamber (of sacrifice): let us worship him who is seated in the interior of the mansion, everywhere shining, golden-hued, resplendent.

13. May the sustainer of all, (Agni), the greatly radiant, the delighter, come, with all his protecting (faculties), when invoked; he who is clothed with flames and with plants; who is irresistible; who has horns of three colours;² the showerer (of benefits), the accepter of oblations.

14. The holders of the (sacrificial) ladles, the ministering priests of the man (who institutes the rite), have repaired to the bright and most excellent place of the maternal (earth).³ offerers of the oblation, they foster the tender infant, (Agni), with worship, as people rub (the limbs of a child to promote his) existence.⁴

15. Married pairs, worn by devout rites, jointly offer abundant sacrificial food, Agni, to thee⁵ who art mighty: may each individual divinity be successfully

³ That is, to the fire altar.

invoked by me: let them not take us into unfavourable thought.\footnote{See verse 16 of the preceding Sūkta.}

16. May we ever, gods, enjoy great and uninterrupted felicity.\footnote{See verse 17 of the preceding Sūkta.}

17. May we ever be participant of the unprecedented, joy-conferring, and well-guiding protection of the Aświns: bring to us, immortal (Aświns), riches, male progeny, and all good things.

Sūkta XII. (XLIV.)
The deities are the same; the Rishi is Avatsāra of the race of Kasyapa; the metre of the fourteenth and fifteenth verses is Trishṭubh, of the rest Jagati.

1. In like manner as the ancient (sages), those our predecessors, as all sages, and those of the present period, (have obtained their wishes by his praise), so do thou by praise extract (my desires) from him who is the oldest and best (of the gods), who is seated on the sacred grass, who is cognizant of heaven, coming to our presence, vigorous, swift, victorious, for by such praises thou exalttest him.\footnote{Or anu yāsau varddhase may be applied to Indra, thou prosperest, Indra, by such praises: this is Mahīdhara's explanation, which differs in some other respects from that of Sāyana, Yajur-Veda, 7. 12.}

2. Do thou, (Indra), who art radiant in heaven, spread through the regions, for the good (of mankind), those the beautiful (waters) of the unyielding cloud: doer of good deeds, thou art the preserver (of men), not (destined) for their detriment: thou art superior to all delusions; thy name abides in the world of truth.

3. He, (Agni), is associated with the perpetual oblation that is the true (source of good); the sustainer of all, he is of unrestricted movement, the offerer (of burnt-offerings), the cherisher of strength: gliding especially over the sacred grass, the showerer (of benefits); an infant, a youth, exempt from decay, whose place is among plants.

4. These well-combined rays (of the sun) are descending with intent to proceed on the path (of the sacrifice), amplifiers of the ceremony for this (its institutor): operating with these swift-moving, all-regulating rays, he, (ĀdITYA), steals the waters (that flow) in low places.

5. Object of honest eulogium, (AGNI), thou shinest amongst the reciters of thy praises when the Soma is received at its effusion by the wooden (cups), and thou, accepting (the beverage), art animated by the heart-affecting (praises): giver of life, increase in the sacrifice thy protecting flames.¹

Varga XXIV.

6. Such as (the deity) is beheld, such is he said (to be): they abide with concentrated splendour in the waters: (may they bestow) upon us honourable and ample (riches), great energy, numerous male offspring, and undecaying vigour.

7. The sage SŪRYA, advancing, accompanied by his bride, (the dawn), proceeds boldly, intent on combat with his enemies: may he on whom riches are dependent, secure our entire felicity, (and grant) a brilliant and everywhere protecting mansion.

8. The (pious man) proceeds to thee, most excellent (of the gods, who art indicated) by the sign of this moving (revolution); who art hymned by the Rishis in whose praises thy name (is glorified): he obtains that blessing by his devotions, on whatsoever (his desire) has been fixed; and he also, who of his own accord offers (worship), acquires abundant (reward).

9. The chiefest of these (our praises) proceed to the ocean-like sun: that chamber of sacrifice fails not in which (his praises) are prolonged: there the heart's desire of the worshipper is not disappointed where the mind is known to be attached to the pure (sun).

10. He verily (is to be glorified): let us, with the pleasant thoughts of Kshatra, Manasa, Avada, Yajata, Sadhri, and Avatsara, fill up the invigorating food, (the portion) to be shared by the wise.

11. Swift is the excessive and girth-distending inebriation of Viswavara, Yajata, and Mayin: (by drinking) of these (juices) they urge one another to 1 Aṣya yatunasya ketunā is the text; the explanation is karmanodayādilakshaṇena, characterized by functions such as rising and the like.

2 Yā u swayam vahate so aram kарат, he who, not urged by another, entertains of his own mind the hope of reward, he does much, or enough; atyartham karoti is one explanation; another is, atyartham huryāt, let him do much, or enough: neither is very explicit.
3 These, according to the scholiast, are the names of the Rishis.
4 Śyena āsám aditiḥ hakshyo madah: syena is interpreted sīghra, quick, and aditi, atisamriddhah: āsám, of these, implies the Soma-juices; mada, intoxication, is the devatā of his verse.
drink: they find the copious draught the prompt giver of intoxication.

12. May Sadāpriṇa, Yajata, Bāhuvrikta, Surtavit, Tarya,\(^1\) associated with you, destroy your foes: the Rishi obtains his desires in both (worlds), and shines brightly, whenever he adores with well-mingled (offerings and praises) the host (of heaven).

14. Sutambhara is the ministrant priest of the institutor of the sacrifice,\(^2\) the causer of the upward ascent of all holy rites; the milch-cow offers juicy (milk); the milk is distributed: announcing this in order, (Avatsāra) studies (the holy texts) without repose.

14. Him who is ever vigilant, holy verses desire: to him who is ever vigilant sacred songs proceed: him who is ever vigilant the Soma thus addresses, I am always abiding in thy fellowship.

15. Agni is ever vigilant, and him holy verses desire: Agni is ever vigilant, and to him sacred songs proceed: Agni is ever vigilant, and him the Soma thus addresses, I am ever abiding in thy fellowship.

\(^1\) Names of Rishis again.

\(^2\) Sutambhara yajamānasya satpatih: the last, according to Sāyana, is put for hotri; the first is the name of a Rishi: its etymological purport, the bearer or offerer of the libation, is possibly only a metaphorical personation, and, with the context, though mystically expressed, merely describes the effusion of the Soma.
FOURTH ASHTAKA—SECOND ADHYĀYA. 318

ANUVAKA IV.

SÓKTA I. (XLV.)
The deities are the Viśvadhvās; the Bṛishī is Saḍāpṛīṇa; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. (Indra) recovered (the hidden cattle), hurling his thunderbolt from heaven at the prayers of the Ángirásas: the rays of the approaching dawn are spread around: the divine sun, scattering the clustered gloom, has risen and set open the doors of (the habitations of) men.

2. The sun distributes his radiance as if it was a substance: the parent of the rays of light, (the dawn), knowing his approach, comes from the spacious (firmament): the rivers with running waters flow, breaking down their banks: the heaven is stable like a well-constructed pillar.

3. To me, when offering praise, as to an ancient author of sacred songs, the burthen of the cloud (descends); the cloud parts (with its burthen); the sky performs (its office): the assiduously worshipping Ángirásas are exhausted by much (adoration).

4. Indra and Agni, I invoke you for my salvation with well-uttered words, agreeable to the gods; for verily, sages excelling in sacrifice, and diligently adoring, worship you with sacred songs, prompt as the Maruts (in devotion).

5. Come to-day quickly: let us be engaged in pious acts: let us entirely annihilate the hostile: let us

1 Mahínam janushe púryáye, stuṭínam utpádayitve pratnáya, to an ancient begetter or producer of praises.
keep off all secret enemies: let us hasten to the presence of the institutor of the rite.

6. Come, friends, let us celebrate that solemn rite which was effectual in setting open the (secret) stalls of the (stolen) cattle; by which Manu overcame Visisipra; by which the merchant, going to the wood (for it), obtained the water.

7. At this sacrifice the stone (set in motion) by the hands (of the priests) makes a noise, whereby the nine-month ministrants celebrated the ten-months worship: when Saramā, going to the ceremony, discovered the cattle, and Angiras rendered all the rites effective.

8. When all the Angirasas, on the opening of this adorable dawn, came in contact with the (discovered) cattle, then milk and the rest were offered in the august assembly, for Saramā had found the cows by the path of truth.

9. May Sūrya, lord of seven steeds, arrive, for he has a distant goal (to reach) by a tedious route: fleet as a hawk he pounces upon the offered (sacrificial) food: ever young and far-seeing, he shines, moving amidst rays of light.

1 Manur-visisipram jigāya: Manu conquered the enemy without a chin, or as sipra means also a nose, it might mean noseless: Sāyana also says Indra and Vyātra may be here intended.

2 Vanij-vankur āpa purisham: the scholiast says this alludes to the story of kakśkivan: see vol i, p. 291, verse 11.

3 Or, when the priests of both the nine and ten months rites offered worship: see vol. i, p. 167, note.

4 Saramā, according to Sāyana, may here signify either flowing, eulogistic, or sacred speech, saranāsaśitā stutirūpā vāk, or, as usual, the bitch of Indra.
10. Súrya has ascended above the glistening water, as soon as he has put to his bright-backed steeds: sage (worshippers) have drawn him, like a ship, across the sea: the waters, hearing his commands, have come down.

11. I offer to you, (gods), for the sake of water, an all-bestowing sacrifice, whereby the nine-months ministers have completed the ten months rite: may we, by this sacrifice, be the protected of the gods: may we, by this sacrifice, cross over the boundaries of sin.

Súkta II. (XLVI.)

The deities of the first six stanzas are the Viśvadevas, of the last two the wives of the gods; the Rishi is Pratikshatra; the metre of the second and eighth stanzas is Trishṭubha, of the rest Jagati.

1. The sage, (Pratikshatra), has, of his own accord, attached himself to the burthen (of sacrifice), like a horse (to a chariot); I support that transcendent and preservative load: I do not desire release from it, nor yet its reiterated imposition: the sage, going first, conducts (men) by the right path.

2. Agni, Indra, Varuṇa, Mitra, gods, confer (upon us) strength: or, company of the Maruts, or Viṣṇu, (bestow it): and may both the Násatyaś, Rudra, the wives of the gods, Púshan, Bhaga, Sarasvatī, be pleased (by our adoration).

3. I invoke for protection Indra and Agni, Mitra

1 Súrya áruḥat śuhram arnas: Súrya has mounted the bright water, that is, the commentator says, he has become everywhere visible; but it looks very like an allusion to the sun's rising apparently out of the sea.
and Varuna, Aditi, Swar, Earth, Heaven, the Maruts, the clouds, the waters, Vishnu, Pushan, Brahma-naspati, and Savitri.

4. Or may Vishnu grant us felicity, or the innoxious wind, or Soma the bestower of riches; or may the Ribhus, the, Ashwins, Twashtri, or Vibhwan be favourably disposed to our enrichment.

5. Or may the adorable, heaven-abiding company of the Maruts, come to us to take their seats on the sacred grass; or may Brihaspati, Pushan, Varuna, Mitra, Aryaman, bestow upon us domestic happiness.

6. Or may the glorious mountains, the beneficent rivers, be to us for our preservation: may Bhaga, the apportioner of wealth, come with abundance and protection: may this wide-pervading Aditi hear my invocation.

7. May the wives of the gods, desiring (our homage), defend us: may they so protect us that (we may obtain) vigorous (offspring) and abundant food: whether terrestrial, or those in charge of the waters (in the firmament), do you, goddesses, earnestly invoked, bestow upon us felicity.

8. Or may the goddesses, the wives of the gods, accept (the offering): Indrani, Agnati, the radiant Ashwini, Rodast, Varunani, may each hear (our prayer): may the goddesses partake (of the oblation).

1 Swar is a name of Aditya according to both commentators, this and the preceding stanza occurring also in the Yajurved, 39, 48, 49.

2 According to Vasha, she is the wife of Rudra: we have had her before as the bride of the Maruts, vol. ii. p. 135, v. 5.

3 Vyantu devih, may the goddesses eat, Nirukta, xii. 46.
may the (personified) season of the wives of the gods,\(^1\) accept it.

THIRD ADHYÁYA.

SUKTA III. (XLVII.)

The deities are the Viswadevas: the Rishi is Pratiratha; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. Arousing (men to their labours), the adorable (Dawn) comes from the heaven, a mighty mother, the awakener of her daughter (earth):\(^2\) pious, ever young, and glorified, (she comes), when invoked, to the chamber of sacrifice with the protecting (gods).

2. The rays (of light) extending round, fulfilling their duty (of bringing on the day), abiding in contact with the orb of the immortal (sun), unlimited and diffusive, spread everywhere through heaven and earth.

\(^1\) Yá pitur janinám, that which is the time of the wives of the gods, that is, the goddesses presiding over it: yo devajá-yánám kálas-tadabhimáná devyah.

\(^2\) Duhitúr bodhayantí, bhúmyá bodham hurvána, making the awaking of the daughter, the comment says, of the earth: in a subsequent passage quoted by Sáyana we have Ushás called dívor duhitá bhuvanasya patní, the daughter of heaven, the bride of earth: she is most usually designated the daughter of heaven: see vol ii. p. 10, verse 3.
3. The showerer (of rain), the shedder of dew, the radiant and quick-going (car) has entered the region of the paternal east: the many-tinted and pervading \(^1\) (luminary) proceeds to both extremities of the firmament, (and so) preserves (the world).

4. The four (chief priests)\(^2\) sustain him (with oblations and praises), seeking their own welfare: the ten (regions of space) invigorate him, their embryo, to travel (his daily course): his three elementary rays\(^3\) swiftly traverse the boundaries of the sky.

5. (Behold),\(^4\) men, this indescribable form from which the rivers (spring), and where the waters dwell; which (form, the firmament), the two, (day and night), associated and equally allied, as well as other (seasons), born (of it, as of a parent), here and there sustain.\(^5\)

6. To him (worshippers) multiply praises and acts of adoration: for (him as for) a son, the (divine) mothers weave garments (of light): rejoicing in the

\(^1\) Prisnir asmá vichakrama rajaepátyantau, also Yajur Veda, 17, 10, where, besides the explanation given by Sáyana, as in the translation, Mahádhara takes the word asmá, rendered by him as by Sáyana, vyápaka, or sarvatra vyápta, pervading; also in its usual sense of stone, alluding, he says, to a páshána, or stone, which in some ceremonies is placed in the Áhavaníya fire, and to it he applies the epithets that are, in the other interpretation, ascribed to Súrya: Súyana probably refers to this when he intimates that asmá may also imply a simile, the term of comparison being dropped, luptopama vá asmá sadhríshah.

\(^2\) The text has only chatvárah, four: the comment supplies Ritvijah.

\(^3\) Tridhátavo gávah, supposed to be the causes of cold, heat, and rain.

\(^4\) It may be rendered, also, men, look at the form which is to be seen: the text has no verb.

\(^5\) It is not very clear what is intended, but apparently the contact of their impregnation, the wives of the sun, (the solar rays), come to our presence by the path of the sky.

7. May this (hymn), Mitra and Varuna, be valued (by you): may it, Agni, be valued (by thee) as the means to us of happiness unmixed: may we (thence) obtain stability and permanence: reverence be to thee, radiant and mighty asylum (of the universe).

Sūkta IV. (XLVIII.)

The deities as before; the Rishi is Pratibhanu; the metre Jagati.

1. When may we offer adoration to the benevolent splendour, strong in its own (strength), self-sustaining with food, deserving of worship: when the delusive (energy of Agni), investing (the heavens), spreads the waters above the clouds over the unbounded firmament.1

2. These dawns diffuse the consciousness that is apprehended by pious men, and (overspread) the whole world with uniform, investing (light): the devout, man disregards the dawns which have turned back, and (those which) are to come,2 and improves (his understanding) by those which have preceded.3

scholiast understands it to mean that the firmament is supported or maintained in its place by the various changes of times and seasons which it may be considered to generate.

1 This is addressed to Agni as the lightning.

2 Apo, apáchir-aparā apejati: the scholiast renders apáchih by pratiniyātittamukhiḥ, aparā by āgāmīnir-ushasah, and the verb by apachālayati, he causes to go away, he sends away future dawns with averted faces: the first apa is considered a pleonasm.

3 Pra pūrvābhis-tirate: pratirate is explained vardhayati suva manishām, or swayam vardhate.
3. (Animated) by the libations offered by day and by night, (Indra) sharpens his vast thunderbolt against the beguiler (Vritra); he whose hundred (rays) attend him in his own abode, sending away, and bringing back (revolving) days.

4. (I behold) the practice of that (Agni) as of a deputy: I celebrate the host (of rays) of that (re-splendent form, designed) for the enjoyment (of mankind): if he be with (the worshipper), he bestows upon the man who invokes him at a sacrifice such opulence as a mansion abounding with food.

5. Blazing with his (fiery) tongue in the four quarters (of the horizon), he proceeds (to the sacrifice), wearing beautiful (lustre), the disperser of darkness, extirpating foes: we know him not (as endowed) with manhood, whereby this adorable Savitri bestows desirable (wealth).

SUKTA V. (XLIX.)

The deities are the same; the Rishi is Pratiprabha; the metre is Trishtubh.

Varga III.

1. For you, (worshippers), I approach to day the divine Savitri and Bhaga, the distributors of precious

---

1 Tām asya rītim paraṣor-iva: the text has no verb: the comment supplies pasyāmi, and interprets paraṣu by pratīnīdhi, a deputy, a substitute: in like manner as a deputy fulfils the will of his master, so the functions of Agni make him the deputy or representative of the yajamāna; or paraṣu may imply an axe, as usual, which accomplishes the object of the woodcutter, as Agni does that of the sacrificer.

2 Na tasya vidma purushatvā vasam: the scholiast says tasya is for tam, we do not know him, joined with or possessed of yuktam, manliness, purushatvam, or the property of fulfilling desires, kāmānāṁ purahātvam (wealth) amongst men: Āświns, (leaders of rites), enjoyers of many (good things), desiring your friendship, I solicit your daily presence.

2. Knowing the approach of the expeller (of the foes of the gods from heaven), worship the divine Savitri with holy hymns: praise him with reverence, distinguishing him as distributing precious (treasures) amongst men.

3. Pūshan, Bhaga, Aditi, bestow (severally) excellent viands: the fierce (sun) robes (himself with radiance): the good-looking (deities), Indra, Vishnu, Varuna, Mitra, Agni, give birth to happy days.

4. May the irreproachable Savitri (grant) us that desirable (wealth): may the flowing rivers hasten to (convey) it to us; for which purpose I, the ministering priest of the sacrifice, repeat (pious praises): affluent in food, may we be the lords of (manifold) riches.

5. May ample wealth devolve upon those who have presented victims to the Vasus, and upon those who

1. This function has been before assigned to Bhaga, Sūkta xlvi. verse 6: he was there named Bhago vibhahtā explained dhanānām vibhāgahartā: here he is designated ratnam vibhajantā: the scholiast first applies ratnam to havish, the oblation; but he also says yajamānārtham dhanām vibhajantam: see also Mandala iv. 17. 11, where he is called ráyo vibhahtā.

2. Adātryā dayate vāryāṇi: the first is explained adaniyāni, eatables: the verb also, it is said, may be governed by Agni understood, when the phrase will mean, Agni consumes excellent consumable timbers, varaniyāni kāśṭhāni dakte: in that case the other terms, usually proper names, will become epithets, meaning the nourishing, the desirable, the uninjurable Agni.

3. Pra ye vasubhya tvadā namah: tvad namah are interpreted gamanavād annam, food having motion, that is, pasvād-maham, the same with animals.
have repeated praises to Mitra and Varuna: confer upon them, (gods), felicity, and may we rejoice in the protection of heaven and earth.

Sūkta VI. (L.)
The deities as before; the Rishi is Swasti; the metre is Anush-tubh, except in the fifth stanza, in which it is Pankti.

1. Let every man solicit the friendship of the divine leader (of heaven, the sun): let every man desire (of him) riches: let him request affluence (wherewith) to nourish (his descendants).¹

2. Divine (leader of heaven), these (worshippers) are thine, and (so are they) who praise these (other gods): these (both) we associate with opulence, we (seek) to unite with (our) desires.²

3. Worship, therefore, the leaders (of our rites), our guests, (the gods), and the wives (of the deities):¹ may the (divine) discriminator drive to a distance every adversary, (and all our) enemies.

4. Whence the victim fit to be bound, the subject (of the sacrifice), has been stationed (at the sacrificial post):⁴ he, (Savitri), with mind well disposed towards

³ Ato na ā nyān atithin, atah patnir dasasyata: the verb may be differently interpreted, and the text imply, bestow upon us male descendants, guests, and wives.
⁴ Yatra vahnir-abhiihitah might mean, where the fire is placed, but Sāyana interprets vahni, yajnasya vodhā, the bearer of the sacrifice which, from the following epithet, dronya, fit for the worshipper, the donor of dwellings and descendants is like a clever wife, the bestower (of wealth).

5. Leader (of heaven), may this thy protecting chariot, laden with riches, (come for our) happiness: praisers of the honoured (Savitri), we glorify him for felicity through well-being: praisers of the gods, we glorify (them).

Sūkta VII. (LI.)
The deities and Rishi as before; the metre of the first four stanzas is Gāyatī, of the next six Uṣṇih, of the next three Trishtubh, and of the last Anushtubh.

1. Come, Agni, with all the protecting deities, to drink the libation: come with the gods.

2. (Gods who are) devoutly praised and worshipped in truth, come to the sacrifice, and drink the libation with the tongue of Agni.

3. Sage and adorable Agni, come with the wise and early-stirring divinities to drink the Soma libation.

4. This Soma-juice, effused into the ladles, is poured out into the vase, acceptable to Indra and Vāyu.

5. Come, Vāyu, propitious to the offerer of the libation, to partake of the sacrificial food, and drink of the effused juice.

libations: be gratified by them, benevolent (divinities), and partake of the sacrificial food.

7. The Soma-juices mixed with curds are poured out to Indra and to Vāyu: the sacrificial viands proceed to you as rivers flow downwards.

8. Accompanied by all the gods, accompanied by the Aświns, and by Ushas, come, Agni, and, like Atri, delight in the libation.¹

9. Accompanied by Mitra and Varuna, accompanied by Soma and Vishnu, come, Agni, and, like Atri, delight in the libation.

10. Accompanied by Āditya and the Vasus, accompanied by Indra and by Vāyu, come, Agni, and, like Atri, delight in the libation.

11. May the Aświns contribute to our prosperity:² may Bhaga, and the divine Āditi (contribute) to scatterer (of foes), bestow upon us prosperity: may the conscious Heaven and Earth (bestow upon us) prosperity.

12. We glorify Vāyu for prosperity, Soma for prosperity, he who is the protector of the world: (we praise) Brīháspati (attended by) all the companies (of the deities), for prosperity, and for our prosperity may the Ādityas be ours.

prosperity: may Agni, the benefactor of all men, and giver of dwellings, (be with us) for (our) prosperity:
may the divine Ribhus protect us for (our) prosperity:
may Rudra preserve us from iniquity for (our) prosperity.

14. Mitra and Varuna; grant us prosperity: Path (of the firmament), and Goddess of riches,1 (grant us) prosperity: may Indra and Agni (grant us) prosperity: Aditi, bestow prosperity upon us.

15. May we ever follow prosperously our path, like the sun and the moon: may we be associated with a requiting, grateful, and recognisant (kinsman).2

SÓKTA VIII. (LII.)
The deities are the Maruts; the Rishi is Śyāvāśwa; the metre of the sixth and seventh stanzas is Pankti, of the rest Anushtubh.

1. Offer worship with perseverance, Śyāvāśwa, to the praise-deserving Maruts; they who are adorable

1 Pathye, Revati, are considered as two proper names, Pathyā that of a goddess presiding over the Antariksha, and Revati, of a goddess presiding over riches: it may be doubted if there is any better authority for these divinities than etymology.

2 Punardadatá, aghnatá, jánatá, with one who gives again, one who does not kill or harm, usually, one who does not make an evil return to kindness, one who is grateful, although Śayana here explains it, one who does not inflict injury by long-suspended anger: jánata, by one knowing, he says, is meant one who does not cut an old acquaintance, madiyas-chirakálam gatah ko ayaṁ iti sandeham akure vatá, by one who does not feel any doubt, saying, who is this of mine that has been long since gone away:
to these designations; bandhujana, a kinsman, is to be applied, bandhujanena sanganemahi.
and delight in the daily offered and inoffensive sacrificial food.

2. They are the firm friends of steady vigour, who, proceeding resolute on their way, willingly protect (our) numerous (descendants).

3. Gliding along, and shedding moisture, they pass through the nights: therefore we now celebrate the might of the Maruts, manifested in both heaven and earth.

4. We enjoin you, (priests), to offer earnestly praise and sacrifice to the Maruts, who, through all human ages, protect the mortal worshipper from harm.

5. Offer sacrifice to the adorable Maruts, who (have come) from heaven, who are worthy of worship, munificent leaders (of rites), and possessors of unequalled strength.

6. Leaders (of the rains), the mighty Maruts shine with brilliant ornaments and weapons, and hurl javelins (at their foes, the clouds): the lightnings, like roaring (torrents), daily follow the Maruts: the radiance of the resplendent (cohort) spontaneously breaks forth.

7. The Maruts, who are of the earth\(^1\) are augmented, so are those in the vast firmament: they increase in the force of the rivers, and in the aggregate of the spacious heaven.

8. Glorify the truth-invigorated and infinite strength of the Maruts, for they, the leaders (of the rains), gliding along, are labouring voluntarily for (our) good.

9. Whether they (abide) on the Parushné (river), or, purifying (all), they clothe themselves with light,¹ or whether they break through the clouds with strength by the wheels of their chariots; us), or that spread diversely, or those that sink into the hollows (of the mountain), or those that extend smoothly,² they, (however) scattered, accept the sacri-ifice for my benefit, (when invoked by these appellations).

11. Now, leaders (of the rains), they support (the world): now, blending together, they (bear the oblation: now, situated remote, (they uphold distant objects):³ so may their manifold forms be manifest.

12. The reciters of sacred metres, desirous of water, and celebrating (the Maruts), have drawn them to (provide) a well (for Gotama)⁴: some of them, (invisible) as thieves, have been my defenders:
some have been (obvious) to view through the light (of life).

13. Glorify, Rishi, with grateful praise, the company of the Maruts, who are manifest, bright with

p. 11. note.

² The words so rendered are Āpathayah, Vipathayah, Antaspatāh, Anupathāh, which may also be considered as the proper names of these four orders of the Maruts.

from parāvat, dūradesaḥ, a distant place or country, tat samban dhināḥ being in relation to it; that is, according to Sāyāna, the winds being in the firmament give support to the distant stars and planets.

lightning lances, who are wise, and the creators (of all things).

14. Approach, Rishi, with offerings and with praise, the company of the Maruts like a friend:¹ come, sustaining (Maruts), with your strength, from heaven or (any other region), glorified by our hymns.

15. Glorifying them promptly, desiring not to bring (other) deities to (his) presence, let (the worshipper) associate his gifts with those wise (divinities) renowned for their velocity, and distributors (of rewards).

16. To me, inquiring of their kindred, the sage (Maruts) have uttered a reply: they have declared Prisni (to be their) mother; the mighty ones have declared the food-bestowing Rudra (to be their) father.

17. May the seven times seven all-potent (Maruts, aggregated as) a single troop,² bestow upon me hundreds (of cattle): may I possess wealth of cows, renowned upon the (banks of) the Yamuna:³ may I possess wealth of horses.

Sūkta IX. (LIII.)
The deities and Rishi as before; the metre varies; that of the first, fifth, tenth, eleventh, and fifteenth verses is Kakabh; of the sixth, seventh, ninth, thirteenth, and fourteenth is Sato-

¹ Mitram na may also be rendered ádityam īpa, like the sun.
² According to another text, there are seven troops of the Maruts, each consisting of seven, making up the usual number of forty-nine, suggesting, most probably, rather than suggested by, the absurd legend given in the Purānas, Vishnu Pur. 151.
³ Yamunāyam adhi iva tva rádhō gavyam is rather a remarkable passage, as if an allusion were intended to Gokula, the scene of Krishna's boyhood.
brihātī; of the eighth and twelfth Gāyatī; of the second Brihātī; of the third Anushtubh; and of the fourth Pratishṭāḥ.

1. Who knows the birth of these (Maruts)? who has formerly been (participant) of the enjoyments of the Maruts (by whom) the spotted deer are harnessed (to their chariots)?

2. Who has heard them, when standing in their cars, (declare) whither they go? upon what liberal worshipper do their kindred rains descend together with manifold food?

3. To me have they spoken; they who came to me with radiant steeds to (drink) the exhilarating beverage: to me (they have said), when beholding them, who are the formless leaders (of rites), and friends of man, repeat our praise.

4. (The praise of them) who are all self-irradiating, splendid in ornaments, in arms, in garlands, in breastplates, in bracelets, in chariots, in bows.

5. I contemplate your chariots, munificent Maruts, with delight, like wandering lights in the rains.

6. Leaders (of the rain), munificent givers, they cause that which is the treasury (of water) to fall from the sky for (the benefit of) the donor (of the offering): they let loose the rain cloud, and the shedders of rain spread (everywhere) with (abundant) water.

1 Arepasah, alepa, may mean intangible.
2 Khādishu: in a former passage khādi was interpreted hasta trānaka, a guard for the hand or arm, vol. ii. p. 156, verse 3: it is here rendered hastapādaśthita katarāh, rings for the hands or feet, bracelets or anklets.
7. The gliding (torrents), issuing (from the clouds), overspread the firmament with water, as milch-cows (yield milk), and like rapid horses let loose upon the road, the rivers rush in various directions.

8. Come, Maruts, from heaven, from the firmaments, or from this (earth); tarry not far off.

9. Let not the Rasá, the Anitabhá, the Kubhá, or the wide-roving ocean delay you: let not the watery Sarayu oppose you: may the happiness of your (approach) be ours.

10. I praise that brilliant company of the Maruts, who have your strength of recent chariots, you whom the rains attend.

11. Let us wait with sacred praises and holy rites upon your several strength, and separate troop, and individual company.

12. To what well-born and oblation-giving (worshipper) will the Maruts proceed to-day in this their car?

13. With the same (goodwill) that you bestow imperishable grain-seed upon a son, or grandson bestow it upon us, for we ask of you life-sustaining and auspicious wealth.

14. May we overcome our secret and reviling adversaries, having departed from iniquity by good deeds: may we possess, Maruts, through the rain (sent by you), unmixed happiness, water, cattle, and herbs.

15. Renowned (host of) Maruts, leaders (of rites), that mortal is favoured by the gods, and blessed with progeny, whom you protect: may we be such as he is.

16. Praise the givers of enjoyment, (the Maruts), at the sacrifice of this worshipper, (for they) delight in (pious praise), like cattle in fodder: wherefore call upon them as if upon old friends; praise them, desirous of praise, with a sacred hymn.

Sūkta X. (LIV.)
The deities and Rishi as before; the metre is Jāgati, in the fourteenth stanza Trishtubh.

1. Offer praise to the company of the Maruts, the self-irradiating, the precipitators of mountains: present liberal oblations to the assuagers of heat, to those who come from the sky, to whom solemn rites are familiar,¹ to the givers of abundant food.

2. Your (cohort), Maruts, is conspicuous, mighty, shedding water and augmenting food: yoking your horses (to your cars), spreading everywhere, and combined with the lightning, the triple-(stationed company) roars aloud, and the circumambient waters fall upon the earth.

3. The Maruts (appear) radiant with lightning, leaders (of the rain), armed with weapons of adamant, blazing with the wind, the precipitators of mountains, the repeated distributors of water, wielders of the

4. Powerful Rudras, you urge on the nights and days, the firmament and the worlds: agitators (of all things), you toss the clouds like ships (in the sea), so (you throw down) the strong places (of the enemy); but, Maruts, you do no harm.

5. Your prowess, Maruts, has spread wide your glory as the sun (sends afar his) radiance, or the white (horses of the gods travel far) in their course: of unbounded lustre, you clove the cloud withholding the waters.

6. Maruts, dispensers of rain, your strength is manifested when, shaking the water-laden cloud, you let loose the shower; conjointly propitiated, conduct us by an easy path leading to prosperity, as the eye (shows the way).

7. The sage, or the sovereign, whom you, Maruts, direct, is never overcome nor slain: he perishes not, nor suffers pain, nor undergoes injury, nor are his riches or his safety imperilled.

8. Lords of the Niyut steeds, overcomers of multitudes, leaders (of rites), radiant as the Adityas, are the dispensers of water: when sovereign lords, they fill the clouds, and, loud sounding, moisten the earth with sweet (watery) sustenance.

9. This wide-extended earth is for the Maruts;¹ the spacious heaven is for the spreading winds; the

10. Maruts of combined strength, leaders of the universe, guides of heaven, when the sun has risen you rejoice (in the Soma beverage), then your rapid steeds know no relaxation, but quickly you reach the limits of this road (to the sacrifice).

11. Lances (gleam); Maruts, upon your shoulders, anklets on your feet, golden cuirasses on your breasts, and pure (waters shine) in your chariots; lightnings blazing with fire glow in your hands, and golden tiaras are towering on your heads.²

12. Maruts, when moving, you agitate the heaven of unchecked radiance; and (stir) the bright water: when you combine your energies and are shining brilliantly, and when purposing to send down rain, you utter a loud shout.⁴

² Sipraṁ sirshasu vitatá hiranyayayih: sipra is explained ushnishamoyyah, composed of turbans or head-dresses.

³ Ruṣat pippalam, subhravarnam udaham, or it may be applied to naham, the heaven of bright water, the firmament.

⁴ The text changes the person of the verb, yat swaranti gho-sham, when they sound a noise; and this suggests to the scholiast to propose other explanations, as when they, the Asuras, make a fearful noise, or when the worshippers utter loud praises.

Varga XVI.
gent Maruts, become (proprietors) of wealth, comprising food bestowed by you: of wealth that vanishes not, as Tisyā (declines not) from the sky: therefore, Maruts, gratify us with infinite (riches).

14. You bestow, Maruts, wealth and enviable posterity; you protect the sage learned in the Sáma: you grant horses and food to (me) the ministrant priest; you render a prince prosperous.

15. Therefore do I solicit wealth of you, who are prompt to grant protection, whereby we may multiply our descendants, as the sun (spreads wide his rays): be propitiated, Maruts, by this my praise, by the efficacy whereof may we pass over a hundred winters.

Śúkta XI. (LV.)
The deities and Rishi as before; the metre of the last verse is Tristubh, of the rest Jagati.

Varga XVII.

1. The adorable Maruts, armed with bright lances and cuirassed with golden breastplates, enjoy vigorous existence: may the cars of the quick-moving (Maruts) arrive for our good.

2. Maruts, you have of yourselves maintained your vigour according as you judge (fit): you shine most mighty and vast, and you pervade the firmament with your power: may the cars of the quick-moving (Maruts) arrive for our good.

1 Tishya is said by Sáyana to be a synonyme of Aditya: in its ordinary acceptation it is the eighth lunar mansion: the appropriation is of some interest, as affording evidence of the existence of the astronomical divisions of the moon's path in the days of the Veda.

2 Sánavipram, sánmám vividham prarayitāram, the prompter or instigator, in various ways, of the Sáma hymns.
3. Born simultaneously, mighty, co-dispensers of moisture, they have grown exceedingly in glory: leaders (of rites), and radiant (are they) as the rays of the sun: may the cars of the quick-moving (Maruts) arrive for our good.

4. Your might, Maruts, is to be glorified: it is to be contemplated like the orb of the sun: sustain us ever in immortality: may the cars of the quick-moving (Maruts) arrive for our good.

5. You send (the rain), Maruts, from the firmament: charged with the waters you shower down the rain: destroyers of foes, your milch kine are never dry: may the cars of the quick-moving (Maruts) arrive for our good.

6. When you yoke your spotted mares to the poles (of your chariots), you lay aside your golden breastplates, for you dissipate all hostility: may the cars of the quick-moving (Maruts) arrive for our good.

7. Let not the mountains, let not the rivers, arrest you: whither you purpose, (Maruts), thither repair, and compass heaven and earth: may the cars of the quick-moving (Maruts) arrive for our good.

8. Whatever (rite has been addressed to you), Maruts, of old; whatever is recent; whatever (hymn) is recited, Vasus, whatever prayer is repeated, do you be cognizant of all: may the cars of the quick-moving (Maruts) arrive for our good.

9. Send us felicity, Maruts; harm us not: bestow upon us exceeding happiness: reward our adoration by your friendship: may the cars of the quick-moving (Maruts) arrive for our good.

10. Do you, Maruts, conduct us to opulence: propitiated by our praises, extricate us from sin: accept, adorable (Maruts), our offered oblation, and may we be the possessors of riches.

Sūkta XII. (LVI.)
The deities and Rishi as before; the third and eleventh verses are in the Satobrihatī, the rest in the Brihatī metre.

Varga XIX.

1. I invoke, Agni, the victorius company (of the Maruts) decorated with brilliant ornaments: (I invoke them), the people of the Maruts, to descend today from above the shining heaven.

2. In whatever manner thou honourest the (Maruts, Agni), in thy heart, may they come to me as benefactors: gratify, (by oblations), those fierce-looking Maruts, who most promptly come to thy invocations.

3. As the (people of the) earth having a powerful lord have recourse to him when oppressed (by others), so comes (the host of the Maruts) exulting to us: your company, Maruts, active as fire, is as difficult to be resisted as a formidable ox.

4. They who with ease destroy (their foes) by their prowess, like horses difficult to be restrained, they send down by their movements the vast and sounding water-laden cloud;

5. Rise up (Maruts): verily by my praises I infoke the mighty and unprecedented (troop) of these exalted (Maruts) like a heap of waters.¹

6. Yoke the bright steeds to the car; yoke the red steeds to the cars; yoke the swift pair of horses to bear the burthen; the strong bearing to bear the burthen.

7. And let not that horse, bright-shining, loud-neighing, of graceful form, who has been placed (in harness), delay you, Maruts, on your journey: urge him on in the car.

8. We invoke the food-laden chariot of the Maruts, in which Rodasi² stood with the Maruts, bearing the delicious (waters).

9. I invoke that, your cohort, gracing the chariot, brilliant and adorable, amidst which the rain-bestowing (goddess),³ of goodly origin, and auspicious, is worshipped together with the Maruts.

ANUVĀKA V.

SŪKTA I. (LVII.)

The deities and Rishi as before; the metre of the first six verses is Jagati, of the two last Triṣṭubh.

1. Rudras, servants of Indra, mutually kind, riding in golden cars, come to the accessible (sacrifice): this our praise is addressed to you: (come to us as you came) from heaven, (bringing) oozing water to the thirsty (Gotama), longing for moisture.⁴

¹ Gavām sargam iva may be also rendered, like a herd of cattle.
² The wife of Rudra, and mother of the Maruts.
³ Māhāṣā is considered to be another name of Rodasi, the wife of Midhvat, an appellation of Rudra.
⁴ The comparison is very elliptically intimated, and requires to be largely assisted by the comment: it is, literally, this our
2. Intelligent Maruts, you are armed with swords, with lances, with bows, with arrows, with quivers; you are well mounted and have handsome chariots: sons of Priṣni, you are well armed: come for our good.

3. You agitate the clouds in the sky: (you give) wealth to the donor (of oblations): through fear of your approach the forests bow down: sons of Priṣni, you incense the earth when, for the purpose of (sending) water, you, fierce (Maruts), yoke your spotted steeds.

4. The Maruts, radiant with light, purifiers of the rain, like twins of goodly aspect and graceful form, masters of tawny and of ruddy steeds, devoid of guile, thinners (of foes), and vast in magnitude as the sky.

5. Shedders of abundant showers, wearers of ornaments, munificent, of brilliant aspect, of inexhaustible wealth, well descended by birth, wearing golden breast-plates, entitled to adoration, (coming) from heaven, accept the ambrosial oblation.

6. Lances rest, 'Maruts, upon your shoulders; strength (of) foe-destroying power is seated in your arms: golden (tiaras) are on your heads, weapons are placed in your chariots, all glory is assembled in your limbs.

7. Maruts, bestow upon us affluence, comprehending cattle, horses, cars, treasure, and male descendants: sons of Rudra, grant us distinction: may I ever enjoy your divine protection.

Varga XXII.

Praise is addressed to you as to the thirsty, from heaven, rushing waters to the water-wishing: Śāyana explains it as alluding to the legend of the well brought by the Maruts to Gotama when suffering from thirst: see vol. r. p. 221.
8. Ho,

Maruts, leaders (of rites), be propitious to us, you who are infinitely opulent, immortal, shedders of rain, renowned for truth, wise, young, greatly glorified, and worshipped with copious oblations.¹

Sūkta II. (LVIII.)

The deities and Ṛishi as before; the metre is Tristubh.

1. I praise to-day that brilliant company of the adorable Maruts, lords of swift horses, who pass along in strength, who, self-radiant, preside over the ambrosial rain.

2. Adore, priest, the resplendent and powerful company, whose arms (are decorated) with bracelets, whose function is the agitation (of the trees), who are wise, and by whom wealth is conferred: they who are bestowers of felicity, whose greatness is unbounded: glorify the opulent leaders (of rites).

3. May the universal Maruts, who urge on the rain, come to you to-day laden with water: Maruts, who are wise and young, be pleased by this fire which is kindled for you.

4. Adorable Maruts, you cause (a son) to be born to the man (who worships you), a ruler, an overcomer of foes, and modelled by Vibhwan:² from you, Maruts, comes a valiant descendant, strong-fisted, mighty-armed: from you (he acquires) an excellent steed.

¹ Brihat ukhamánáh may also mean sprinkling much water, udakam sinchántah.

² Vibhwatashtam: vibwan is the second of the Ribbus, a skilful artist: fabricated by him, implies, according to the comment, very perfect or handsome, tena nirmittam atyartharúpa-vantuṁ.

2 A 2
5. Like the spokes of a wheel, none (of you) are inferior (to the rest), but equal as days (of like duration): the sons of Prišni are born all alike, none inferior in splendour: rapid in speed, the Maruts, of their own free favour, send down (the rains).

6. When, Maruts, you come with stout-axed cars drawn by spotted steeds, then the waters descend, the forests are damaged, and the bright showerer (of the rain), influenced by the solar rays, may emit a downward sound.¹

7. On their approach the earth becomes capable of fertility, and they deposit in her water as their germ, as the husband generates the embryo of the child: they have harnessed their horses fleet as the wind: the sons of Rudra have emitted their perspiration,² (the rain).

8. Ho, Maruts, leaders (of rites), be propitious to us, you who are infinitely opulent, immortal, shedders of rain, renowned for truth, wise, young, greatly glorified, and worshipped with copious oblations.³

Sūkta III. (LIX.)
Deities and Rishi as before; the metre is Jagati, except in the last verse, in which it is Tristubh.

Varga XXIV.

1. The priest⁴ glorifies you, Maruts, for the good

¹ Avosriyo vrishabhah krandatu dyauh: dyaur—vrishabhah, mean, it is said, the shining showerer, that is, Parjanya, or Indra, in that capacity, usryah, in connection with the usrí or rays of the sun, avakrandatu, avánmukham sabdayatu, may sound with his face turned downwards, vrishyartham, for the sake of rain.

² Swedam swedasthánityam varsham, rain in place of perspiration.

³ Repeated from the last verse of the preceding Sūkta.

⁴ Spat, nom. spat, for sprashtá, one who touches the oblation, or the fire, an unusual term for the Hotri.
of the donor of the oblation: offer worship to the shining (heaven): I bring offerings to the earth: they, the Maruts, scatter the rapid (rain); they traverse the firmament; they combine their own radiance with (that of) the clouds.

2. From their approach the earth trembles with fear, as a crowded boat goes quivering (through the water): visible from afar, they are recognised by their movements: the Maruts, leaders (of rites), pass between (heaven and earth) to the solemn sacrifice.

3. You bear, for your decoration, an excellent (diadem) like the horn of cattle: as the sun, the eye (of day, dispenses light), so (are you diligent) in the distribution of the rains: graceful are you, and rapid as horses, and, like (pious) mortals, you, leaders (of rites), consider (holy ceremonies) for their glory.

4. Who may exalt the great excellencies of you who are adorable? who may (offer you fitting) praises? who (glorify your) manly (deeds)? for you make the earth tremble like a ray (of light) when you confer the gift (of rain) for (the diffusion of) fertility.

5. Resplendent as steeds, of one kindred, they engage in combat like valiant heroes: like (prosperous) men, they, the leaders (of rites), have increased (in power), and cover the eye of the sun with showers.

6. None of them are older, none younger (than the others): the destroyers of (foes), none hold a middle (rank), but all excel in glory: honourable by birth, having Priśni for your mother, do you, Maruts, favourable to man, come from heaven to our presence.

7. Like birds (that fly) in rows they pass along in their strength above the vast summit (of the sky) to the ends of the firmament: their horses have caused the waters of the cloud to descend, as both\textsuperscript{1} (gods and mortals) know.

8. May the heaven and the earth yield (rain) for our sustenance: may the wonderfully bounteous dawns exert themselves (for our good): may these sons of Rudra, lauded, Rishi, (by thee), send down the celestial rain.

\textbf{Sūkta IV. (LX.)}

The deities are the \textit{Maruts}, especially as associated with Agni; the Rishi is as before; the metre of the seventh and eighth verses is \textit{Jagati}; of the rest \textit{Trishūtha}.

\textbf{Varga XXV.}

1. I adore the protecting Agni with hymns: may he, propitiated on this occasion, approve of our acts: I offer (worship with praises), intended to obtain food, as if (proceeding) with cars (to the goal), circumambulating (the fire): may I exalt the praise of the \textit{Maruts}.

2. Fierce \textit{Maruts}, sons of Rudra, who ride in easy chariots (drawn by) celebrated steeds, (at your coming) the woods bow down with fear, the earth trembles, and the mountains (shake).

3. The mountain, vast and lofty (though it be), is alarmed at your noise, and the summit of the firmament trembles when, lance-armed \textit{Maruts}, you are sporting: you rush along together like waters.

4. Like wealthy bridegrooms who have decorated their persons with golden (ornaments) and purifying waters, so the noble and powerful \textit{Maruts}, associated together in their chariots, have made great (pre-

5. They are brothers, of whom no one is the elder, no one the younger, but who grew up together for their mutual prosperity: may their father, Rudra, ever youthful, the doer of good deeds, and Prisni, (their mother), easy to be milked, grant favourable days for (the sake of) the Maruts.

6. Auspicious Maruts, whether you abide in the upper, the middle, or the lower heaven, (come), Rudras, to us from thence; and do thou, Agni, accept the oblation which this day we offer.

7. Maruts, who are omniscient, since you and Agni abide above the summits of the upper (region) of the sky, do you who cause (your enemies) to tremble, and are the consumers of (our) foes, do you, being pleased, bestow upon the sacrificer who offers you oblations desirable wealth.

8. Agni, drink the soma-juice, rejoicing, along with the Maruts, resplendent, adorable, associated in troops, purifying all, animating and long-lived: drink, Vaiśvānara, who art identified with the ancient emblem (of flame).

Śūkta V. (LXI.)

The deities are various: those of the first four, and the eleventh to the sixteenth verses are the Maruts; the several persons whose names occur in the other stanzas are considered to be their divinities; the Rishi is Stāvāśwa; the metre of the fifth stanza is Anushṭubh, of the ninth Satobṛihati, of the rest Gāyatrī: the occasion of the hymn, according to the scholiast, is a wonderful old story,¹ related by those learned in sacred lore: a priest of the family of Atri, named Archanánas, having been employed as Hotri by the Raja, Rathavíti, the son of Darbhya, saw at the ceremonial the daughter of the Raja, and, being pleased by her appearance, asked her as a wife for his son Štyáväswa: Rathavíti was disposed to assent, but thought it proper first to consult his queen, who objected to the match that Štyáväswa was not a Rishi, no maiden of their house having ever been given in marriage to a less saintly personage: to qualify himself, therefore, as a Rishi, Štyáväswa engaged in a course of rigorous austerity, and wandered about soliciting alms: among others, he begged alms of Saśivasa, the queen of Taranta Raja, who, conducting him to her husband, said, a Rishi has arrived: the Raja replied, treat him with reverence; and Saśivasa, with her husband's permission, gave him a herd of cattle and costly ornaments: the Raja also bestowed upon him whatever he asked for, and then sent him onwards to his younger brother, Purumśīha: on his way Štyáväswa met the Marûts, whom he hymned, and was by them acknowledged to be a Rishi; he was also made the Seer (drashtá) or author of Sūktas of the Veda: Rathavíti then, with the concurrence of his wife, gave him his daughter to wife: this hymn was composed in honour of the benefactors of the Rishi.

1. Who are you, most excellent leaders (of rites), who come one by one from a region exceedingly remote?

2. Where are your horses? where your reins? what is your capability? where are you going? the saddle is on the back (of the steeds), the bridle in their nostrils.

3. The goad is (applied) to their flanks: the drivers force them to spread their thighs apart, like women in bringing forth children.

4. Heroes, friendly to man, of honourable birth, you are as if blazing with fire.
5. She, Śaśiyasī, who has thrown her arms round the hero Taranta, who was eulogized by Śyāvāswa, has given me cattle comprising horses, and cows, and hundreds of sheep.

6. Śaśiyasī, though a female, is more excellent than a man who reverences not the gods, nor bestows wealth.

7. For she discerns one who suffers pain, one who is in want, or one desirous (of any thing), and directs her mind towards the gods.

8. And, eulogizing (him), I proclaim that the man, her (other) half is, (as it were), uncommended, for he is ever the same in munificent donations.

9. Young and affable, she has explained to me, Śyāvāswa, the road, and two ruddy horses have borne me to the valiant and renowned Purumītha.

10. Who, the son of Vidadaśwa, has given me a hundred (head) of cattle, and, like Taranta, many precious gifts.

11. Those (Maruts) who are brought hither by swift horses, drinking the inebriating juice, receive here glorification.

12. They by whose glory heaven and earth are surpassed; who shine splendid in their chariots like the radiant (sun) in the heaven above.

Sūkta VI. (LXII.)

The deities are Mitra and Varuna; the Rishi is Ārtha; the metre Trishtubh.

1. I have beheld the permanent orb of the sun, your (dwelling place), concealed by water, where (the hymns of the pious) liberate (his) steeds; where a thousand rays abide together; the one most excellent of the (embodied) forms of the gods.

2. Exceeding is that your greatness, Mitra and Varuna, whereby the ever-moving sun has, through (succeeding) days, milked forth the stationary waters: you augment all the (world-illumining) rays of the self-revolving (sun): the one chariot of you two (perpetually) goes round.

3. Royal Mitra and Varuna, you uphold, by your energies, earth and heaven: prompt benefactors, cause the plants to grow, give nourishment to the cattle, send down the rain.

4. May your easily-harnessed horses bear you both the Gomati river in Oude, which rises in the skirts of the first range of the Himalaya; or it may be a river of the same appellation more to the north-west, rising in Kulu, a feeder of the Beyah or Vyas.

2 Which are said to be attempted to be detained by a class of Asuras termed Mandheas.
3 Devánám sreshtham vapushám is also explained the best of the embodied or light-possessing deities, that is, of Agni and others, devánám vapushmatám tejoratám agnyādinām praṣādayam; or it may apply to the sun only, the mandala, the orb, the visible form, as it were, of the sun, mandalam hi vi riyasya vapusthantyam.
4 Vām okah pavir à vavarta: pavi is the circumference of a wheel, put by metonymy for the chariot; as Sāyana explains the phrase, yuvayar oho ratho anukramanena pariukramate.
(hither), and with well-guided reins come down: the embodied form of water follows you, the rivers flow as of old.

5. Augmenting the well-known and ample form (of man), in like manner as the sacred grass is preserved by prayer, do you, Mitra and Varuna, who are invigorated by (sacrificial) viands, and abound in food, ascend your car in the midst of the place of sacrifice.

6. Be open-handed and benignant to the performer of pious acts, whom you protect in the midst of the place of sacrifice; for you two, who are sovereigns, and free from wrath, uphold together a mansion of a thousand columns.

7. The substance (of their chariot) is of gold; its pillars are of iron, and it shines in the firmament like lightning: may we load the vehicle with the libation in an auspicious place, or in the sacrificial hall, (where the columns) are erected.

1 Šrutām amatim anuvardhad-urvim, which the scholiast interprets, visrutām sariradiptim anuvarddhayantau, augmenting the renowned bodily lustre, and separates urvim, tad vad urvim pāloyantau, but gives no equivalent for the word, which usually means great: the passage is obscure.

2 Garte mitrā āsāthe:garta, it is said here means ratha, a car: Nirukta, 3. 5, and as it recurs in verse 8, árohatho Varuna, Mitra, gartam.

3 Kshatram sahasrasthūnam, anekāvastambhakastambhopetam saudhādirūpam griham, a house, such as a palace and the like, possessing many supporting pillars: the expression is noticeable as indicating the existence of stately edifices: Sāyana purposes also to render kshatram by dhanam, wealth, or balam, strength, applying the last to the ratha, the strong chariot of the deities supported by innumerable columns.
8. At the break of dawn, at the rising of the sun, ascend, Mitra and Varuna, your golden-bodied, iron-pillared car, and thence behold the earth and its inhabitants.¹

9. Munificent Mitra and Varuna, protectors of the universe, (it is yours to grant) exceeding and perfect felicity, such as it is impossible to disturb: bless us with that (felicity), and may we ever be (possessed) of the riches we desire, and be confident of victory (over our enemies).

FOURTH ADHYĀYA.

SUKTA VII. (LXIII.)
The deities are Mitra and Varuna; the Rishi is Archanañas; the metre is Jagati.

1. Guardians of water, observers of truth, you ascend your car in the highest heaven: to him whom you,

¹ Atar-choksháthe aditim ditim cha, is explained, aditim, akhandantiyám bhúimim, the indivisible earth, and ditim, hhandantiyám prajádhákám, the divisible people and the rest: the stanza occurs in the Yajush, 10. 15, with a various reading of the first half; but Mahidhara explains aditim by adinam, not base, that is, vihitánushhátáram, one who follows what is prescribed, that is, performs his religious duties, and ditim by dínam, base, or nástihávríttam, an infidel; the phrase meaning that Mitra and Varuna observe that this man is a sinner, that man righteous, ayam pápi, ayam punyacán.
Mitra and Varuna, protect, the rain sends down the sweet (shower) from the sky.

2. Imperial rulers of this world, you shine, Mitra and Varuna, at this sacrifice, the beholders of heaven: we ask of you the wealth (that is) rain, and immortality, for your forms traverse earth and heaven.¹

3. Imperial and mighty showerers, lords of heaven and earth, beholders of the universe, you approach, Mitra and Varuna, with variegated clouds to hear the sound (of your praises), and cause the sky to (send down) rain by the power of the emitter of showers.²

4. Your device, Mitra and Varuna, is manifested in heaven, when the light (that is) the sun, your wonderful weapon, moves (in the firmament): him you invest in the sky with the cloud (and) with rain; and (thy) sweet drops, Parjanya, fall (at their desire).

5. The Maruts harness their easy-going chariot, Mitra and Varuna, for (the emission of) water, as a hero (harnesses his war-car): their forms traverse the different spheres to distribute the rain: do you, therefore, supreme rulers, shed upon us water from heaven.

6. The cloud, (through your will), Mitra and Varuna, utters a wonderful sound, indicative of radiance, and announcing (abundant) food: the Maruts thoroughly invest the clouds with (their) devices,

² Asurasya máyāyā is explained udaka niratisukh parjanyaṃ sāmarthyena, by the power of Parjanya, the caster-forth of water, influenced by Mitra and Varuna as the deities presiding over day and night.
and, (along with them), you two cause the purple and faultless sky to send down rain.

7. Sapient Mitra and Varuna, by your office you protect pious rites, through the power of the emitter of showers: you illumine the whole world with water: you sustain the sun, the adorable chariot in the sky.

SUKTA VIII. (LXIV.)

The deities and Rishi as before; the metre is Anushṭubh, except in the last verse, in which it is Pankti.

1. We invoke you, Mitra and Varuna, with this hymn; each the discomfiter of foes, the conductor to heaven, like (two herdsmen) driving, by (the strength of their) arms, the herds of cattle before them.

2. Do you two, with discriminating hand, bestow upon me, your worshipper, (what I desire); for the desirable felicity (that is given by you) spreads through all lands.

3. That I may now pursue the (right) direction, may I proceed by the path of Mitra, for all (good things) are aggregated in the happiness, (the gift) of that beloved and benignant (deity).

4. May I obtain from you, Mitra and Varuna, by my praise, such wealth as to excite envy in the dwellings of the rich and the devout.

5. Come, Mitra, (come), Varuna, with your splendour to our assembly, and augment (the prosperity) of the affluent (worshipper), and of (those who are) your friends in their respective abodes.

6. You, Mitra and Varuna, bring us strength and abundant (food) for (those praises) which (we offer):

---

1 See vol I. p. 230, verse 1.
be largely bountiful to us in food, in riches, in prosperity.

7. Deities who are to be worshipped at the sacrifice to the gods, at the (first) shining ray (of light) at dawn, behold my Soma libation poured out: hasten, with rapid steeds, leaders (of rites), propitious to Archananas.

Sūkta IX. (LXV.)
The deities are the same; the Rishi is Ratahavya; the metre is Anushtubh.

Varga IV.

1. He who knows (how to honour you two), amongst the gods, is the performer of good works: let him communicate (that knowledge) to us, he of whom the graceful Varuna or Mitra accepts the laudation.

2. They two, verily excelling in radiance, royal (deities), who hear (invocations) from the greatest distance, lords of the virtuous, favourers of the sacrifice, are in movement (for the good of) each individual man.

3. Approaching you, ancient (divinities), I invoke you together for protection: possessed of good steeds, (we praise you) who are provident to give us food.

4. Mitra grants even to the sinful (worshipper) the (means of) repairing to his spacious dwelling: the favour of Mitra, the destroyer of foes, is (granted) to (his) adorer.

5. May we ever be in the comprehensive guardianship of Mitra, and, free from sin, enjoy, (Mitra), thy protection, being at the same time the children of Varuna.

1 Hasthibaḥ padhibaḥ, literally, with hands, with feet, that is, according to the scholiast, with those having four feet, that is with horses.

2 Varunaśeṣasah: sesha is said to mean apatya, offspring.
6. You come, Mitra and Varuna, to this man, and guide him (to his desires): deny us not when we are rich (in offerings): (deny us not), who are (the sons) of Rishis: protect us in the presenting of the libation.

Sûkta X. (LXVI.)

The deities and Rishi as before; the metre is Anushtubh.

1. Man, endowed with intelligence, (adore) the two deities, the performers of good deeds, the destroyers of foes; offer (oblations) to the adorable accepter of (sacrificial) food, to Varuna, whose form is water.¹

2. Inasmuch as you two are possessed of irresistible and Asura-subduing strength, therefore has holy sacrifice been established amongst men, as the sun (has been placed) in the sky.

3. We glorify you both, that your chariots may precede ours by a long distance; accepting the pious worship of Råthahavya with (his) praises.

4. Now, adorable and wonderful deities, (propitiated) by the former (praises) of (me, your) worshipper, do you, who are of pure vigour, consider with approving minds (the adoration) of these men.

5. Earth, in thee is abundant water for the necessities of the Rishis: the two active (deities) dispense by their movements sufficiently copious (rain).

6. We and the devout (invoke) you, Mitra and Varuna, who are far-seeing: may we proceed to your spacious and much frequented kingdom.

Sukta XI. (LXVII.)

The deities and metre as before: the Rishi is Yajata.

Varga V.

1. Divine sons of Aditi, Mitra, Varuna, Aryaman, verily you are possessed, at the present time, of perfect, adorable, vast, exceeding strength.

2. When you come, Varuna and Mitra, to the delightful place of sacrifice, then, supporters of men, destroyers of foes, you bring felicity.

3. Mitra, Varuna, Aryaman, who are possessed of omniscience, are all associated at our rites, as if in (their respective) stations, and protect the worshipper from the malignant.

4. They verily are observers of truth, distributers of water, protectors of holy rites amongst men: guides in the right way, liberal donors, and benefactors even of the sinner (who worships them).¹

5. Which of you, Mitra and Varuna, has not been celebrated in (our) praise, for therefore do our thoughts tend towards you; the thoughts of the race of Atri tend towards you.

Sukta XII. (LXVIII.)

The deities and Rishi as before; the metre is Gayatri.

Varga VI.

1. Sing loud with lesty praise to Mitra and to Varuna: (come), mighty deities, to the great sacrifice.

2. The Mitra and Varuna, who are both sovereign rulers, originators of the rain, eminent deities among the gods.

¹ Anhaschit, papino api, even of the sinner: Sayaña adds swastotuh, of your own praiser, but it may be doubted if this qualification is necessary.
3. They two are able (to grant us) of great terrestrial and celestial riches: great is your might among the gods.

4. Rewarding with rain the holy rite, they favour the zealous worshipper:¹ benevolent deities, may you prosper.

5. Senders of rain from heaven, granters of desires, lords of sustenance, suited to the liberal donors (of oblations), they ascend their spacious car.²

Súkta XIII. (LXXIX.)

The deities are the same; the Rishi is Chákri; the metre Tristubh.

1. Mitra and Varuna, you uphold the three realms of light, the three heavens, the three regions (of the earth), augmenting the force of the vigorous (Indra),³ and protecting the imperishable rite.

2. Mitra and Varuna, the cows are full of milk through your (command), and the rivers yield through your (will) sweet water: through you the three

² All the verses of this Súkta occur in the Sáma-Veda, II. 493, 494, 495, and 818, 819.

³ Váyvidhânau amatim kṣatriyasya: amatim is usually rendered form, rúpa; kṣitriyasya the scholiast explains possessed of strength, kṣatram, balam, an attribute, and here an appellative of Indra; or it may mean, he says, the kṣatriya, or military caste.

2 b 2
radiant receptacles and showerers of rain stand severally in their three spheres.\(^1\)

3. I invoke the divine and bright \(\text{Aditi}\) at dawn, and at mid-day, when the sun is high: I worship you, \(\text{Mitra}\) and \(\text{Varuna}\), at all seasons, for the sake of riches, for sons and grandsons, for prosperity and happiness.\(^2\)

4. I worship you two, divine \(\text{Adityas}\), who are upholders of the celestial and terrestrial worlds: the immortal gods impair not, \(\text{Mitra}\) and \(\text{Varuna}\), your eternal works.

Súkta XIV. (LXX.)

The deities and \(\text{Rishi}\) as before; the metre is \(\text{Gâyatrî.}\)

1. May I, \(\text{Mitra}\) and \(\text{Varuna}\), enjoy your favour, through which there is assuredly protection.

2. Benignant (deities), may we obtain from you, (who are) such (deities), food for our sustenance: may we, \(\text{Rudras}\), be yours.

3. Protect us with your protections: preserve us with kind preservation: may we, with our descendants, overcome the \(\text{Dasyus}.\)\(^3\)

4. Workers of wondrous deeds, let us not depend upon the bounty of any other (than you), either in our persons, or with our sons and grandsons.

Súkta XV. (LXXI.)

The deities and metre as before; the \(\text{Rishi}\) is \(\text{Báhuvrikta.}\)

1. \(\text{Mitra}\) and \(\text{Varuna}\), scatterers of foes, destroyers of enemies, come to this our accessible sacrifice.

\(^1\) \(\text{Agni, Váyu, and Aditya, present, severally, upon the earth, in the mid-air, and in heaven.}\)

\(^2\) The text is \(\text{sam yoh},\) which is explained \(\text{arīkṭaṃ manāya, sukhasya mitranāya cha,}\) for the alleviation or prevention of calamity, and for the mixture or association of happiness.

\(^3\) \(\text{Sáma-Veda, ii. 335–337.}\)
2. Sagacious Mitra and Varuna you reign over all: bestow fulness, lords, upon our ancient rites.

3. Come, Mitra and Varuna, to our effused libation, to drink of the Soma of the offerer.

Sûkta XVI. (LXXII.)

The deities and Rishi as before; the metre is Ushtubh.

1. We invoke Mitra and Varuna with hymns, like (our progenitor) Atri: do you sit down upon the sacred grass to drink the Soma libation.

2. Steady are you in your functions, whom men animate by (their) devotion: come and sit down upon the sacred grass to drink the Soma libation.

3. May Mitra and Varuna accept with satisfaction our sacrifice: come and sit down upon the sacred grass to drink the Soma libation.

ANUVAKA VI.

Sûkta I. (LXXIII.)

The deities are the Aswins; the Rshi is Paura; the metre Anushtubh.

1. Whether, Aswins, you are at present far off, whether you are nigh, whether you are (straying) in many places, or whether you are in mid-air, do you, who partake of many offerings, come hither.

2. I approach you (to invite you) hither, you who are the encouragers of many; (who are) the achievers of many (great) exploits, most excellent and irresistible: I invoke you, who are most mighty, for protection.

3. You have arrested one luminous wheel of (your) car for illumining the form (of the sun), whilst with the other you traverse the spheres (to regulate) by your power the ages of mankind.

4. May the praise, universal (deities), wherewith I laud you, be agreeable to you, as offered by this (your worshipper); and do you, who are severally born, and free from blame bestow upon us food.

5. When Sūryā has ascended your ever easy-moving car, then bright-waving, resplendent rays (of light) encompass you.

6. Leaders (of rites), Atri recognised (your benevolence) with (a grateful) mind on account of the relief (you afforded him), when, Nāsātvas, through his praise of you, he found the (fiery) heat innocuous.

7. Your strong, lofty, moving, ever-progressing (car) has been renowned at sacrifices ever since; Āświns, leaders (of rites), Atri was rescued by your acts.

1 Irmā anyad vapushe vapus-chakram rathasya yemathuk: the passage is obscure, even with the aid of the scholiast: ḍrmā he renders, rūpam, form, vapushe, ādityasya sabhāyai, for the beauty or lustre of the sun; vapus, he considers equivalent to vapus-mat, having light or lustre, luminous, as an epithet of chakram: the fixing of one wheel of the car of the Āświns has been alluded to before: see vol. i. page 78, verse 19.

2 Nāhushā yugā is the derivative of nakusha, manushya, man; yugā for yugāni, is explained as used by metonymy for the divisions of time in general, as morning, noon, night, or the sacrifices offered at stated periods.

3 Pari vāṃ anushā vayo ghrīṇā varanta átapah may also be rendered, according to Sāyaṇa, the radiant horses, vayaḥ, aśvāḥ, ghrīṇā, bright, scorcher, átapah, of enemies, accompany you.

4 See vol. i. p. 280, verse 7, and p. 308, verse 8.
8. Mixers of the Soma-juice,\(^1\) Rudras, (our) nutritious (adoration) bedews you well with the libation, when you traverse (the limits) of the firmament, and the prepared viands (of the sacrifice) support you.

9. Truly have they called you, Aświns, the bestowers of felicity: such may you be when earnestly invoked to our sacrifice; bountiful bestowers of felicity at our sacrifice.

10. May these praises exalting the Aświns be productive of happiness, the praises that we fabricate as (a wheelwright) a car: we proclaim aloud fervent adoration.

Sókta II. (LXXIV.)

The deities, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Divine Adityas, affluent in praise, descended this day from heaven upon the earth,\(^2\) hear that (laudation) which, liberal showerers (of benefits), Ātri ever address to you.

2. The divine Nāṣatyas, where are they? where are they heard of in heaven? to what worshipper do you come? who may be the associate of your praises?

3. To whom do you proceed? to whom do you repair? to (go to) whose presence do you harness your car? by whose prayers are you gratified? we are anxious for your arrival.

4. Pauras, send to Paura\(^3\) the rain-shedding

5. You stripped off (his aged form) like a cuirass from the decrepit CHYAVANA, so that, when you had rendered him again a youth, he attracted the desires of women.²

6. A glorifier of you both is here: may we be (retained) in your sight for the sake of prosperity: hear to day (my invocation): come hither with your protections, you who are affluent in food.

7. Who among many mortals has this day (best) propitiated you? what wise man (has best propitiated you) who are reverenced by the wise? what (worshipper has best propitiated you) by sacrifice, you who are affluent in food?

8. May your car, AŚWINS, the swiftest of the cars (of the gods), come hither well-disposed towards us, the discomfiter of numerous (foes), glorified amongst men.³

applied, first to the AŚWINS, because they are in relation with Paurā as the author of the Sūkta; and although the text gives Paurā in the vocative singular, it is to be understood in the dual, Paurā, therefore, being AŚWINS: next it implies, as Paurāma, a cloud, from its being solicited by the Rishi for the fall of rain, as implied by the last term, Paurāya, to me the Rishi so called.

² See vol. i. p. 300. verse 10.

³ Aṅgūsāhā martyeshu, yajamaneshu, madhye stutyah, to be praised amongst worshippers, or Aṅgūsha may be a substantive meaning stava or stoma, praise, may the praise of the car of the
9. May our repeated adoration of you two, who are desirous of the libation, be productive of felicity: descending to our presence, and exceeding in wisdom, travel with rapid (steeds), swift as two falcons.

10. Aswins, wherever you may be, hear this invocation: the excellent sacrificial offerings, longing for your proximity, reach you.¹

Sūkta III. (LXXV.)

The deities as before; the Ṛishi is Āvastu; the metre is Pankti.

1. The Ṛishi, your worshipper, Aswins, graces your beloved chariot, the showerer (of benefits), the vehicle of wealth, with praises: masters of mystic lore, hear my invocation.²

2. Passing by (other worshippers), come, Aswins, hither, so that I may ever overcome all (adversaries): Dasras, riding in a golden chariot, distributors of wealth, propellers of rivers, masters of mystic lore, hear my invocation.

3. Come, Aswins, bring for us precious treasures:

Aswins amongst men, or by the priests, be beneficial to us, asmayuh.

² Mādhvī mama śrutam havam: the first is explained, madhuvidyā veditārau: see vol. i. p. 310, note: the verse occurs twice in the Sāma-Veda, i. 418, ii. 1093.
RUDRAS, riding in a golden chariot, propitiated (by sacrifice), affluent with food, masters of mystic lore, hear my invocation.¹

4. Showerers of wealth, the praise of your worshipper is addressed to your chariot; (to it), as well as to you, does this distinguished, devoted, embodied (adorer)² offer sacrificial food: masters of mystic lore, hear my invocation.

5. With mind attentive (to praise), riding in cars, swift-moving, listening to invocations, you hastened with your steeds to the single-purposed CHYAVANA: masters of mystic lore, hear my invocation.

6. AŚWINS, leaders (of rites), may your horses, harnessed at will, of wondrous beauty, and of rapid course, bring you hither with good gifts to drink (of the proffered beverage): masters of mystic lore, hear my invocation.

7. AŚWINS, come hither: NĀSATYAS, be not unpropitious: invincible lords, come from hidden (regions) to our sacrificial hall: master of mystic lore, hear my invocation.

8. Invincible AŚWINS, lords of water, favour AVASYU, glorifying you at this sacrifice: masters of mystic lore, hear my invocation.

9. The dawn has come: the AGNI of the season, blazing with the oblation,³ has been placed (upon the altar): showerers of wealth, subduers of foes, your immortal chariot has been harnessed: masters of mystic lore, hear my invocation.

Súkta IV. (LXXXVI.)

The deities are the same; the Rishi is Bhaumya; the metre Trishtubh.

1. Agni lights up the face of the dawns:¹ the devout praisers of the pious have risen up: therefore, Aświns, lords of the chariot, descending, come hither to-day to the splendid sacrifice, perfect (in all its parts).²

2. Harm not, Aświns, the perfected (rite), but coming now most quickly, be glorified on this occasion: be present at the opening of the day, with protection against destitution,³ and be prompt to bestow happiness upon the donor (of the offering).

3. Whether you come at the (milking time) of the cattle, at the dawn of day, at noon, when the sun is high, or by day or by night, (come)⁴ with felicitous

¹ Ābhāti agni-ushasām ániham: the latter is interpreted mukham, or the verse may be rendered, Agni, the face or beginning of the dawns, shines.

² Pīpipānśam gharmām achchha, that is, according to the scholiast, svāngaḥ parivṛddham pradīptam yajnam, to the bright sacrifice, vast or developed with all its members: or pīpipānśam may imply ápavāyitam, nourished, with the Soma-juice or with clarified butter: gharma, again, may also mean the vessel so called, or the Pravargya ceremony, at which it is used, being fed or nourished, pīpipānśam, with the butter and curds it contains.

³ Avasā āgamishṭā pratyavarttim: vartti, it is said, means jīvanam, living or livelihood; avartti, the contrary, the want of it.

⁴ The day is divisible into two, three, five, or fifteen parts:
protection: the drinking of the Soma has not now extended beyond the Aświns.¹

4. This station, Aświns, is your ancient abode; these are your mansions, this your dwelling: come from the vast firmament, (overspread) by clouds (filled) with water, bringing to us food and strength.

5. May we be united with the Aświns by their special protection, which is the source of happiness and guide to good: bestow upon us, immortals, wealth and posterity, and all good things.

Sūkta V. (LXXVII.)

Deities, Ṛishi, and metre as before.

1. Worship the two who come first (of the gods) at dawn: let them drink before the greedy withholders (of the offering); for the Aświns verily claim the morning sacrifice: the ancient sages praised them (at dawn).²

2. Worship the Aświns at early dawn; offer them here the five-fold distinction is alluded to: uditā sūryasya is explained the afternoon, atyanta pravriddhasamayah aparāhna ityartha.

¹ Nedāṁ pītir aświna tatāna: it is related that the other gods refused to admit the participation of the Aświns in the Soma libation at these hours, but on the present occasion they are not passed over: idām api itaradevānām pānam na tanotyaświnau vihāya, but now the drinking of the other gods does not extend, having omitted the two Aświns.

² Kavayah purvabhājah: kavi is said to mean one learned in the Vedas, on the authority of the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa, ye vā anúchānās-te kavayah, those who are anúchānas are kavis, and anúchāna is explained in the commentary on the same work, shadangamahita vedādhyayinah, students of the Vedas with the six supplements.
oblations: the evening is not for the gods;\(^1\) it is unacceptable to them; and whether it be any other than ourselves who worships them or propitiates them, the worshipper who is foremost\(^{'}\) (in his devotion) is the most approved of.

3. Your car, Aświns, approaches, coated with gold, honey-tinted, water-shedding, laden with ambrosia, as quick as thought, as rapid as the wind, wherewith you pass over all obstacles.

4. He who, in the appointment (of the offerings), presents to the Nāsatyas the most ample (share) of (the sacrificial) food, who gives (them) the largest portion of the viands, secures, by his acts, the welfare of his son, and ever has the advantage of those who light no sacred fires.

5. May we be united with the Aświns, by their special protection, which is the source of happiness, the guide to good: bestow upon us, immortals, wealth and all good things.

Sūkta VI. (LXXVIII.)

The deities as before; the Ṛishi is Saptavadhri; the metre of the three first stanzas is Uṣṇik, of the fourth Trishtubh, of the rest Anushtubh.

1. Aświns, come hither: Nāsatyas, be not ill-disposed; alight like two swans\(^2\) upon the effused libations.

2. Like two deer, Aświns, like two wild cattle\(^3\) on (fresh) pasture; like two swans alight upon the effused libation.

3. Āświni, affluent in food, be propitiated at your pleasure by the sacrifice: alight like two swans upon the effused libation.

4. Inasmuch as Atri, escaping by your aid from the fire of chaff, conciliates you, like a wife soliciting (the affection of a husband), therefore come with (your) propitious cars, with the new-born rapidity of the falcon.

5. Open, Vanaspati, like the womb of a parturient female: hear, Āświni, my invocation: set Saptavadhri free.

6. Āświni, by your devices sunder the wicker-work for (the liberation of the) terrified, imploring Rishi, Saptavadhri.

7. As the wind ruffles the lake on every side, so may thy womb be stimulated, and the conception of the months come forth.

8. As the wind, as the wood, as the ocean are

1 See vol. i. p. 308, verse 8: the fire is here called ribisam, tushāgnim, a fire of chaff.

2 Ancient chroniclers, purāvidah, says Śāyana, tell this story: the sons of the brothers of Saptavadhri being determined (it is not stated why) to prevent his having intercourse with his wife, shut him up every night in a large basket, which they locked and sealed, letting him out in the morning: in this dilemma the Rishi prayed to the Āświni, who came to his succour, and enabled him to get out of his cage during the night, he returning to it at day-break: in this stanza he first addresses the basket, petikā, as a form of Vanaspati, lord of forests, and then invokes the Āświni.
agitated, so do thou, gestation of ten months, invested with the uterine membranes, descend.

9. May the boy who has reposed for ten months in the bosom of his mother come forth, alive, unharmed, living, from a living (parent).

Súkta VII. (LXXIX.)
The deity is the Dawn; the Rishi Satyasravas; the metre is Pánkti.

1. Radiant Ushas, wake us up to-day for (the acquisition of) ample riches, in like manner as thou hast awakened us (of old): bright-born, and praised sincerely for (the gift of) horses, shew favour to Satyasravas, the son of Vayya.

2. Daughter of heaven, who hast dawned upon Sunítha, the son of Suchadratha, bright-born, and praised sincerely for (the gift of) horses, dawn upon the powerful son of Vayya, Satyasravas.

3. Daughter of heaven, who art the bringer of opulence, dawn upon us to-day, as, bright-born, and praised for (the gift of) horses, thou hast dawned upon the powerful Satyasravas, the son of Vayya.

4. The offerers of oblations who eulogise thee, lustrous Ushas, with sacred hymns, become prosperous with affluence, (through thy favour), bestower of

1 This verse, somewhat modified, occurs in the Yajush, 8.28.
2 This and the two stanzas preceding are termed by Sāyaṇa the garbhasrávinyupanishad, the liturgy of child-birth.
3 Sáma-Veda i. 421, 11. 1090; the concluding phrase is the burden of the following verses, sujāte, aśvasünrite: sujātā, well-born, is explained sobhanaprāduraḥ bhutā, becoming manifest with splendour or light: aśvasunritā, she whose praise for the sake of horses is affectionate and true, aśvárthā priyasatyātmikā stutivāg-yasyāh sā.
4 Sáma-Veda, 11. 1091, 1092. wealth, bright-born goddess, (who art) sincerely praised for (the gift of) horses.

5. These, thy assembled (worshippers), who stand before thee to distribute wealth, entertain towards us kindly intentions, offering unlimited riches:¹ bright-born goddess, (who art) sincerely praised for (the gift of) horses.

6. Affluent Ushas, bestow upon these (thy) devout adorers food and posterity, so that, being opulent, they may, without stint, bestow riches upon us: bright-born goddess (who art) sincerely praised for (the gift of) horses.

7. Affluent Ushas, bring wealth and abundant food to those who, liberal givers, bestow upon us riches with horses and cattle: bright-born goddess (who art) sincerely praised for (the gift of) horses.

8. Daughter of heaven, bring to us food and cattle, together with the pure rays of the sun, and the radiant flames (of the kindled fires): bright-born goddess, (who art) sincerely praised for (the gift of) horses.

¹ Yach chid hi te ganá ime chhadayanti maghattaye, parichid vashtayo dadhur dadato rádho ahrayam: Sáyana seems rather dubious as to the proper sense of several of these words: maghattaye may mean dhanadánáya or dhanavattwáya, for giving or for possessing wealth: pari chid vashtayo dadhuh is explained, asmán eva hámayamánah parito dhárayanti, desirous of or being kind to us, they support us every way, and dadato rádho ahrayam may mean giving wealth that is not to be wasted or taken away, or of which there is no need to be ashamed: the sum of the meaning, agreeably to the scholiast, is, all they who, offering oblations, worship the dawn, receive the reward for the benefit of us, or of me, that is, of the author of the hymn, ye tvaám havir-dadatal stuvanti te sarve api-asmadartham phalam dhárayanti.
9. Daughter of heaven, Dawn! delay not our (sacred) rite; let not the sun scorch thee with his ray, as (a prince punishes) a thief, or (subdues) an enemy: bright-born goddess, (who art) sincerely praised for (the gift of) horses.

10. Thou, Ushas, art able to give (us) whatever, indeed, (has been solicited), and much (that has not been asked for); for, radiant (divinity), who art dawning upon thine adorers, thou art never cruel (to them): bright-born goddess (who art) sincerely praised for (the gift of) horses.

SÓKTA VIII. (LXXX.)

The deity and Rishi as before; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. The wise priests celebrate with hymns the divine, bright-charioted, expanded Dawn; worshipped with holy worship, purple-tinted, radiant, leading on the sun.

2. The lovely Dawn, arousing man, goes before (the sun) preparing practicable paths, riding in a spacious chariot; vast, expanding everywhere, she diffuses light at the commencement of the days.

3. Harnessing the purple oxen to her car, unwearied she renders riches perpetual: a goddess, praised of many, and cherished by all, she shines, manifesting the paths that lead to good.

4. Lucidly white is she, occupying the two (regions, the upper and middle firmament), and manifesting her person from the east: she traverses the path of the sun as if knowing (his course), and harms not the quarters of the horizon.

5. Exhibiting her person like a well-attired female, she stands before our eyes, (gracefully) inclining like (a woman who has been) bathing: dispersing the hostile glooms, Ushas, the daughter of heaven, comes with radiance.

6. Ushas, the daughter of heaven, tending to the west, puts forth her beauty like a (well-dressed) woman, bestowing precious treasures upon the offerer of adoration: she, ever youthful, brings back the light as (she has done) of old.

Sūkta IX. (I.XXXI.)
The deity is Savitri; the Rishi Śyāvāśwa; the metre Jagati.

Varga XXIV.

1. The wise apply their minds; they perform sacred rites for the propitiation of the intelligent, great, adorable Savitri: he alone, knowing their functions, directs the priests: verily, great is the praise of the divine Savitri.¹

2. The wise Savitri comprehends all forms (in himself):² he has engendered what is good for biped and quadruped: the adorable Savitri has illumined

¹ The verse occurs in the Yajush, 5. 14., and is there somewhat differently explained; viprasya brihato vipaschitah, which Sāyana regards as epithets of Savitri, are connected by Mahidhara, with viprā, and are rendered the priests of the eminent and wise (instructor of the rite): again, in the second hemistich it is not clear whom the commentator understands by eko vayunāvid, the only one, knowing knowledge, although he possibly concurs with our scholiast in identifying Savitri with Brahma.

² Visvā rupāṇi pratimunchate, he liberates, severally, all forms: that is, according to Sāyana, átmani badhātī or dhārayati, he binds or holds in himself: Mahidhara, Yajur-Veda, 13. 3., explains it, he makes all forms manifest in their own substance, by removing darkness.
the heaven,\(^1\) and shines in sequence to the passage of the Dawn.

3. After the passage of which divine (being) the other deities proceed to (obtain) majesty with power; he who by his greatness has measured out the terrestrial regions, the divine Savitri, (is) resplendent.\(^2\)

4. Either thou traversest, Savitri, the three regions, or combinest with the rays of Súrya;\(^3\) or thou passest between the night on either hand; or thou, divine Savitri, art Mitra, through thy (benevolent) functions.

5. Thou alone rulest over (the actions of) living beings: thou art Púshan, divine (Savitri), by thy movements; thou art sovereign over the whole world: Śyávāśwa offers praise, Savitri, to thee.

Súkta X. (LXXXII.)
The deity and Ṛishi as before; the metre of the first verse is Anushṭubh, of the rest Ghyatrī.

1. We solicit of the divine Savitri enjoyable (wealth):\(^4\) may we receive from Bhaga that which is excellent, all-sustaining, destructive of foes.

\(^1\) Náham vyakhyat, svargam prakásayati, he makes manifest Swarga as the reward of the Yajamána.

\(^2\) Yajush, 11. 6. sa etasah savitri: Sáyana explains etasah by etavarṇah, subhrak, sobhamána, white-coloured, bright, shining: Mahídhara resolves it into etad, this, this world, and se, who reposes in, who pervades; or, as etas ordinarily means a horse, Nighantu, 1. 14., it may be intended to designate the sun under that form.

\(^3\) According to Sáyana, Savitri is especially the sun before rising; Súrya is the sun in general.

\(^4\) The text has bhogjanam, most usually food, but it is here explained bhogyam, to be enjoyed, that is, dhanam wealth.
2. Nothing impairs the sovereignty of this Savitri, which is most especially renowned and beloved.

3. That Savitri, who is Bhaga, bestows precious treasure on the donor of the offering: we solicit (of him) a valuable portion.

4. Grant us to-day, divine Savitri, affluence with progeny, and drive away evil dreams.

5. Remove from us, divine Savitri, all misfortunes: bestow upon us that which is good.

6. Let us be void of offence towards Aditi, according to the will of the divine Savitri: may we be possessed of all-desired (riches).

7. We glorify to-day with hymns Savitri, the protector of the good, the observer of truth, (identical with) all the gods;

8. The divine object of meditation, Savitri, who, ever vigilant, precedes both night and day,

9. Savitri, who proclaims his glory to all these living beings, and gives them life.

1 Sa Savitá Bhaga: or the latter may be an attributive, bhajaniya, to be worshipped, or shared, or desired.
2 Pará duhshwaptayam suva: Sáyána considers the second equivalent to dárídryam, poverty: the verse occurs in the Sáma-Veda, i. 141.
3 Bhadrám, progeny, cattle, dwelling, as by the text, prajá, vati, bhadrám, pañavo bhadrám, griham bhadrám iti.
4 Devasya savituh save: the last is explained by the scholiast anujñáyám satyáám, his will or assent existing: Aditi is said to mean here bhúmi, the earth.
5 Viśwadevám, as by the text, Tamak sarvátmaticád Indram, Mitram, Varuṇam, Agnim áhuk, they have verily called him Indra, &c., from his identity with all.
Sūkta XI. (LXXXIII.)

The deity is Parjanya; the Rishi Bhauma; the metre of the first six verses is Trishtubh, of the ninth Anushtubh, of the rest Jagati.

1. I address the mighty Parjanya who is present: praise him with these hymns; worship him with reverence, him who is the thunderer, the showerer, the bountiful, who impregnates the plants with rain.

2. He strikes down the trees, he destroys the Rákhasas, he terrifies the whole world by his mighty weapon: even the innocent man flies from the sender of rain, when Parjanya, thundering, slays the wicked.

3. As a charioteer, urging his horses with his whip, brings into view the messenger (of war), so Parjanya, (driving the clouds before him), makes manifest the messengers of the rain: the roaring of the lion-(like cloud) proclaims from afar that Parjanya overspreads the sky with rainy clouds.

4. The winds blow strong, the lightnings flash, the plants spring up, the firmament dissolves: earth becomes (fit) for all creatures when Parjanya fertilizes the soil with showers.

5. Do thou, Parjanya, through whose function the

---

1 Parjanya is Indra in his character of the sender of rain: Sāyaṇa cites Yāṣka, Nirukta, 10. 10., for various fanciful etymologies, as par, derived from tri, to satisfy, by reversing the final consonant of the latter, and rejecting its initial, janya may imply either victor, jeta, or generator, janyaitā, or impeller, prājñayita, of fluid, rasāntām; the usual Unādi derivation is quite as probable, which refers it to vṛsh, to rain, p being substituted for v, ri becoming the guṇa, ar, and sh being changed to f, anyā is the affix.

2 The text has only dātān, which the scholiast interprets bhatān, warriors.
earth is bowed down; through whose function hooved cattle thrive; through whose function plants assume all kinds of forms, grant us great felicity.

6. Send down for us, Maruts the rain from heaven: drops of the rainy charger descend: come down Parjanya, sprinkling water by this thundering (cloud); thou who art the sender of rain, our protector.

7. Cry aloud over (the earth); thunder; impregnate the plants; traverse (the sky) with thy water-laden chariot, draw open the tight-fastened, downward-turned water bag, and may the high and low places be made level.

8. Raise on high the mighty sheath (of rain), pour down (its contents); let the rivers flow unimpeded to the east; saturate with water both heaven and earth, and let there be abundant beverage for the kine.

9. When, Parjanya, sounding loud and thundering, thou destroyest the wicked (clouds), this whole (world) rejoices, and all that is upon the earth.

10. Thou hast rained: now check well the rain: thou hast made the deserts capable of being crossed: thou hast given birth to plans for (man's) enjoyment: verily thou hast obtained laudation from the people.

Sūkta XII. (LXXXIV.)
The deity is Prithivi; the Rishi Bhauma; the metre Anushīthānām.

1. Verily thou sustainest here, Prithivi, the fracture of the mountains: mighty and most excellent,

---

1 Vrishno anvasya: Sāyaṇa, however, explains the latter vyāpakaṇya, of the pervading rain.
2 Hansi duṣkhṛitah, the wicked, here means, according to the scholiast, the clouds not yielding their water.
3 According to Sāyaṇa, Prithivi may here admit a two-fold thou art she who delightest the earth by thy greatness.

2. Wanderer in various ways thy worshippers hymn thee with (sacred) songs; thee who, bright-hued, tossest the swollen (cloud) like a neighing horse.

3. Thou who, with solid earth, sustainest by thy strength the forest lords, when the showers of thy cloud fall from the shining sky.

Śūkta XIII. (LXXXV.)

The deity is Varuṇa; the Rishi Atri; the metre Trishtūbha.

1. Offer a solemn, profound, and acceptable prayer to the imperial and renowned Varuṇa, who has spread the firmament as a bed for the sun, as the immolator (spreads) the skin of the victim.

2. He has extended the firmament over the tops of the trees, has given strength to horses, milk to cows, determination to the heart: he has placed fire in the waters, the sun in heaven, the Soma-plant in the mountain.

3. Varuṇa has set free the (water of the) downward opening cloud for the (benefit of the) heaven, the earth, and the firmament; thence is he monarch meaning, and apply also to the antariksham, or firmament, when the subsequent phrases, parvatānāṁ khidram bibharasi, will mean, thou sustainest the fracture, or opening of the clouds, and mahā jinosi bhūmim, thou delightest the earth with great or abundant rain.

1 See vol. i. p. 62, note 8.

2 Either the lightning amidst the rain, or the submarine fire: the Yajush, 4. 31., reads vikshu for apsu, he placed in people, or human beings, digestive fire.

3 Somam adrau: the Soma creeper, Mahidhara observes, grows in the clefts of the stones of mountains, parvatānāṁ pāśhānasandhishu somavallyā utpādyamānatvāt.
of all the world, watering the soil as the rain bedews the barley.¹

4. Varuṇa waters earth, mid-air, and heaven, when he pleases (to send forth) the milk (of the cloud): thereupon the mountains clothe (their summits) with the rain-cloud, and the hero, (Maruts), exulting in their strength, compel (the clouds) to relax.

5. I proclaim this great device of the renowned Varuṇa, the destroyer of the Asuras, who, abiding in the mid-heaven, has meted the firmament by the sun, as if by a measure.

6. No one has counteracted the device of the most sagacious divinity, whereby the lucid water-shedding rivers do not fill the ocean with water.²

7. If, Varuṇa, we have ever committed an offence against a benefactor, a friend,³ a companion, a brother, a near neighbour, or Varuṇa, a dumb man⁴ remove it from us.

¹ Yavom na vrishtir, vyunatti bhūma: Śāyana is disposed to render vṛṣṭi by sehtā, the sprinkler, the man, pumān, who waters the soil, but this does not seem necessary, and it is not so explained in the Nīruka, 10. 4.
² But these wonderful acts, according to Śāyana, are not the acts of Varuṇa, but of Paramēṣvara, the Supreme Being, from his existing in the forms of Varuṇa and others, karma Paramēśvarasyāiva uchitam na Varunasya, tasya Varunādi-rūpavasthānāt.
³ Aryamān mitryam vā, according to Śāyana, are the same as Aryaman and Mitra, the final ya being pleonastic; the first he explains by dātṛi, a giver, or by guru, a spiritual preceptor.
⁴ Varunāraṇam vā: the Pada separates the word into Varuṇa and Aranam: the meaning of the latter is somewhat uncertain: Śāyana explains it as aṣadbham, not having sound or speech, or as adadāram, not giving, niggardly; but neither is quite satisfactory.
8. If, like gamsters, who cheat at play, (we commit offences) knowingly, or (those) of which we know not, do thou, divine Varuṇa, extricate us from them all, as if from loosened (bonds), so that we may be dear, Varuṇa, to thee.

Sukta XIV. (LXXXVI.)
The deities are Indra and Agni; the Rishi is Atri; the metre is Anushtubh, except in the last verse, in which it is Virāt-pūrva.

1. Indra and Agni, the mortal whom you both protect scatters the substantial treasures (of his enemies), as Trīta (confutes) the words (of his opponents).¹

2. We invoke the two, Indra and Agni, who are irresistible in conflicts, who are renowned in battles, who protect the five (classes of) men.²

3. Overpowering is the might of these two: the bright (lightning) is shining in the hands of Magha-van, as they go together in one chariot for the (recovery of the) cows, and the destruction of Vritra.

4. We invoke you both, Indra and Agni, for (sending) your chariots to the combat, lords of moveable wealth, all-knowing, most deserving of praise.

5. I adore you, irresistible deities, for (the sake of obtaining) horses: you who are increasing day by day

¹ Vāniy-iva Tritaḥ: the comment explains this, Trīta rishi pratīvādavākyāṇi prabhūntati, as the Rishi Trīta breaks or refutes controversial arguments; or Trīta may mean Agni, who, in the three regions, disregards or dissipates reproaches.

² Pancha charṣṇāṭik: this precludes all allusion to mythological beings.
like mortals, who are worthy of worship, like two \textit{Ádityas}.\footnote{\textit{Anseva}: \textit{ansa} is the name of one of the twelve \textit{Ádityas}, here put in the dual, \textit{ansa iva}, for any two.}

6. The invigorating oblation has been offered, like the \textit{Soma}-juice expressed by the sounding stones:\footnote{\textit{Ghritam na pútam adribhik}: mention of the stones restricts the sense of \textit{ghritam} to the \textit{Soma} effusion.} do you bestow food upon the pious; great riches upon those who praise you; bestow food also upon those who praise you.

\textbf{Súkta XV. (LXXXVII.)}

The deities are the \textit{Maruts}; the \textit{Rishi} is \textit{Evayámárun}, of the race of \textit{Atri}; the metre is \textit{Atítagati}.

1. May the voice-born praises of \textit{Evayámárun} reach you, \textit{Vishnú}, attended by the \textit{Maruts}:\footnote{\textit{Vishnavē Marutvate}: \textit{vishnavē} is considered by the scholiast as the adjective to the pervading, \textit{vyáptāya}, that is, \textit{Indra}, of whom \textit{Marutvat} is a usual designation: he admits, however, as an alternative, \textit{Vishnavē vá}, or to \textit{Vishnú}; also \textit{Sáma-Veda}, r. 462.} (may they reach) the strong, the adorable, the brilliantly-adorned, the vigorous, praise-loving, cloud-scattering, quick-moving company of the \textit{Maruts}.

2. \textit{Evayámárun} glorifies those who are manifested with the great (\textit{Indra}), who appear spontaneously and speedily with the knowledge (that the sacrifice is prepared): your strength in action, \textit{Maruts}, is not to be resisted, (though qualified) by (your) infinite liberality: you are immovable as mountains.

3. \textit{Evayámárun} glorifies with praise those who, (coming) brilliant and happy from the vast heaven, hear (his invocation); in whose dwelling there is no one able to disturb them, and who, like self-radiant fires, are the impellers of the rivers.

4. That wide-spread ing troop (of Maruts) has issued from a spacious common dwelling-place, (where) Eváyámárum (awaits them) when their car has been spontaneously harnessed with its rapid horses; and, emulous, vigorous, and conferring happiness, they sally forth.

5. Let not the sound (of your approach, Maruts), which is mighty, the announcer of rain, the shedder of light, diffusive, loud, alarm Eváyámárum: that sound wherewith, overcoming (your foes), you who are self-irradiating, lasting-rayed, ornamented with golden ornaments, self-weaponed, bestowing food, accomplish your functions.

6. Possessors of vast strength, may your unbounded greatness, your brilliant vigour, protect Eváyámárum; for you are regulators for overseeing (what is fit for) the limits of the sacrifice: preserve us from those who revile us, you, who are like blazing fires.

7. May those Rudras, the objects of worship, like resplendent fires, protect Eváyámárum: they, whose ethereal dwelling, extended and wide, has been made illustrious (by them), and of whom, exempt from blame, the mighty energies (are manifested) in their courses.

8. Maruts, devoid of enmity, come to our proffered praise, hear the invocation of your adorer, Eváyá-

1 Na yeshám iri sadhashe ishçe is explained by Sáyāna, Marutám swahíye niváse tishtatám preritá na ishçe na śate chalayitum, there is no impeller who has power to cause the movement of the Maruts when abiding in their own abode.

2 That is, the lightning, as associated with rain, may be considered as giving impulse to the rivers.
MARUT: do you, who are associated in the worship of VISHNU, drive away, as warriors (scatter their enemies), our secret foes.

9. Adorable MARUTS come to our sacrifice, so that it may be prosperous: hear, undeterred by Rákshasas, the invocation of EVAYÁMARUT: abiding like lofty mountains in mid-heaven, do you, who are profoundly wise, be ever intolerant of the reviler.

MANDALA VI.

ANUVÁKA I.

SUKTA I. (I.)

The deity is Agni; the Rishi is Bharadwája, son of Brihaspati, who is the Rishi of nearly the entire Mandala; the metre is Trishtubh.

VARGA XXXIV.

1. Thou, Agni, art the first of the gods; a deity

1 Indra, it is said, is here again meant.

2 This Sukta is more than ordinarily obscure, abounding in unusual words, and unconnected and ungrammatical constructions: thus the name of the Rishi, Evayámard, remains unaltered in its case termination, whatever may be its syntactical connection with the rest of the sentence: this possibly has led Professor Benfey to regard it as an epithet of the Maruts in the vocative singular, and to translate it sturmvoll Marut, but this would not get quit of the grammatical incompatibility, as the Maruts are always designated in the plural, except when spoken of as a gana, a troop or company; moreover, there is no authority for giving to Evayá the sense of stormy: Sáyaná is sufficiently to whom their minds are devoted;\textsuperscript{1} pleasing of aspect, thou art the invoker of the deities at this rite: showerer (of benefits), bestow upon us unsurpassable strength, wherewith to sustain all (hostile) prowess.

2. Offerer of the oblation, frequent celebrator of sacrifice, now sit down on the foot-mark of Iśā, accepting the (sacrificial) food, and being glorified: devout men, expectant of great riches, have recourse to thee as to the first (of the gods).

3. Those who are assiduous in (worshipping) thee for riches follow thee, going with many Vāsus by the path (of the firmament); thee, the radiant Agni, of goodly aspect, mighty, fed with burnt-offerings, and blazing every day.

4. Men desirous of food obtain abundance unopposed when repairing to the station of the divinity with oblations; and when delighting, Agni, in thy auspicious presence, they repeat those thy names which are to be uttered at sacrifices.\textsuperscript{2} explicit, and he only follows the Anuvrata, Sūktam Evayāmarudākhyasya ātreyasya muneraśrāham, the Sūktas has for its Rishi the muni of the race of Atri, who is named Evayā-marut.

\textsuperscript{1} Twam hi Agne prathamo manotā: the last word is interpreted devānām mano yatrotam, sambaddham, where, or on whom, the mind of the gods is attached; or, as more fully explained in the scholia on the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa, on this and other texts which occur, ii. 10. 1.; devānām manānās ātāni driḍhapravīśhitāni yasyām devātāyām sa manotā, the divinity on whom the minds of the gods are fastened, that is, firmly concentrated, he is called Manotā.

\textsuperscript{2} Nāmānī chid dadvhre yajnīyāni, that is, such appellations as Jātavedas, Vaiśvānara, and the like; or nāmānī, it is said, may mean hymns, the materials or means of adoration, stotrāni namanasādhanāni.
5. Men exalt thee upon earth: they exalt thee for both kinds of affluence, (cattle and treasure, which thou bestowest upon) men:¹ thou who extricatest (us from evil) art to be known as our preserver, as the unfailling father and mother of mankind.

6. Agni, who is adorable, affectionate, the offerer of oblations amongst men, the giver of delight, the celebrator of worship, has sat down (upon the altar): let us approach thee, kindled in our dwellings, on bended knees, with praise.

7. Intelligent, hoping for happiness, and devout, we glorify thee, adorable Agni: do thou, shining with exceeding lustre, lead men to heaven.

8. (We glorify) the lord of men,² of ever-existing men; the wise, the destroyer (of foes), the showerer (of benefits) on mankind, the moving, the bestower of food, the purifier, the resplendent, Agni, who is worshipped for (the sake of) riches.

9. The man, Agni, who worships thee, who praises thee, who offers oblations to thee with kindled fuel, who presents burnt-offerings to thee with prostrations, he verily, protected by thee, obtains all desired wealth.

10. To thee, mighty Agni, we offer exceeding adoration with prostrations, with fuel, with oblations: (we glorify thee) on the altar, son of strength, with hymns and with prayers: may we be successful in our efforts (to gain) thy auspicious favour.

¹ Janánám may also mean, for the gift of men, that is, of male posterity.

² Vyápatin visám saṃvatinám: the epithet is explained nityá-nám, rítiśyajamánalakshanánám, constant, characterizing priests and their employers, implying, perhaps, their regular and perpetual observance of religious institutes.
11. Do thou, Agni, who hast spread heaven and earth with light, who art the preserver (of man), and (who art) to be glorified with praises, shine brightly upon us with abundant food, and with substantial riches.

12. Possessor of wealth, bestow upon us at all times opulence conjoined with dependants, and (grant) abundance of cattle to our sons and grandsons: may there be to us abundant food, satisfying our wishes, and free from blame; and may there be auspicious and reputable (means of subsistence).

13. Royal Agni, may I obtain from thee thy many and various treasures whereby to be enriched; for, Agni, who art the desired of multitudes, infinite are the riches (aggregated) in thee, fit, monarch, for thy worshipper.

FIFTH ADHYÁYA.

SÚKTA II. (II.)

The deity is Agni; the Rishi is Bharadwája; the metre is Anushíubh, except in the last verse, in which it is Šakvarti.

1. Thou alighest, Agni, like Mitra, upon the oblation offered with the dry fuel: therefore, beholder of all, possessor of riches, thou cherishest us with food and nourishment.

2. Men verily worship thee with sacrifice and with praises: the inoffensive sun, the sender of rain, the beholder of the universe, proceeds to thee.¹

¹ The sun, it is said, at the evening enters into fire, whence it is that the latter is visible throughout the night: the term
3. The offerers of praise, sympathizing in satisfaction, kindle thee the banner of the sacrifice, when man, the descendant of Manu, desiring happiness, invokes thee to the rite.

4. May the mortal prosper who propitiates thee, (his) benefactor, by holy rites: through the protection of thee who art resplendent, he overcomes those who hate him, as if they were mortal sins.¹

5. The mortal who feeds thy consecrated burnt-offering with fuel enjoys, Agni, a dwelling peopled with descendants, and a life of a hundred years.

6. The pure smoke of thee the resplendent spreads through the firmament, matures (in clouds), and thou, the purifier, shinest with radiance like the sun, when propitiated by praise.²

7. Thou art now to be praised amongst the people, for sun, in the text, is vājin, he who goes swiftly, and it is an appellative also of fire and wind, as by another text, agnir-vāyuḥ vāyas te vai vājinak, fire, wind, the sun, they verily are vājins.

¹ Sāma-Veda, i. 365, but the reading of the first line is a little different.

² Dyutá tvam kripá ruchase, thou shinest with light by praise; kripá is of rather doubtful import: it occurs subsequently in the unmistakeable sense of déptyá, with lustre, as if the word was properly in the nominative krip; Sāyana here explains it by śutyá, by praise, metaphorically, or literally, by that which is able to compel the presence of a deity, abhimukhikaraṇa sāmarthyā: it occurs in a passage quoted in the Nirukta, 6. 8., where it has apparently the sense of praise; but there is no explanation beyond its derivation from krip, to be able or capable: Mahādhara, Yajush, 17. 10., explains kripá, sāmarthyena, déptyá vā, by ability, power, or by lustre.
for thou art our well beloved guest, venerated like an elder in a city, and to be cherished like a son.

8. Thou art manifested in the timber, Agni, by the act of attrition: thou art the bearer (of the oblation), as a horse (is of his rider): thou art like the circumambient wind: thou art food and dwelling: thou art like a (new-born) babe, and variable (in movement) as a horse.

9. Thou consumest, Agni, the unfallen (trees) as an animal (feeds) upon pasture, when, undecaying deity, the flames of thee who art resplendent shear the forests.

10. Thou enterest as the ministrant priest into the habitations of men who wish to perform sacrifice: render them prosperous, benefactor of mankind: be propitiated, Angiras, by the oblation.

11. Divine Agni, reverenced as a friend, who art abiding in heaven and earth, communicate our praise to the gods: conduct the offerer of adoration to domestic felicity; and may we overcome our adversaries, our iniquities, our difficulties: may we overcome those (sins

Sūkta III. (III.)

The deity and Rishi as before; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. The offerer of sacrifice, born for religious rites, who lives devoted, Agni, to thee, obtains abundant light, and is a man whom thou, sympathizing in satisfaction with Mitra and Varuna, protectest by thy shield from iniquity.

2. He who has presented (oblations) to Agni, the possessor of desired (wealth), sacrifices with (all) sacrifices, and is sanctified by (all) holy acts: him, the want of excellent (posterity) does not afflict, nor does sin or pride affect such a mortal.

3. When the fearful flames of thee, whose appearance is (as) faultless as (that of) the sun, spread on every side as (if they were) the lowing heifers of the night; then this Agni, the asylum of all, generated in the woods, is everywhere beautiful.

4. Sharp is his path, and his vast body shines like a horse champing fodder with his mouth, darting forth his tongue like a hatchet, and burning timber to ashes, like a goldsmith who fuses (metal).

2 Heshanwatah surudho na ayam ahtoh kutrachid ránvah, is not very intelligible: according to Sáyana, surudháh means obstructors, or removers of sorrow, i.e. cows, sokaśya rodhayitrír gáh; ahtu, night, he considers put for night-walkers, Rúksasas rákshasaidehswabhú tádáti; she, night, gives them their properties, is understood; ránvah is an epithet of ayam, this, Agni, ramaníya, agreeable, beautiful.

6. Like the adorable sun, he clothes himself with brilliant (rays): diffusing friendly light, he crackles with (his flame): (he it is) who is luminous by night, and who lights men (to their work) by day; who is immortal and radiant; who lights men by day.

7. Of whom a sound is heard when scattering his rays like (that) of the sun: the brilliant showerer (of benefits) clamours among the (burning) plants: he who, moving not with a shifting, variable motion, but, humbling (our foes), fills the well-wedded earth and heaven with wealth.

8. He who (goes) with sacred (rays), as if with self-harnessed, well-governed (steeds), who shines like lightning with his own scorching (flames), who immelter causes to melt, he burns the timber; or, as Sāyāna explains it, yathā swarnakāraḥ swarnādiḥkam drāvayati tathāgnir vanam bhasmasāt karoṭi, as a goldsmith fuses gold and the rest, so Agni reduces the wood to ashes: perhaps something more than simple fusion of metals is implied: the alchemical calcining or permutation of them would be more analogous to the burning of timber, or its reduction to ashes.

Súkta IV. (IV.)
The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

Varga V.

1. Son of strength, invoker (of the gods), in like manner as at the worship of the gods by Manu thou didst offer worship with sacrifices, so now, Agni, with willing mind, worship for us the assenting deities, regarding them as thy equals.

2. May that Agni, who, like the illuminator of the day, is resplendent and cognisable (by all), grant us commendable food; he who is the life of all, immortal, who knows all that exists, who is our guest, waking amongst men at dawn.

3. Whose great deeds his worshippers now celebrate, who is clothed with light, radiant as the sun, exempt from decay, the purifier, he illumines (all things), and destroys the ancient cities of the dispersed (evil beings).²

4. Son of strength, thou art to be praised: Agni, sitting upon the (sacrificial) viands, has given (to his worshippers), from their birth, habitation and food: giver of strength, bestow strength upon us: triumph like a prince, so that thou mayest abide in our unassailed (dwelling).

5. He who whets his (gloom)-dispersing (radiance), who eats the (offered) oblation, a sovereign like Vāyu, overcomes the nights: may we prevail (over him) who is not a donor of the oblations that are due, (Agni), to thee, and do thou, (swift) as a horse, be the destroyer of the foes assailing (us).

6. Thou overspreadest, Agni, heaven and earth with radiance, like the sun with his lustrous rays: the wonderful Agni disperses the glooms like the adored (sun) moving on his path, imbued with light.

7. We celebrate thee, who art most adorable, with sacred praises:\(^1\) hear, Agni, our laudation: the leaders (of rites) earnestly honour thee with offerings, thee who art divine like Indra, and like Vayu in strength.

8. Quickly conduct us, Agni, by unmolested paths, to riches and prosperity: (convey us) beyond sin: those delights which thou givest to thine adorers (extend) to him who (now) glorifies thee, and may we, living for a hundred winters, and blessed with excellent posterity, be happy.

SUKTA V. (V.)

The Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. I invoke thee, Agni, the son of strength, the youthful, the irreproachable, the very young; thee who art wise, the sought of many, the merciful, who bestowest treasures acceptable to all.

2. Bright-blazing Agni, invoker of the gods, to thee the adorable deities' have appropriated, by night and day, the riches (of the oblation): they have deposited in the purifier (Agni) all good things, as they have placed all beings upon earth.

3. Thou abidest from of old in these people, and by thy deeds hast been (to them) the conveyer of good things; thence, sage Jātavedas, thou bestowest continually wealth upon the sacrificer.

4. Do thou, protector of (thy) friends, who art most resplendent, blazing with radiance, consume with thine own imperishable flames him who injures us abiding in secret, or when near to us designs us harm.

5. He who propitiates thee, son of strength, with sacrifice, with fuel, with prayers, with praises, shines immortal amongst men, eminent in wisdom and possessed of splendid opulence and (abundant) food.

6. Accomplish quickly, Agni, that for which thou art solicited: endowed with strength, oppose by strength our adversaries: be pleased, thou who art anointed with radiance, by the loud vociferation of thy worshipper, by whom thou art adored with hymns.

7. May we obtain through thy protection, Agni, that which we desire: giver of riches, may we obtain of thee riches and descendants: desiring food, may we obtain food: may we obtain, imperishable Agni, imperishable fame (through thee).

1 Yajniyāsah, yajnārkhah, entitled to sacrifices, an appellative ordinarily applied to the devas; but here the scholiast would render it yajamānah, the sacrificers, a sense obviously incompatible with what follows.
2 Yajur-Veda, 18. 74.
Sūkta VI. (VI.)

The deity, Ṛishi, and metre as before.

1. He who is desirous of food has recourse with a new sacrifice, approachable son of strength, (Agni), to thee, the consumer of forests, the dark-pathed, the bright-shining, the ministrant (to the gods) of (sacrifical) food, the divine;

2. (Thee who art) white-hued, vociferous, abiding in the firmament, (associated) with the imperishable, resounding (winds), the youngest (of the gods), Agni, who, purifying and most vast, proceeds, feeding upon numerous and substantial (forests).

3. Pure Agni, thy bright flames, fanned by the wind, spread wide in every direction, consuming abundant (fuel); divine, fresh-rising, they play upon the woods, enveloping them in lustre.

4. Resplendent Agni, thy bright rays, horses let loose (from the rein), shear the earth;¹ thy (band of flame), mounting above the high-lands of the many-tinted (earth),² blazes fiercely.

5. The flame of the showerer, (Agni), repeatedly descends like the hurled thunderbolt of the rescuer of the cattle: like the prowess of a hero is the destroying (energy) of Agni: irresistible and fearful, he consumes the forests.

6. Thou overspreadest the accessible places of the

7. Wonderful Agni, of wonderful strength, bestower of delight, grant to us, and to him who praises thee with gratifying (praises), wonderful, most wonderful riches, conferring fame, supplying food, comprehending male descendants, delectable and infinite.¹

Súkta VII. (VII.)

Agni as Vaiśvánara is the deity; the Rishi is as before; the metre of the two last stanzas is Jagati, of the rest Tristubh.

Varga IX.

1. The gods have generated Vaiśvánara,² Agni, as the brow of heaven, the unceasing pervader of earth, born for (the celebration of) sacrifice, wise, imperial, the guest of men, in whose mouth (is) the vessel (that conveys the oblation to the gods).³

2. (The worshippers) glorify together, (Agni), the bond of sacrifices,⁴ the abode of riches, the great

² Devā may also be applied to the priests who generate Agni by attrition: Vaiśvánara is variously explained, but it most usually implies, what or who belongs to, or is beneficial to, all (visva) men (narah).

³ Sáma-Veda, 1. 67, 11. 490; Yajur-Veda, 7. 24.: Mahídhara's explanation is to the same effect as Śāyaṇa's, only more full.

receptacle of burnt-offerings: the gods generate Vaisñava, the conveyer of oblations, the emblem of sacrifice.\(^1\)

3. The offerer of (sacrificial) food becomes wise, Agni, from thee: from thee heroes become the vanquishers of foes: therefore do thou, royal Vaisñava, bestow upon us enviable riches.

4. All the worshippers together praise thee, immortal Agni, when born like an infant: when thou shinest, Vaisñava, between the parental (heaven and earth), they obtain immortality through thy (sacred) rites.

5. Agni, Vaisñava, these thy mighty deeds no one can resist: when born on the lap of thy parents,\(^2\) thou hast stationed the banner of the days on the paths of the firmament.

6. The summits of the firmament are measured by the light of Vaisñava, the manifester of ambrosial (rain): all the regions are overspread (by the vapour) on his brow,\(^3\) and the seven gliding (streams) spring from thence like branches.

7. Vaisñava, the performer of sacred acts, is he who made the regions; foreseeing (he has made) the luminaries of heaven, and has spread throughout all worlds; the irresistible guardian (of all), the protector of ambrosial (rain).

1 Sama-Veda, 11. 492.
2 That is, according to the scholiast, in the antariksha, or firmament.
3 This idea has occurred before: the smoke that rises from sacrificial fires becomes clouds in the atmosphere, whence rain falls and rivers are filled.
Súkta VIII. (VIII.)

The deity and Rishi as before; the metre of the last verse is Trishtubh, of the rest Jagatt.

Varga X.

1. I commemorate promptly at the holy ceremony the might of the all-pervading JátaVedas, the showerer, the radiant: new, pure, and graceful praise issues (from me), like the Soma-juice (from the filter), to Agni Vaiśwánara.

2. That Agni who, as soon as born in the highest heaven, the protector of sacred rites, protects the pious acts (of men), he has made the manifold firmament: Vaiśwánara, the performer of good deeds, has attained heaven by his greatness.

3. The friend (of all), the wonderful (Agni), has upheld heaven and earth: he has hidden darkness within light: he has spread out the two sustaining (worlds, heaven and earth), like two skins: Vaiśwánara comprehends all (creative) energy.

4. The mighty Maruts have seized upon him on the lap of the waters (in the firmament), and men have acknowledged him as their adorable sovereign: Márta-ríswan, the messenger of the gods, has brought Agni Vaiśwánara (hither) from the distant (sphere of the) sun.

5. To those, Agni, who repeat new (praises) to thee, the object of their worship from age to age, grant riches and famous (posterity): strike down, undecaying sovereign, the sinner with thy blaze like the thunderbolt, as if he were a tree.

6. Grant, Agni, to us who are affluent in (offerings), wealth that cannot be taken away, that is exempt from decay, and that comprehends excellent male descendants: may we obtain, Agni Vaiśwánara, hundreds and thousands of viands through thy protection.

7. Adored Agni, present in the three worlds, protect thy worshippers with thine irresistible protections, preserve the strength of us who offer (oblations): glorified (by us), Agni Vaiśwānara, transport us (beyond evil).

Sūkta IX. (IX.)

Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. The dark day and the light day revolve alternate, affecting (the world) by their recognisable properties: Agni Vaiśwānara, manifested like a prince, dispels darkness by his lustre.

2. I understand not the threads (of the warp), nor the threads of the woof, nor that (cloth) which those who are assiduous in united exertion weave: of what (man) may the son declare the words that are to be spoken in the next world, (instructed) by a father abiding below.¹

¹ The first half of the stanza reads nāham tantum na vijānā-my-otum, na yam voyantī samāre atamādāh, and implies, according to those who know tradition, sampraddāyavidah, says Sāyana, a figurative allusion to the mysteries of sacrifice: the threads of the warp, tantu, are the metres of the Vedas, those of the woof, otu, the liturgic prayers and ceremonial, the combination of which two is the cloth, or sacrifice: the ātmavidah, or, Vedāntis, understand it as alluding to the mysteries of creation, the threads of the warp being the subtile elements, those of the woof the gross, and their combination the universe: either interpretation is sufficiently intelligible, but the former harmonizes best with the character of the Veda: it is less easy to give intelligibility to the second half, kasya svit putra iha vahyavāni, para vaddāti avareṇa pitrā, and the scholiast does not materially help us: of whom (may) the son (say) in this world the words that are to be said, (which) the subsequent (may say) by the
3. He verily knows the threads of the warp and of the woof, he speaks in due season what is to be said, who comprehends all this (universe); who is the protector of ambrosial water, sojourning both above and below, and contemplating (the world) under a different (manifestation).

4. This Vaiśwānara is the first offerer of burnt-offerings: behold him: this is the light immortal amongst mortals: he has been born in a bodily shape, immovable, all-pervading, immortal, ever increasing.

5. A steady light, swifter than thought, stationed among moving beings to shew (the way) to happiness.

father being after or below, is, with a little assistance, the literal translation: Sāyana explains putra by manushya, a man, vak-tvānī by vaktavyāni, para by parastāt, or amushmin loke vart-tamāno yah sāryah, the sun who is abiding in the other or future world, he being instructed, anusishtah sun, by the father abiding below, or in this world, pitrā avastāt asmin loke vart-tamāsena, that is, by Agni Vaiśwānara, vaiśwānarāynina, as it is elsewhere said, vaiśwānarasya putro asau parastād-divi ya sthitah, he is the son of Vaiśwānara, who is stationed above, or in heaven: all that may be intended is, that no human being can explain the mysteries of sacrifice, although the sun may be able to do so, having been instructed in them by Agni, his parent or source, the sun being no more than the Agni of heaven: as regards the mysteries of creation, Sāyana explains the passage, no man, however taught by a father born after creation, can rightly know any thing previous to his birth, either in this world or the next.

1 Or as the sun, whilst upon earth Agni or Vaiśwānara is manifest as fire.

2 According to the Vedānti view of the text, the light is Brahma, seated spontaneously in the heart as the means of true knowledge, to which all the senses, together with the mind and consciousness, refer, as to the one cause of creation, or Pāramātma, supreme spirit.
all the gods being of one mind, and of like wisdom, proceed respectfully to the presence of the one (chief) agent, (Vaiśvānara).

6. Mine ears are turned (to hear him), mine eyes (to behold him); this light that is placed in the heart (seeks to know him); my mind, the receptacle of distant (objects), hastens (towards him): what shall I declare (him)? how shall I comprehend him?

7. All the gods, alarmed, venerate thee, Agni, abiding in darkness: may Vaiśvānara preserve us with his protection: may the immortal Agni preserve us with his protection.

Śūkta X. (X.)
The deity is Agni; the Rishi as before; the metre is Trishtubh, except in the last verse, in which it is Virāj.

1. Place before you at the progressive, uninterrupted sacrifice, the divine, adorable, perfect Agni, with prayers; for he, the resplendent Jātavedas, makes us prosperous in sacred rites.

2. Brilliant, many-rayed Agni, invoker of the gods, kindled with many fires, (hear) this (praise) of men; which delightful praise, pure as the clarified butter (that has been filtered), his worshippers offer unto him as Mamata (formerly offered it).

3. He thrives in abundance amongst men, who, pious, presents to Agni (oblations) with prayers: the wonderfully radiant Agni places him with marvellous protection in the enjoyment of pasturage full of herds of cattle.

4. The dark-pathed, as soon as generated, filled with his afar-seen light the two spacious (worlds):
he, the purifier, is now beheld dispersing with his radiance the thick glooms of night.

5. Bestow quickly, Agni, upon us who are affluent (in oblations), wondrous wealth, with abundant viands, and protections, such as enrich other men with wealth, with food, and with male descendants.

6. Agni, desirous (of the offering), accept this sacrifice, this food which the presenter (of the oblation), sitting down (before thee), offers unto thee:
accept the blameless (praises) of the Bharadwaja (race), and favour them that they may obtain many sorts of food.

7. Scatter (our) enemies; augment our abundance; and may we, blessed with virtuous male descendants, enjoy happiness for a hundred winters.

Sūkta XI. (XI.)

Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

Varga XIII.

1. Agni, invoker of the gods, do thou who art adorable, being instigated by us, worship at our present rite the foe-repelling (troop) of the Maruts, and bring to our sacrifice Mītra and Varuṇa, the Nāsatyas, and Heaven and Earth.

2. Thou art amidst mortals at the celebration (of sacrifice), the invoker of the gods, (thou who art) most deserving of praise, a divinity doing us no harm:
the bearer (of the oblation) offers (the gods), Agni, thine own body with purifying flame as if with their mouth.

3. Praise, solicitous of wealth, is ever addressed, Agni, to thee, inasmuch as thy manifestation (enables) the worshipper to sacrifice to the gods, when the pious sage, the most earnest adorer amongst the Angirasas, the reciter (of the hymn), repeats at the ceremony the gratifying measure.

4. The brilliant Agni, mature in wisdom, has shone resplendently: offer worship to the wide-spread heaven and earth, thou whom, well-fed, the five races of men, bearing oblations, propitiate, with (sacrificial) food, as if thou wast a mortal guest.

5. When the holy grass has been cut, (to be presented) to Agni, with the oblation; when the well-trimmed ladle, filled with butter, has been lifted up; then thy receptacle, (the altar), has been prepared on the surface of the earth, and the sacred rite is had recourse to, as light (concentrates) in the sun.

6. Agni, many-rayed, invoker of the gods, blazing with brilliant fires, bestow upon us riches; and may we, Son of strength, clothing thee with oblations, overcome iniquity (like) a foe.

Sūkta XII. (XII.)
Deity, Rishi, and metre as before

1. Agni, the invoker of the gods, the lord of sacrifice, abides in the dwelling of the institutor of the rite,¹ to offer sacrifice to heaven and earth: he, the Son of strength, the observer of truth, has overspread (the world) from afar, like the sun, with light.

2. Adorable and resplendent Agni, to whom, mature in wisdom, the worshipper offers oblations at every sacred rite, do thou, who art present in the three (worlds), move with the speed of the traverser

(of the sky, the sun), to convey the valuable oblations of men (to the gods).

3. He, whose pure and spreading flame blazes in the forest, shines with increasing intensity, like the sun\(^1\) on his (celestial) path: rushing like the innoxious (wind)\(^2\) amongst the plants, immortal, unimpeded, he lights up (all things) by his own (lustre).

4. Agni, who knows all that exists, is propitiated in our dwelling by our praises, like those gratifying (commendations which proceed) from one soliciting (a favour):\(^3\) feeder upon trees, consumer of forests, impetuous in act as the bull, the (progenitor of calves), he is glorified by the celebration of sacrifices.

5. They glorify his flames in this world: when, easily thinning the woods, they spread over the earth: he, who glides along unarrested, and rapid in movement as a fast flying thief, shines over the desert.

6. Quick-moving Agni, kindled with all (thy) fires, (guard) us from reproach: thou bestowest riches, thou scatterest adversaries: may we, blessed with excellent male descendants, enjoy happiness for a hundred winters.

FOURTH ASHTAKA—FIFTH ADHYÁYA.

Ślokta XIII. (XIII.)
The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Auspicious Agni, all good things proceed from thee, like branches (from the trunk) of a tree, renowned riches, vigour for the destruction of foes, the rain of heaven: thou art to be glorified, the sender of the waters.

2. Do thou, who art adorable,¹ bestow upon us precious wealth: beautiful with radiance, thou passest (around) like the circumambient (wind): thou, divine Agni, art like Mitra, the giver of abundant water and ample wealth.

4. The mortal who by praise, by prayers, by sacrifices, attracts, Son of strength, thy heightened (radiance) to the altar, enjoys all-sufficiency and corn, and abounds in wealth.

6. Agni, Son of strength, do thou who art mighty be our counsellor: give us sons and grandsons, together with food: may I, by all my praises, obtain the fulfilment of my desires: may we, blessed with excellent male descendants, enjoy happiness for a hundred winters.

Sūkta XIV. (XIV.)
The deity and Rishi as before; the metre is Anushtubh, except in the last verse, in which it is Sakvarī.

Varga XVI.

1. May the mortal who propitiates Agni by devotion and worship, together with praises, quickly become distinguished as first (amongst men), and acquire ample distinguished food for the support (of his children).

2. Agni verily is most wise; he is the chief performer of religious rites, a holy sage: the progeny of men glorify Agni as the invoker of the gods at sacrifices.

3. The manifold treasures of the enemy (detached from them) are emulous, Agni, for the preservation (of thy worshippers): men who worship thee, triumphing over the spoiler, seek to shame him who celebrates no sacred rite by (their) observances.

4. Agni bestows (upon his worshippers) a male descendant, (the performer of good) works, the subduer of foes, the protector of the virtuous, at whose appearance his enemies tremble through fear of his prowess.

5. The mighty and divine Agni, endowed with knowledge, protects the mortal; from reproach whose rich (offerings) are unobstructed (by evil spirits), and unshared by other (offerers) at sacrifices.
6. Divine Agni, revered as a friend, who, abiding in heaven and earth, communicates our praise to the gods, conduct the offerer of adoration to domestic felicity, and may we overcome our adversaries, our iniquities, our difficulties: may we overcome them by thy protection.¹

Śūkta XV. (XV.)
The deity is Agni; the Rishi either Vītauḥavya, of the family of Angiras, or Bharadvāja, as before; the metre varies; that of the first, second, fourth, fifth, seventh, eighth, and ninth stanzas is Jagati; of the third and fifteenth, Śakvari; of the sixth, Atisahanvari; of the seventeenth, Anushtūbha; of the tenth and following four, and of the sixteenth and nineteenth, Trishtubha.

1. Propitiate by praises this guest who wakes at dawn, the cherisher of all people, who on every occasion descends, pure of origin, from heaven, and, present as the embryo (in the wood of attrition), consumes immediately the offered (oblation).

2. Wonderful Agni, whom, adorable and upward flaming, the Bhṛgus regard as a friend, deposited in the wood of (attrition), be pleased with Vītauḥavya,² since thou art glorified by (his) praise every day.

3. Do thou, who art unresisted, become the benefactor of him who is skilled (in sacred rites), his defender against a near or distant enemy: Son of strength, who art ever renowned, grant wealth and a dwelling to Vītauḥavya, the offerer of the oblation.³

¹ This is the same passage as occurs in Śūkta III. v. 11, see p. 385.
² If applied to Bharadvāja this will be an apppellative, he by whom oblations are offered.
³ Vītauḥavya bharadvājaya, either of these may be taken as the name or the epithet; to Vītauḥavya, the bearer, bharat, of
4. Propitiate with pious praises the radiant Agni, your guest, the guide to heaven, the invoker of the gods (at the sacrifice) of Manu, the celebrator of holy rites, the speaker of brilliant words like a learned sage, the bearer of oblations (to the gods), the lord, the divine.

5. (Propitiate him) who shines upon the earth with purifying and enlightening lustre, as the dawns with light; him, who like (a warrior) discomfiting (his foes) quickly blazed forth in the contest in defence of Etasa;¹ him, who is satiated (with food), exempt from decay.

6. Worship repeatedly the adorable Agni with fuel; (him) who is ever your dear friend, your guest: approach the immortal Agni with praises, for he, a god among gods, accepts our homage.

7. I glorify with praise the kindled Agni, pure, purifying, permanent, (placed) before (us) at the sacrifice: let us celebrate with pleasant (hymns) the wise Agni, the invoker of the gods, the adored of many, the benevolent, the far-seeing, him who knows all that exists.

8. Thee, Agni, have gods and men in every age retained as their messenger, immortal bearer of oblations, beneficent, adorable: they have placed him with reverence (upon the altar), vigilant, pervading, the protector of mankind.

9. Showing grace, Agni, to both (gods and men), the oblation, vája, or to Bharadvája, by whom is offered, víśa, the oblation, havya.

¹ See vol. i. p. 105, verse 15: Mahidhara, Kajush, 17. 10., explains etasa by its other meaning, a horse, but his interpretation of the passage is not very distinct.
and at each sacred rite the messenger of the gods, thou traversest earth and heaven: inasmuch as we offer thee worship and praise, therefore do thou, who art the guardian of the three (regions), be auspicious to us.¹

10. We of little wisdom adore the most wise Agni, the well-formed, the well-looking, the graceful-moving: may Agni, who knows all things that are to be known, offer the sacrifice: may he announce the oblation to the immortals.

11. Thou cherishest, thou protectest, Agni, that man who offers worship, hero, to thee, the far-seeing: thou rewardest with strength and with riches him (who undertakes) the institution, (who effects) the accomplishment, of the sacrifice.²

12. Protect us, Agni, from the malignant, preserve us, mighty one, from wickedness: may the offering come to thee free from defects; may desirable riches, by thousands, (reach us).

13. Agni is the invoker of the gods, the lord of the house, the ruler, who knows all that is, knows all existing beings; he is the most assiduous worshipper amongst gods or men: let him who is observant of truth offer worship.

14. Agni, minister of the sacrifice, bright with purifying lustre, approve of that (worship) which is ¹ This and the two preceding stanzas occur in the Sáma-Veda, ii. 917—919.

² Yajnarga vá níśtím vá uditím vá: the first is explained by Sáyana, sanskhára, perfection, accomplishment; the second, udgamanam, going up or over, perhaps, finishing: the relation of either to yajña is questionable, as they are both separated from it by the disjunctive, vá, or.
this day celebrated by the institutor of the rite: thou verily art the sacrificer, therefore address the worship (to the gods); and since by thy greatness thou art all-pervading, therefore, youngest (of the gods), accept the oblations which are to-day (presented) to thee.

15. Look, Agni, upon the (sacrificial) viands duly deposited (upon the altar): Heaven and Earth detain thee to sacrifice (to the gods): opulent Agni, protect us in battle, whereby we may pass safe over all evils: may we pass over those of a prior existence; may we pass over them by thy protection.¹

16. Bright-rayed Agni, sit down first with all the gods, upon the altar lined with wool, a nest (of perfumes) and suffused with ghat,² and rightly convey (to the deities) the sacrifice of the institutor of the rite, of the presenter of the oblation.³

17. The priests churn thee, Agni, as was done by Atharvan, and bring him from the glooms of night, wandering deviously, but not bewildered.⁴

² Urmavantam, kutāyinam ghrītavantam: the stanza is quoted in the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa, with a partial explanation, which is amplified by Sāyana: the altar is built up like the nest of a bird, kulāya, with circles, paridhayak, of the wood of the khayar or devadāru, in which, aśvambandah romavisesah, sheep's wool; and fragrant resins, the materials of incense (guggulu dhūpasadhanam), are placed, ete uttaravedyām sthāpitāḥ ete bkārik, these appurtenances are placed in the northern altar.
³ Savitrē yajamānāya, according to Sāyana, should be in the genitive case, shashityartho chaturthyeshā; but in his comment on the Brāhmaṇa he explains the terms anushthātre yajamānāya tadupahārārtham, for the sake of the benefit of the sacrificing institutor of the ceremony.
⁴ Anhūyantam amūram: the first refers, according to the
18. Be born, Agni, at the sacrifice, for the welfare of the offerer (of the oblation) to the gods: bring hither the immortal deities, the augmenters of the (sacred) rite: present our sacrifice to the gods.

19. Lord of the house, Agni, we, amongst men, promote thine increase by fuel: may our domestic fires be supplied with all that is essential:¹ enliven us with brilliant radiance.

ANUVĀKA II.

SUKTA I. (XVI.)

The deity is Agni, the Rishi Bharadwāja; the metre is Gāyatři, modified in the first, sixth, seventh, and eighth verses as Va.ṛddhamāvā Gāyatři, and, with the exception of the twenty-seventh, forty-seventh, and forty-eighth verses, in which it is Anushtubh, and of the forty-sixth, in which it is Trishtubh: the Sūkta is of unusual length in this part of the Veda.

1. Thou, Agni, hast been appointed by the gods, the ministrant for men, the descendants of Manu, at all sacrifices.²

scholiast, to the legend of Agni’s attempting at first to run away from the gods, devebhyah palāyamānam.

¹ Asthūrī for asthūrini gārhapatyāni santuisthūrī is properly a one-horse car or waggon which brings either the Soma-plant or fuel: with the negative prefix asthūrī it implies a non-one-horse cart, that is, a cart with a full team, and, metonymically, its contents, or a full supply of what is wanted for a perfect sacrifice, such as obtains children, cattle, riches, asthūrini, putra paśu-dhanādibhikh sampūrṇāni.

² Śāma-Veda, 1. 2., 11. 824.
2. Therefore do thou at our sacrifice offer oblations to the great deities with exhilarating flames: bring hither the gods: offer them worship.

3. Agni, doer of great deeds, creator, thou knowest (how to travel over) with speed (great) roads and (little) paths² at sacrifices.

4. Bharata,³ with the presenters of the oblation, has joyfully praised thee in thy (twofold capacity),⁴ and has worshipped thee, the adorable, with sacrifices.

5. As thou hast conferred these many blessings upon Divodása when presenting libations, (so now grant them) to the (actual) offerer, Bharadvája.

6. Hearing the adoration of the sage, do thou, who art the immortal messenger, bring hither the celestial people.

7. Pious mortals invoke thee, divine Agni, at sacrifices, to convey their (sacificial) food to the gods.

8. I glorify thy splendour, and the acts of thee the liberal giver: all who, (through thy favour) enjoy their desires, glorify thee.

9. Thou hast been appointed by Manu, the invoker

² Adhvánah pathascha are explained severally mahamárgán, great roads, kshudra márgán-scha, little roads or paths; that is, according to Sáyana, put the sacrificer into the right way when he is going wrong in the ceremonial or sacrifice.

³ Sáyana considers Bharata here to be the Rájá, the son of Dushyanta.

⁴ In the character of bestowing what is wished for, and removing what is undesired, is twofold; ishṭa próptyanishṭa-paṛikárurúpenágnir dwidhá.
of the gods, the most wise bearer of oblations (to them) by thy mouth: worship, Agni, the people of heaven.

10. Come, Agni, to the (sacrificial) food: being lauded, (come) to convey the oblation (to the gods): sit down as the ministrant priest upon the sacred grass.¹

11. We augment thee, Angiras, with fuel and with butter: blaze fiercely, youngest (of the gods).²

12. Divine Agni, bestow upon us (wealth), excellent, great, and (comprehending) worthy male descendants.³

13. The sage, Atharvan, extracted thee from upon the lotus-leaf, the head, the support of the universe.⁴

² Saama-Veda, ii. 11., Yajur-Veda; 3. 3.
³ Saama-Veda, ii. 12.: suvra or suviryya always implies having male descendants, bonos viros habens, or honorum viorum possessio.
⁴ Tvam pushkarad adhi atharvo niramanthata, mūrdāhno vijnasya vāghatah: the verse occurs in the Sāma-Veda, i. 9, and the Yajush, 11. 32.: according to Śāyaṇa, pushkarād-adhi means pushkaraparne, or the lotus-leaf; as by the text pushkara-parne Prajāpatir bhūnim aprathayat, upon the lotus-leaf Prajāpati made manifest the earth, which probably suggested one of the accounts of the creation in Manu 1.: hence, as it supported the earth it may be termed the head, mūrdāhan, or the bearer, vāghata, of all things: Mahādhara cites a text to shew that atharvan means prāṇa, vital air or life, and pushkara, water, and explains the passage, the vital air extracted fire or animal heat from the water, prāṇa udakasa-kāsdad-agnim nīsēhena mathitavān: to vāghata he assigns the usual import of ritoj, ministrant priest, and explains the last sentence, all the priests churned thee out of the head or top of the wood of attrition: he gives also another explanation, which agrees with that of Śāyaṇa.
14. The Rishi, Dadhyanch, the son of Atharvan, kindled the slayer of Vritra, the destroyer of the cities of the Asuras.

Varga XXIV.

15. (The Rishi) Pathya, the showerer, kindled thee, the destroyer of the Dasyu, the winner of spoil in battle.

16. Come, Agni, that I may address to thee other praises in this manner: augment with these libations.

17. Wheresoever, and upon whatsoever thy mind is directed, thou bestowest uncommon vigour, and there thou makest thine abode.

18. Let not thy full (blaze) be distressing to the eye, giver of dwellings to thy humble votaries, and, therefore accept our worship.

19. Agni, the bearer (of oblations), the destroyer of the enemies of Divodasa, the cognisant of many, the protector of the good, has been brought hither (by our praises).

20. Surpassing all earthly things, may he bestow upon us riches, destroying his enemies by his greatness, unresisted, unassailed.

21. Thou hast overspread, Agni, this vast (firmament) with radiant concentrated lustre, recent like that of old.

1 Itthetarā girah: ittha, anena prahārena, thus, in this manner: itarā, other, may mean also, according to Sāyana, offered by others, or by the Asuras, asuraikritā: in his commentary on the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa, where the verse is cited, 3. 49., he understands it differently, or, other than those offered to the gods, or adverse to the gods, propitiatory of the Asuras, asurebhyaḥ hitāḥ devavākyāditarā devavirodhinā ityarthaḥ.

2 The text has nahi pūrtam akshipadbhuvoḥ: akshi-pat, akṣhno pādham vināśakaḥ, the offender or destroyer of the eye: the verse occurs Sāma-Veda, 1. 7., 11. 57., and Yajur-
22. Sing praise and offer sacrifice, my friends, to the foe-discomfiting, the creator, Agni.

23. May that Agni indeed sit down (at our sacrifice), who in every age of man has been the invoker of the gods, the doer of wise deeds, the messenger of the gods, the bearer of oblations.

24. Giver of dwellings, worship on this occasion the two regal divinities, Mitra and Varuna, whose acts are holy, the Adityas, the company of the Maruts, and heaven and earth.

25. Son of strength, Agni, the glorious radiance of thee who art immortal, bestows food upon (thy) mortal worshipper.

26. May the donor (of the oblation), propitiating thee by his acts to day, be exalted, and (rendered) very opulent: may (such) mortal be diligent in (thy) praise.

27. Those, Agni, who are protected by thee, wishing for the whole (term of) life (obtain it), overcoming hostile assailants, destroying hostile assailants.

28. May Agni, with his sharp flame, demolish the devourer (of the oblation): may Agni grant us riches.

29. Jatavedas, all-beholder, bring us wealth with good posterity: doer of good deeds, destroy the Rakshasas.

30. Preserve us, Jatavedas, from sin: enunciator of prayer,\(^1\) protect us from the malevolent.

\(^{\text{Veda, 26. 13., the preceding verse also occurs in the former 11. 56.}}\)

\(^{1\text{Brahmanashkave is explained mantrasyu sabdayitar, oh sounder or articulator of prayer; for Agni, it is said, generates articulate sound, and the Smriti is cited as authority; manah}}\)
31. The malevolent mortal who threatens us with murderous weapon, from him defend us, and also from sin.

32. Scatter, divine Agni, by thy flame, that evil-doer, the man who seeks to kill us.

33. Subduer of foes, grant to Bharadwaja infinite happiness and desirable wealth.

34. May Agni, propitiated by praise, desirous of (sacrificial) affluence, kindled, bright, and fed with burnt-offerings, destroy all adversaries.¹

35. Radiant in the embryo of the maternal (earth), on the imperishable (altar); the cherisher of the paternal (heaven),² sitting on the seat of sacrifice.

36. Bring to us, Jatavedas, all-beholder, food with progeny; such (food) as is brilliant in heaven.³

37. Strength-begotten Agni, we, offering (sacrificial) food, address praises to thee who art of pleasing aspect.⁴

38. We have recourse, Agni, to the shelter of thee, hāyāgnim áhanti, sa prerayati mánutam, marutas-tu urasi charan, mandram janayati swaram, mind excites the fire of the body, that excites the collective vital airs, and they, passing into the breast, engender agreeable, articulate sound.

² Garbhe mátuḥ, pitusvipitā: here, as before, the mother of Agni is the earth, the father is heaven: Agni is said to be the father or fosterer of his parent heaven, by transmitting to it the flame and smoke of burnt-offerings: also Sáma-Veda, II. 747.

the lustrous, the golden-feathered, as to the shade (of a tree).

39. Thou, Agni, who art like a fierce archer, or like a sharp-horned bull, hast destroyed the cities (of the Asuras).

40. (Worship) that Agni whom (the priests) bear in their hands like a new-born babe; the devourer (of the oblation), the (conveyor of the) holy sacrifices of men.

41. Conduct the divine (Agni), the bestower of infinite wealth, to (receive charge of) the food of the gods: let him sit down on his appropriate seat.

42. (Welcome him) as soon as born, like a beloved guest, and place the lord of the mansion upon the sacred (altar) whence wisdom is derived.

43. Harness, divine Agni, thy well-trained horses, who bear thee quickly to the sacrifice.

1 Sáma-Veda, ii. 1056.
2 The scholiast here identifies Agni with Rudra as the destroyer of the cities of Tripura: the identification is authorised by the Vaidik text, Rudro vá esho yad Agniḥ, also Sáman, ii. 1057.
3 This and the preceding verse are to be recited, it is said, when the fire that has been produced by attrition is applied to kindle the áhavaníya, or fire of burnt-offerings: they are both quoted in the Aitareya Bráhmana, 1. 16., and with Sáyana’s gloss to this effect, but some of the terms are differently explained and applied; thus, Agni is to be considered as the guest, not of the sacrificer, but of the áhavaníya fire, and játavedasi is also applied to the latter, as knowing the birth of the churned fire, to whom it is a giver of delight, syona, sukhakara, by giving him a welcome reception.
4 Manyás, synonymous with yajnáya, as manyur, yágah: Mahidhara, Yajush, 19. 36., gives the same interpretation: it occurs also Sáma-Veda, 1. 25.
44. Come, Agni, to our presence; bring hither the gods to partake of the (sacrificial) viands, to drink the Soma-juice.

45 Blaze up, Agni, bearer of oblations: shine, undecaying Agni, radiant with undecaying lustre.

46. Whatever mortal, offering oblations, worships a deity with (sacrificial) food, let him at the ceremony also worship Agni, the invoker of heaven and earth, the sacrificer with truth; let him adore (Agni) with uplifted hands.

47. We offer to thee, Agni, the oblation sanctified by the heart, and (identified) with the sacred verse: may the vigorous bulls and the cows be (as such an oblation) to thee.\(^1\)

48. The gods kindle Agni as the chief (of them); as the especial destroyer of Vritra; by whom the treasures (of the Asuras) are carried off; by whom the Rākshasas are destroyed.

---

\(^1\) Te te bhavantu ukshaṇa rishabhāso vaṣā uta, may these vigorous bulls or the cows be for thee: the scholiast intimates their being offered to Agni as victims, rishabhavāṣārūpeṇā parinamam san tvadhakshanāya (havir) bhavatu, let the oblation, matured in the form of bulls or cows, be for thy food.
FOURTH ASHTAKA—SIXTH ADHYĀYA. 415

ADHYĀYA VI.

SŪKTA II. (XVII.)

The deity is Indra; the Rishi Bharadvāja; the metre is Trishtubh

1. Fierce Indra, glorified by us, drink that Soma, (animated) by which thou hast discovered the vast herd of cattle (stolen by the Panis), and, overcomer of enemies, wielder of the thunderbolt, thou hast slain, by thy strength all opposing foes.

2. Drink it, Indra, thou who enjoyest the flavourless Soma; thou who art the preserver, the handsome-chinned, the showerer (of benefits) on those who praise thee; who art the breaker of mountains, the wielder of the thunderbolt, the curber of steeds, do thou bestow upon us various food.

3. Drink it as of old, and may it exhilarate thee: hear our prayer, and be exalted by our praises; make the sun visible, nourish us with food, destroy our enemies, rescue the cattle.

4. Abounding in food, Indra, let these exhilarating draughts copiously bedew thee, the resplendent; let the inebriating juices delight thee who art mighty, deficient in no (excellence), powerful, manifold, the overcomer of foes.

5. By which (juices) being exhilarated thou hast appointed the sun and the dawn (to their offices), driving away the solid (glooms): thou hast penetrated, Indra, the mountain, unmoved from its own seat, concealing the cattle.
6. By thy wisdom, by thy deeds, through thy power, thou hast developed the mature (milk) in the immature (udders), thou hast opened the strong doors for the cattle (to come forth): associated with the Angirasas, thou hast liberated the cows from their fold.

7. Thou hast filled the wide earth, Indra, with (the fame of) thy deeds: thou, the mighty one, hast propped up the vast heaven: thou hast sustained the heaven and earth, whose children are the gods, (and who are) the old and mighty parents of sacrifice.1

8. All the gods then placed thee, Indra, as their mighty chief in front for battle: when the impious (Asuras) assailed the deities: the Maruts supported Indra in the conflict.2

9. The heaven bowed down in the two-fold dread of thy thunderbolt, and thy individual wrath, when Indra, the giver of food, struck to the sleep (of death) the assailing Ahi.

10. Fierce Indra, Twashtri constructed for thee, the mighty one, the thousand-edged, the hundred-angled thunderbolt, wherewith thou hast crushed the ambitious, audacious, loud-shouting Ahi.

11. For thee, Indra, whom all the Maruts, alike pleased, exalt, may Pusana and Vishnu dress for thee a hundred buffaloes,3 and to him may the three

2 According to the legend the gods ran away, the Maruts alone stood by Indra.
3 Pachat satam mahishān tubhyam, may he cook for thee a streams flow with the inebriating, foe-destroying Soma.

12. Thou hast set free the greatly obstructed and arrested water of the rivers, the afflux of the waters: thou hast directed them, Indra, upon their downward paths: thou hast sent them rapidly down to the ocean.

13. May our new prayer bring to our protection thee, Indra, who art the maker of all these (things that exist): who art mighty, fierce, undecaying, the giver of strength, having excellent descendants, the Maruts, well-armed, the bearer of the thunderbolt.

14. Do thou, resplendent Indra, uphold us who are devout, for (the obtaining of) food, of sustenance, of nourishment, of wealth: bestow upon Bharadwaja pious posterity, with numerous attendants: be with us, Indra, every future day.

15. May we, by this (praise), obtain food granted by the deity: may we, blessed with excellent male descendants, be happy for a hundred winters.

Sókta III. (XVIII.)
The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Praise him who is Indra, the invoked of many, endowed with overpowering vigour, the destroyer (of hundred male animals: pum-paśūn pacchêt is the explanation: there is no nominative except Pūshan, which is in the following hemistich, and which is followed by Vishnu without a copulative.

4 Tryáni saránsi mean, according to the scholiast, three cups or vessels called Áhavanis, holding the Soma which has been purified or filtered into the pitcher, the dronakalasa.

5 Vájáya, gravase, ishe cha ráye: the three first are synonymes, meaning food.
foes), unharmed by them: exalt with these praises the irresistible, fierce, victorious Indra, the showerer (of benefits) upon mankind.

2. He is ever the combatant, the donor, the engaged in battle, the sympathizer (with the sacrificer), the benefactor of many, the loud-sounding, the partaker of the stale libation, the stirrer up of dust (in strife), the chief protector of men the descendants of Manu, the endowed with strength.

3. Thou art he who has quickly humbled the Dasyus: thou art the chief one who has given posterity to the Arya: but, Indra, is not verily thy power such? if it be not, then in due season confess.¹

4. Yet, most mighty one, I believe that power is verily always in thee, who art manifest at many rites, and art the enemy of (our) enemies: (the power) that is fierce in the fierce one, most mighty in the mighty one, most unassailable in the subduer (of foes).

5. May that our ancient friendship with thee ever endure; as when, along with the Angirasas, celebrating thy praises, thou, beautiful Indra, caster down of the immovable (rocks), didst verily slay Bala, hurling (his darts against thee), and force open his cities, and all his gates.

6. Fierce Indra, maker of rulers, thou art he who is to be invoked with praises in a great conflict: thou art he (who is to be invoked) for sons and grandsons, he, the wielder of the thunderbolt, who is to be especially glorified in battles.

¹ Not beholding Indra, the scholiast says, the Rishi begins to question his attributes and power: in the succeeding verse he expresses his belief in their existence.
7. With immortal, foe-humiliating might, he has promoted the (multiplied) birth of mankind: he, the chief of leaders, dwells in the same dwelling with fame, with strength, with riches, with heroism.

8. He who is never perplexed, who is no engenderer of that which is in vain, whose name is renowned, who promptly (exerts himself) for the overturning of the cities (of the Asuras), and for the destruction (of his foes): thou, (Indra), hast indeed slain Chumuri, Dhuni, Pipru, Sambara, and Sushna.¹

9. (Endowed) with upward-rising, foe-thinning, and glorified (vigour), ascend thy car for the destruction of Vritra: take the thunderbolt in thy right hand, and baffle, giver of wealth, the devices (of the Asuras).

10. In like manner as Agni consumes the dry forest, so, Indra, thy weapon (destroys thine enemies): as (formidable as thy) fearful shaft, consume the Rakshasas: thou who hast crushed them with thy resistless and mighty (weapon), hast shouted aloud (in the combat) and demolished all evil things.

11. Opulent Indra, Son of strength, the invoked of many, whose union (with energy) the impious is unable to disjoin, come down to us with thousands of riches by very powerful conveyances.²

12. The vastness of the affluent, ancient (Indra), the demolisher (of foes), exceeds that of the heaven and the earth: there is no antagonist, no counterpart, no recipient of him abounding in wisdom, victorious (in war).

¹ All these have been mentioned before, see vols. I. and II.
² Pathibhis-tuvi vajebhih: Sāyana renders the first by vāhais, vehicles, or sometimes horses, so considered: the epithet he translates bahubalaih, very strong or powerful.
13. That exploit is celebrated in the present day (which thou hast) achieved for Kutsa, for Áyu, for Atithigyan: to him thou hast given many thousands (of riches), and thou hast quickly elevated Turvavána\(^1\) over the earth by thy power.

14. Divine Indra, all the gods have glorified thee, the wisest of the wise, for the destruction of Ahi: when propitiated, thou hast given wealth to the distressed worshipper, and to his posterity.\(^2\)

15. The heaven and earth, and the immortal gods, acknowledge thy might: doer of many deeds, do that which is yet undone by thee, give birth to a new hymn at (thy) sacrifices.

Súkta IV. (XIX.)
Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. May the great Indra, who is as a monarch, the fullfiller (of the desires) of men, come hither: may he who is mighty over the two (realms of space), uninjurable by (hostile) efforts, increase (in capacity) for heroism in our presence: may he who is great (in body), eminent (in qualities), be honoured by the performers (of pious acts).\(^3\)

2. Our praise encourages Indra to munificence,

\(^1\) The same as Divodás, to whom Indra gave the spoils of Śambara.

\(^2\) Yatra varivo bádhitáya dive janáya tanve gregánah harak is explained yasmin hâlo peditáya stotre janáya, tat-tana-váya cha dhanam stúyamáno adadáh, as translated in the text; but Sáyana admits another rendering, which he makes, when being praised, thou hast given ease to the celestial people through the relief, tanve, sobháyai, caused by the demolition of Ahi.

\(^3\) Yajur-Veda, 7. 39.: Mahádhara’s explanation is to the same purport, although he renders some of the epithets rather differently.
the vast, quick-moving, undecaying, ever-youthful Indra, mighty with unsurpassable strength, who rapidly grows to greatness.

3. Extend towards us thy long, active, and bountiful hands, (to bring us) food: be about us, lowly-minded Indra, in battle, as a herdsman (tends) the herds of cattle.

4. Desiring sustenance, we invoke thee, the renowned Indra, on this occasion, the destroyer (of enemies), together with his powerful allies (the Maruts): as his ancient adorers have been, (may we be), exempt from blame, irreproachable, unharmed.

5. In him who is observant of pious rites, who is a giver of wealth, who is exalted by the Soma beverage, the (lord) of desirable riches, the distributor of food, (in him) the treasures fit (for his worshippers) congregate like rivers flowing into the ocean.

6. Bestow upon us, hero Indra, most vigorous vigour: subduer (of enemies, bestow upon us) most energetic and fierce energy: grant, lord of steeds, all the bright and invigorating (treasures) fit for men, to make us happy.

7. Impart to us, Indra, that thine invigorating exultation which overcomes enemies, and is irresistible, whereby, protected by thee, triumphant we may glorify thee for the sake of (obtaining) sons and grandsons.

8. Bestow upon us, Indra, vigorous strength, the realizer of wealth, great and propitious, wherewith, through thy protection, we may destroy our enemies in battles, whether they be kinsmen or strangers.

9. May thine invigorating strength come from the west, from the north, from the south, from the east; may it come to us from every quarter: grant us riches combined with felicity.

10. We enjoy, Indra, through thy guiding protection, desirable affluence along with descendants and reputation: grant us, sovereign, who rulest over (earthly and heavenly) riches, vast, desirable, and infinite treasure.

11. We invoke on this occasion for his present protection, that Indra who is attended by the Maruts; who is the showerer (of benefits); augmenting (in prowess); the unreviled of foes, radiant, ruling, all-subduing, fierce, the giver of strength.

12. Wielder of the thunderbolt, humble that man who looks upon himself as the greatest amongst those men of whom I am: we invoke thee now to (descend) upon the earth at the time of battle, and for (the sake of obtaining) sons and grandsons.

13. Invoked of many, may we, through these thy friendly (praises), ever be superior to successive foes, destroying, oh hero, both (classes of) enemies, (kindred or unallied); and may we, protected by thee, be happy with abundant riches.

Sūkta V. (XX.)
The deity, Rishi, and metre as before; in the seventh stanza the latter is Virāj.

Varga IX.

1. Indra, Son of strength, grant us (a son),¹ the possessor of thousands, the owner of cultivated lands,

¹ The text has no substantive, but the epithets evidently allude to some one individual, or, as Sāyana understands them, to a son, putram, who is metaphorically the riches of a family; and its defence against enemies, putrārim putram dhanam, rayir yo ṣavasa ṣatṛṇā ākrāmeth.
the subduer of foes, the riches that may overcome men in battles by strength, as the radiant (sun) over- spreads the earth by his rays.

2. To thee, Indra, as to the sun, all strength has verily been given by the gods; so that, drinker of the staid Soma, associated with Vishnu, thou mightest slay the hostile Ahi obstructing the waters.

3. When Indra, the destroyer, the most mighty, the strongest of the strong, the giver of food, the possessor of vast splendour, received (the thunderbolt), the shatterer of all the cities (of the Asuras), he became the lord of the sweet Soma beverage.

4. The Panis, Indra, fled, with hundreds (of Asuras), from the sage, thy worshipper (and ally) in battle: neither did he, (Indra), suffer the deceptions of the powerful Sushna to prevail over his weapons, nor did he (leave him) any of his sustenance.

5. When Sushna passed away upon the falling of the thunderbolt, then the universal strength of the great oppressor was annihilated; and Indra enlarged their common car for (the use of) his charioteer Kutsa, for (the sake of) the worship of the sun.

1 Devabhik, Sáyana renders by stotribhik, observing, stotraik stúyámaná devatá balavatí, a deity becomes strong, being praised with praises.

2 Ahm vritram may be also rendered the destroyer, hantáram, Vritra.

3 Dasonaye havaye: the scholiast asserts that the dative is put for the ablative, and that the terms are equivalent to bahu kavishhát medhávinah, from the wise man offering many oblations, that is, twatsahayakutsát, from kutsa, thy ally: in verse 8. of this Súkta, Dasoni occurs, as elsewhere, as the name of an Asura.

4 Súryasya sátau, bhajane nimittabhive is the explanation
6. And the hawk bore to Indra the exhilarating Soma, when, bruising the head of the oppressor Namachi, and protecting the slumbering Nami, the son of Sayā, he provided, for the well-being (of the sage), riches and food.

7. Thou hast scattered by force, wielder of the thunderbolt, the strong cities of the deadly-deluding Pipru: thou hast given, bountiful Indra, uninjurable wealth to Rijiswat, the donor of sacrificial gifts.

8. Indra, the granter of wished-for felicity, compelled the many-fraudulent Etasa and Dasoni, Tūtuji, Tugra, and Ībha, always to come submissively to (the Raja) Dytana, as a son (comes before a mother).

9. Bearing in his hand the foe-destroying thunderbolt, Indra, unresisted, demolishing these his adversaries; he mounts his two-horse (car), as a warrior (ascends) his chariot; harnessed at a word, his steeds convey the mighty Indra.

10. (Favoured) by thy protection, Indra, we solicit new (wealth): by this adoration men glorify thee at sacrifices, for that thou hast shattered with thy bolt the seven cities of Sarat, killing the opponents (of sacred rites), and giving (their spoils) to Purukutsa.

of Sāyana, and samānuratham vistārnam aharot is his interpretation of the uru ska saratham kar of the text: Kutsa is the reputed author of the hymns to Sūrya and Usbas: see vol. I. pp. 296, 304.

1 See vol. I. p. 137, verse 5.

2 Pūravah is the term of the text rendered manushyah in the comment.

3 Sarat is said to be the name of an Asura.
11. Desirous of opulence, thou, Indra, hast been an ancient benefactor of Uṣanās, the son of Kavi: having slain Nāvavāstwa, thou hast given back his own grandson, who was (fit) to be restored to the grandfather.

12. Thou, Indra, who makest (thine enemies) tremble, hast caused the waters, detained by Dhuni, to flow like rushing rivers: so, hero, when, having crossed the ocean, thou hast reached the shore, thou hast brought over in safety Turvasa and Yadu.¹

13. All this, Indra, has been thy work in war: thou hast put to sleep, (in death), the slumbering Dhuni and Chumuri; and thereupon Dabhīti, pouring the libation, preparing the oblation, and supplying the fuel, has glorified thee with Soma offerings.

Sūkta VI. (XXI.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre as before; except in stanzas nine and eleven, where the Viśvādevas take the place of Indra.

1. These earnest adorations of the much-desiring worshipper glorify thee, hero, Indra, who art adorable: mounted on thy car, undecaying, ever new, and to whom the wealth (of sacrifice), the most excellent opulence, proceeds.

2. I glorify that Indra who is propitiated by praises, exalted by sacrifices, who knows all things; the magnitude of whom, the possessor of various wisdom, exceeds in vastness (that of) heaven and earth.

¹ Samudram atipraparshi, samudram atikramya pratirno bhavasi, when thou art crossed, having traversed the ocean, thou hast brought across Turvasa and Yadu, both standing on the further shore, samudrapāre tishrantau opārayah.
3. He who made the indistinct, wide-spreading darkness distinct with the sun: whenever, possessor of strength, mortals are seeking to adore the dwelling of thee who art immortal, they harm not (any living being).

4. What is he, the \textit{Indra} who has done these deeds? what region does he frequent? among what people (does he abide)? what worship, \textit{Indra}, gives satisfaction to thy mind? what praise is able to gratify thee? which of thy invokers (is most acceptable to thee)?

5. Doer of many deeds, these elders, born in former times, engaged in sacred rites, have been, as they are now, thy friends; so have those of mediæval and those of recent (date): therefore, invoked of many, take notice of thy (present) humble (adorer).

6. Humble (worshippers), adoring him, commemorate, \textit{Indra}, thy excellent, ancient, and glorious (deeds): so, hero, who art attracted by prayer, we praise thee who art mighty, for those great actions with which we are acquainted.

7. The strength of the \textit{Rákshasas} is concentrated against thee: bear up well against that mighty manifested (effort): scatter them, valiant (\textit{Indra}), with thy old associate, thy friend, the thunderbolt.

8. Supporter of (thy) worshippers, hero, \textit{Indra}, listen (to the praises) of thy present adorer, for thou hast always attended to invocations at sacrifices in ancient times, as the kinsman of our forefathers.

\begin{footnotes}
\item[1] The text has only \textit{na minanti, na hinsanti}: the scholiast supplies the object, \textit{kim api prāṇijātam}.
\item[2] \textit{Brahmavāhah} is explained \textit{mantrairvahantyah}, to be borne or conveyed by prayers.
\item[3] \textit{Pitrīnāṁ āpih, bandhuḥ}: according to \textit{Sāyana} the \textit{Angirasas} are intended.
\end{footnotes}
9. Propitiate to-day, for our protection and preservation, Varuṇa, Mitra, Indra, and the Maruts, Pūshan, Vishnu, Agni of many rites, Savitri, the herbs, the mountains.

10. Indra, of great power, and to be devoutly worshipped, these thine adorers glorify thee with hymns: do thou, who art invoked, hear the invocation of (him) invoking thee, for there is no other divinity than thou, immortal (Indra), such as thou art.

11. Come quickly, Son of strength, thou who knowest (all things), upon my prayer; together with all the adorable (divinities): they who, with the tongue of Agni, are partakers of the sacrifice, who rendered Manu (victorious) over his adversaries.¹

12. Constructor of paths, who art cognizant (of all things), be our preceeder, whether in easy or difficult (ways): bring to us food, Indra, with those thy (steeds), who are unwearied, large, and bearers of great burthens.

Sūkta VII. (XXII.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. I glorify with these praises, Indra, who alone is to be invoked by man: who comes (to his worshippers) the showerer (of benefits), the vigorous, the observer of truth, the subduer of foes, the possessor of manifold knowledge, the mighty.

2. To him the seven sages, our ancient progenitors, performing the nine days rite, were offerers of (sacrificial) food, celebrating with hymns the very strong

¹ Ye Manum chakrur uparam dasāya satrūnam, or dasyūnām uparibhavam, who made Manu the Rajarshi, manum rājarshim, over, or the overcomer of enemies, or of the Dasyus.
(Indra), the humiliator of foes, the traverser of the heavens, the dweller in the clouds, whose commands are not to be disobeyed.

3. We solicit that Indra for wealth, comprehending numerous descendants, followers, and much cattle, and which is undisturbed, imperishable, and the source of felicity: such riches, lord of steeds, bestow upon us to make us happy.

4. If, Indra, thy worshippers have formerly obtained felicity, confer that also upon us: irresistible Indra, subduer of foes, invoked of many, abounding in wealth, what is the portion, what the offering (due) to thee who art the slayer of the Asuras?

5. He whose ceremonial and eulogistic hymn is commemorating Indra, the holder of the thunderbolt, seated in his car, the acceptor of many, the doer of many great deeds, the bestower of strength, proceeds promptly to acquire happiness, and encounters (with confidence) the malevolent.

6. Self-invigorated Indra, thou hast crushed by thy knotted (thunderbolt), quick as thought, that Vritra, growing in strength by this cunning: very radiant and mighty (Indra), thou hast demolished by (thine) irresistible (shaft) the unyielding, compact, and strong (cities of the Asuras).

7. (I have undertaken) to spread around with a new hymn, as it was done of old, (the glory of) thee, the ancient and most mighty (Indra): may that Indra, who is illimitable, and is a sure conveyance, bear us over all difficulties.

\footnote{Aya māyayā vaṃśidhānam, by this guile or deception, but what that was is not specified.}
8. Make hot the regions of earth, of heaven, of mid air, for the oppressive race (of the Rákshasas): showerer (of benefits), consume them everywhere with thy radiance, make the heaven and the firmament (too) hot for the impious.¹

9. Bright-flaming Indra, thou art the king of the people of heaven, and of the moving races of earth: grasp in thy right hand the thunderbolt, wherewith, Indra, who art beyond all praise, thou bafflest all the devices (of the Asuras).

10. Bring to us, Indra, concentrated, vast, and unassailable prosperity beyond the reach of enemies, and by which, wielder of the thunderbolt, thou hast rendered human enemies, whether Dásas or Áryas, easy to be overcome.

11. Invoked of many, creator, object of sacrifice, come to us with thy all-admired steeds, whom neither Asura nor deity arrests: come with them quickly to our presence.

Sókta VIII. (XXIII.)
The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. When the Soma-juice, Indra, is being effused, the sacred hymn chaunted, the prayer recited, be thou prepared (to harness thy horses), or, Maghavan, with thy horses ready harnessed, come (hither), bearing the thunderbolt in thy hand.

2. Or as, although engaged in heaven in the hero-animating conflict with foes, thou protectest the offerer of the libation, and humblest, undaunted Indra, the Dasyus, the disturbers of the pious and terrified worshipper, (so do thou come when the Soma is effused). ¹

3. May Indra be the drinker of the effused Soma, he who is the fierce conductor of the worshipper to security; may he be the donor of the world to the presenter of the libation, the giver of wealth to the man who adores him.

4. May Indra, with his steeds, come to as many (daily) rites (as may be celebrated), bearing the thunderbolt, drinking the Soma, bestowing cattle, granting manly and multiplied posterity, hearing the invocation of his adorer, and being the accepter of (our) praises.

5. To that Indra, who of old has rendered us good offices, we address (the praise) that he is pleased by: we celebrate him when the Soma is effused, repeating the prayer that the (sacrificial) food (offered) to Indra may be for his augmentation.

6. Since, Indra, thou hast made the (sacred) prayers (the means of) thy augmentation, we address such to thee, along with our praises: may we, drinker of the effused libation, offer gratifying and acceptable eulogies with (our) sacrifices.

7. Accept, Indra, who art condescending, our cakes and butter: drink the Soma mixed with curds: sit down upon this sacred grass (strewn by) the worshipper: grant ample possessions to him who depends upon thee.

¹ There is no verb in the text, but the commentator considers that 'come' is brought on from the preceding stanza, and adds, when the Soma is poured forth.
8. Rejoice, fierce Indra, according to thy pleasure: let these libations reach thee: invoked of many, may these our invocations ascend to thee: may this praise influence thee for our protection.

9. Friends, when the libations are effused, do you satisfy that liberal Indra with the Soma-juices: let there be plenty for him, that (he may provide) for our nourishment: Indra never neglects the care of him who presents copious libations.

10. Thus has Indra, the lord of the opulent, been glorified by the Bharadwajas, upon the libation being effused, that he may be the director of his eulogist (to virtue), that Indra may be the giver of all desirable riches.

ANUVAKA III.

SÓKTA I. (XXIV.)

The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. At the rites at which the Soma (is offered) the exhilaration (produced) in Indra is a shower (of benefits to the offerer); so is the chaunted hymn with the (recited) prayer: therefore the drinker of the Soma, the partaker of the stale Soma, Maghavan, is to be propitiated by men with praises: dweller in heaven, he is the lord of sacred songs, unwearied in the protection (of his votaries).

2. The surpasser (of foes), a hero, the friend of man, the discriminator, the hearer of the invocation, the great protector of his adorers, the giver of dwellings, the ruler of men, the cherisher of his worshippers, the bestower of food, grants us, when glorified at the sacrifice, (abundant) sustenance.

3. Mighty hero, by thy magnitude, (the extent) of heaven and earth is exceeded, as the axle by the (circumference of the) wheels: invoked of many, thy numerous benefits, Indra, spread out like the branches of a tree.

4. Accomplisher of many acts, the energies of thee who art (ever) active (congregate from all directions), like the converging tracks of cattle: they are the bonds (of foes), themselves unfettered, munificent Indra, like the tethers of (many) calves.

5. Indra achieves one act to-day, another to-morrow, evil and good repeatedly: may he, and Mitra, Varuna, Pusana, Arya, be on this occasion promoters of the desired result.

6. By praises and by sacrifices, Indra, (men) bring down (what they desire) from thee, as the waters (descend) from the top of the mountain: desirous of food, they approach thee, who art accessible by praise, with these their eulogies, as (eagerly as) coursers rush to battle.

7. May the person of that vast Indra, celebrated by praises and prayers, ever increase; Indra, whom neither years nor months make old, nor days enfeeble.

2 Vatánám na tantayah, like long ropes used to tie a number of calves together, is Sāyana’s translation.

8. Glorified by us, he bows not down to the robust, nor to the resolute, nor to the persevering (worshipper) who is instigated by the (irreligious) Dasyus: the lofty mountains are easy of access to Indra; to him there is a bottom in the (lowest) deep.

9. Powerful Indra, drinker of the Soma-juice, (actuated) by a profound and comprehensive (purpose), grant us food and strength: be ever diligent, benevolent Indra, for our protection by day and by night.

10. Accompany, Indra, the leader in battle for his protection; defend him against a near (or distant) foe; protect him from an enemy, whether in (his) house or in a forest, and may we, blessed with excellent male descendants, be happy for a hundred winters.

Sūkta II. (XXV.)
Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Powerful Indra, with these (thy protections), whether the protection be little, great, or middling, defend us for the destruction of our foes: supply us, fierce Indra, who art mighty, with those viands (that are needed).

2. (Induced) by these (praises), protecting our assailing host, baffle, Indra, the wrath of the enemy: (induced) by them, overthrow, on the part of the Ārya, all the servile races everywhere abiding.

1 The text has only ābhīh, by these, which Śāyana explains asmacāndīyābhīh stutībhīh, by our praises; or it might have been thought to refer to the preceding stanza, ābhīr-ātībhīh with these protections.

2 Visvā abhiyuyo vishúchitr āryāya viṣo ava tārīr-dāsih:
3. Annihilate, Indra, the strength of those who, whether kinsmen or unrelated, present themselves before us, exerting themselves as adversaries: enfeeble their prowess, put them to flight.

4. The hero, (favoured by thee), assuredly slays the (hostile) hero by his bodily prowess, when, both excelling in personal strength, they strive together in conflict, or when, clamorous, they dispute for (the sake of) sons, of grandsons, of cattle, of water, of land.

5. But thee (no one) resists, neither the hero, nor the fleet runner, nor the resolute, nor the combatant confiding (in his valour); neither of these, Indra, is a match for thee: thou art superior to all these persons.

6. Of both these (disputants), that one acquires wealth whose priests invoke (Indra) at the sacrifice, whether they contend emulous for (the overthrow of) a powerful enemy, or for a dwelling peopled with dependants.

7. Therefore, Indra, when thy people tremble (with fear), protect them; be to them a defender: may those who are our chief leaders be enjoyers (of thy favour), as well as those (thy) worshippers who have placed us foremost (to perform the sacrifice).

8. All (power) has been successively conceded verily to thee, Indra, who art mighty, for the destruction of the foe: suitable vigour, suitable strength in battle (has been given) to thee, adorable Indra, by the gods.

9. So (glorified by us), Indra, animate us (to pious, malevolent (foes), and may we, Bharadwajas, praising thee, assuredly possess habitations, with (abundant) food.

Sūkta III. (XXVI.)
The deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Hear us, Indra, when, offering libations, we call upon thee for obtaining abundant food: grant us decided protection when on a future day men are assembling for battle.

2. The son of Vājini, (Bharadwaja), offering (sacrificial) viands, invokes thee for (the sake of) acquiring obtainable and abundant food: (he invokes) thee, Indra, the preserver of the good, the defender (from the wicked), when enemies (assail him): he depends upon thee when, lifting up his fist, he is fighting for (his) cattle.

3. Thou hast animated the sage with (the hope of) obtaining food: thou hast cut to pieces Sushna for Kutsa, the donor of the oblation: thou hast struck off the head (of Sambara), imagining himself invulnerable,\(^1\) intending to give pleasure to Atithigyan.

4. Thou hast brought to Vrishabha a great war-chariot; thou hast protected him warring for ten days:
thou hast slain Tugra along with Vetasu:\(^2\) thou hast exalted Tuji glorifying thee.

\(^1\) The text has only amarmapah, which the commentator explains marmakinam átmánam manyaimánasya, of him thinking himself devoid of any fatally vulnerable part: he applies it also to Sambara.

5. Indra, who art the subduer (of foes), thou hast achieved a glorious (deed), inasmuch as thou hast scattered, hero, the hundreds and thousands (of the host of Śambara), hast slain the slave Śambara (when issuing) from the mountain,¹ and hast protected, Divodāsa with marvellous protections.

6. Delighted by libations offered with faith, thou hast consigned Chumuri to the sleep (of death) on behalf of Dabhīti, and, bestowing (the maiden) Rājī upon Pithinās,² thou hast, by thy contrivance,³ destroyed sixty thousand (warriors) at once.

7. May I, with my fellow-worshippers, obtain that thy most excellent felicity and vigour, which, most mighty Indra, associate of heroes, the pious celebrate (as bestowed) by thee, who art the humiliator (of foes), the protector of the three (worlds).

8. May we, adorable Indra, thy friends, at this thy worship, offered for (the acquirement of) wealth, be held most dear to thee: may Kṣhatrasṛi, the son of Pratardana, (my patron), be most illustrious through the destruction of foes, and the attainment of riches.

² Rajim Pithinase dasayan: Rājī is explained by the scholiast staddākhyām kanyām a maiden so called; or it may be a synonyme of rājyaṃ, kingdom, dominion.

³ Sakhyā, which the scholiast renders prajnayā; but it may also import karmanā, by act or exploit: as to the number of slain, although probably Asuras are intended, yet the specification intimates familiarity with numerous armies and sanguinary conflicts.
Súkta IV. (XXVII.)
The deity, Rishi, and metre as before, but in the last stanza, gift or generosity is considered to be the divinity.

1. What has INDRA done in the exhilaration of this (Soma) ? what has he done on quaffing this (libation) ? what has he done in friendship for this (Soma) ? what have former, what have recent adorers obtained from thee in the chamber of this (libation) ?

2. Verily, in the exhilaration of this (Soma) INDRA has done a good deed; on quaffing the libation (he has done) a good deed; (he has done) a good deed in friendship for this Soma: former as well as recent adorers have obtained good of thee in the chamber (of the libation).

3. We acknowledge no one, MAGHAVAN, of greatness equal to thine, nor one of like affluence, nor one of equally glorifiable riches, nor has (such as) thy power been ever seen (in any other).

4. Such as thy power (is) it has been comprehended (by us) as that wherewith thou hast slain the race of VARAŚIKHA, when the boldest (of them) was demolished by the noise of thy thunderbolt hurled with (all thy) force.

5. Favouring ABHYAVARTIN, the son of CHAYAMĀNA, INDRA destroyed the race of VARAŚIKHA, killing the descendants of VRĀCHĪVAT, (who were stationed) on

1 Vṛichīvats is the first-born of the sons of Varasikha, whence the rest are named: Hariyūpiyā is the name either of a river or a city according to the comment.

2 Trinśach-chhatam varminah: Sāyana makes the number one hundred and thirty, trinśadadhikapatam, of havachabhitas, wearers of breastplates or armour.

3 The same as the Hariyūpiyā, according to Sāyana.

4 There are several princes of this name in the Purānas: one of them, the son of Harayaṇa, was one of the five Panchāla princes: the name is also that of a people probably in the same direction, the north-west of India, or towards the Panjab: Vishnu Purāṇa, pp. 198, 454: what is meant by the phrase he gave up, parādāt, Turvasa to Srinjaya may be conjectured but is not explained.

nation of the descendant of Prithu cannot be destroyed.¹

Sūkta V. (XXVIII.)

The Rishi is as before, Bharadwāja; the metre of the three first stanzas is Jagati, of the next four Trishtubh, of the last Anushtubh; the deities of the whole are the Cows, except in the second verse and part of the last, which may be applied to Indra.

1. May the cows come and bring good fortune; let them lie down in (our) stalls and be pleased with us: may the many-coloured kine here be prolific, and yield milk for Indra on many dawns.

2. Indra grants the desires of the man who offers to him sacrifice and praise; he ever bestows upon him wealth, and deprives him not of that which is his own: again and again increasing his riches, he places the devout man in an inaccessible fortress.²

3. Let not the Cows he lost: let no thief carry them away: let no hostile weapon fall upon them:

¹ Dūndaseyam dakshinā pārthavānām: nāsaya tum asakyā is the translation of the first: the last implies Abhyāvaraitīn, as descended from Prithu, the plural being used honorifically: the name of this member of the race of Prithu does not occur apparently in the Purāṇas.

² Abhinna khyē: the first is explained satrubhirahketavye, not to be breached by enemies; and the second is considered the same as khila, commonly, waste land, but here said to mean apratihatasthadānam, an unassailed or unassailable place, one which is unapproachable by others, anyair gantumarasya sthale.

³ Na tā nasantī: in this we have the third person plural of the present tense indicative mood, but Sāyana assigns it the force of the imperative, na nasyantu: in the following, na duhāti taskarat, na vyathir ādadhārshati, we have the Vaidik imperative, Let.
may the master of the cattle be long possessed of those with which he sacrifices, and which he presents to the gods.

4. Let not the dust-spurning (war)-horse reach them; nor let them fall in the way of sacrificial consecration:¹ let the cattle of the man who offers sacrifice wander about at large and without fear.

5. May the Cows be (for our) affluence: may Indra grant me cattle: may the Cows yield the food of the first libation: these Cows, oh men, are the Indra,² the Indra whom I desire with heart and mind.

6. Do you, Cows, give us nourishment: render the emaciated, the unlovely body the reverse: do you, whose lowing is auspicious, make my dwelling prosperous: great is the abundance that is attributed to you in religious assemblies.³

¹ Na sahskritatram abhyupayanti: Sāyana interprets visa-sanādisanskāram nābhyupagachchhantu, let them not go nigh to the consecration of immolation and the rest, as if he understood the Veda to authorise the sacrifice of cattle as victims: but the use of metonymy is so common, that perhaps by cows, in this place, we are to understand their produce, milk and butter, which are constantly offered.

² A rather strong personation, and which the scholiast weakens by understanding it to mean that the cows may be considered as Indra, as they nourish him by their milk and butter presented in sacrifices: so, perhaps, the first phrase, gāvo bhagah, which he renders māhyam dhanam bhavantu, may they be to me affluence, may mean the cows are Bhaga, the impersonations of the deity of good fortune and riches.

³ Brīhad vo vaya uchyate sabhāsu: great of you the food is said in assemblies: Sāyana understands it rather differently, great is the food given to you in assemblies, it is given by all, sarvaiś dūyate ityartha.
7. May you, Cows, have many calves grazing upon good pasture, and drinking pure water at accessible ponds: may no thief be your master; no beast of prey (assail you), and may the (fatal) weapon of Rudra¹ avoid you.

8. Let the nourishment of the Cows be solicited, let the vigour of the bull (be requested), Indra, for thy invigoration.²

SÚKTA VI. (XXIX.).

The deity is Indra; the Rishi Bharadwaja; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. Your priests, (oh worshippers), propitiate Indra for his friendship, offering great (praise), and desirous of his favour;³ for the wielder of the thunderbolt is the giver of vast (wealth): worship him, therefore, who is mighty and benevolent, (to obtain) his protection.

2. In whose hand⁴ (riches) good for man are ac-

¹ Rudra is here said to be the Supreme Being, identical with time, kālātmahasya paramesvarasya.
² That is, the milk and butter which are required for Indra's nutriment are dependent upon the cows bearing calves.
³ Maho yantah sumataye chahānáh, may also, according to Sáyana, be rendered mahat karma anutishthantah, performing great worship, and stutim sabdayantah, sounding or uttering praise.
⁴ Yasmin haste may also be interpreted, according to a note cumulated, the chariot-mounted in a golden car; in whose arms the rays of light (are collected); whose vigorous horses, yoked (to his car, convey him) on the road (of the firmament).

3. They offer adoration at thy feet to acquire prosperity, for thou art the over thrower of enemies by (thy) strength, the wielder of the thunderbolt, the bestower of donations: leader (of rites), thou art like the rolling sun, wearing in the sight (of all) a graceful and ever moving form.¹

4. That libation is most perfectly mixed when, upon its being effused, the cakes are baked, and the barley is fried, and the priests, glorifying Indra, offering the (sacrificial) food, and reciting holy prayers, are approaching most nigh to the gods.

5. No limit of thy strength has been assigned; heaven and earth are intimidated by its greatness: the pious worshipper, hastening (to sacrifice), and earnestly performing worship, gratifies thee with the offering,² as (the cowkeeper satisfies) the herds with water.

6. Thus may the mighty Indra be successfully invoked; he, the azure-chinned,³ the giver of wealth, cited from Yásha, Nirúkta, 1. 7, in whom, the slayer of foes, yasmin hantari.

² Utt for útyú, is here explained tarpakena havishá, with the satisfying oblation.

³ Harisípra, haritovarnah sipro yasya: he whose chin or nose is of a green colour, alluding possibly to the tint of the sky, considered as a feature of Indra.
whether by coming or not coming¹ (to the sacrifice); and may he who is of unequalled strength destroy, as soon as manifested, many opposing (evil spirits) and (hostile) Dasyus.

Sūkta VII. (XXX.)

Deity, Rishi, and metre as before

1. Again has Indra increased (in strength) for (the display of) heroism: he, the chief (of all), the undecayable, bestows riches (on his votaries): Indra surpasses heaven and earth: a mere portion of him is equal to both earth and heaven.

2. I now glorify his vast and Asura-destroying (vigour): those exploits that he has determined (to achieve) no one can resist: (by him) the sun was made daily visible;² and he, the doer of great deeds, spread out the spacious regions (of the universe).

3. At present, verily as of old, that act, (the liberation) of the rivers, is effective; whereby thou hast directed them on their course: the mountains have settled (at thy command) like (men) seated at their meals: doer of great deeds, by thee have the worlds been rendered stationary.

4. Verily it is the truth, Indra, that there is no other such as thou, no god nor mortal is (thy) superior: thou hast slain Ahi obstructing the waters, thou hast set them free (to flow) to the ocean.

¹ Ut anütt are explained ágamānena, anágamanena, by coming or not coming: swayam ágato anágato api stotribhyo dhanamprayachchhatai, whether he have come himself or not, he gives wealth to the praisers.
² That is, by Indra’s breaking asunder the clouds.
5. Thou hast set the obstructed waters free to flow in all directions: thou hast fractured the solid (barrier) of the cloud: thou art lord over the people of the world, making manifest together the sun, the sky, and the dawn.

SÓKTA VIII. (XXXI.)
The deity is Indra; the Rishi, Suhotra; the metre is Trishtubh, except in the fourth verse in which it is Sakhvart.

Varga III.

1. Thou, lord of riches, art the chief (sovereign) over riches: thou holdest men in thy two hands, and men glorify thee with various praises for (the sake of obtaining) sons, and valiant grandsons, and rain.

3. Through fear of thee, Indra, all the regions of the firmament cause the unfallen (rain) to descend: the heavens, the earth, the mountains, the forests, all the solid (universe) is alarmed at thy approach.

3. Thou, Indra, with Kutsa, hast warred against the inexhaustible Sushna: thou hast overthrown Kuyava in battle: in conflict thou hast carried off the wheel (of the chariot) of the sun:¹ thou hast driven away the malignant (spirits).

4. Thou hast destroyed the hundred impregnable cities of the Dasyu,² Šambara, when, sagacious Indra, thou, who art brought by the libation, thou hast bestowed in thy liberality riches upon Divodasa presenting to thee libations, and upon Bhagadwaja hymning thy praise.

² Šambara is more usually styled an Asura, and hence it would appear that Dasyu and Asura are synonymous, so that the latter is equally applied to the unbelieving or anti-Hindu mortal inhabitant of India.
5. Leader of true heroes, possessor of infinite wealth, mount thy formidable car for the arduous conflict: come to me, pursuer of a forward path, for my protection: do thou, who art renowned, proclaim (our renown) amongst men.

Sūkta IX. (XXXII.)

Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. I have fabricated with my mouth unprecedented, comprehensive, and gratifying praises to that mighty, heroic, powerful, rapid, adorable, and ancient wielder of the thunderbolt.¹

2. He has obtained the parent (worlds, heaven and earth), with the sun, for the sake of the sages, (the Angirasas, and, glorified (by them), he has shattered the mountain: repeatedly wished for by his adorers intently meditating (upon him), he has cast off the fetters of the kine.

3. He, the achiever of many deeds, together with his worshippers ever offering oblations upon bended knees, has overcome (the Asuras) for (the rescue of) the cows: friendly with his friends (the Angirasas), far-seeing with the far-seeing, the destroyer of cities has demolished the strong cities (of the Asuras).

4. Showerer (of benefits), propitiated by praise, come to him who glorifies thee, to make him happy amongst men with abundant food, with exceeding strength, and with young (mares) with numerous colts.²

¹ This verse occurs Sama-Veda i. 322, but the reading of the last portion somewhat varies in the printed edition: instead of vachánsi ásá stháviráya taksham, we have vachánsi asmai stháviráya takshuk, they have fabricated praises to that ancient, &c.
² Nivyábhikh puruvirábhikh are translated by Sāyāna, navata-
5. Endowed with natural force, possessed of (swift) horses, INDRA, the overcomer of adversaries, (sets free) the waters at the southern (declination): thus liberated the waters expand daily to the insatiable goal whence there is no returning.

SÚKTA X. (XXXIII.)

The deity and metre as before; the Rishi is ŚUNAHOTRA.

Varga V.

1. Showerer (of benefits), INDRA, grant us a son who shall be most vigorous, a delighter (of thee by praise), a pious sacrificer, a liberal giver, who, mounted on a good steed, shall overthrow numerous good steeds, and conquer opposing enemies in combats.

2. Men of various speech invoke thee, INDRA, for their defence in war: thou, with the sages, (the ĀNGIRASAS), hast slain the PĀṇIS: protected by thee, the liberal (worshipper) obtains food.

3. Thou, hero, INDRA, destroyed both (classes of) enemies, (both) Dūsa and Ārya, adversaries: chief leader of leaders, thou cuttest thy foes in pieces in battles with well-plied weapons, as (woodcutters fell) the forests.

rābbhiḥ bahumām virayitrībhīr-vadavābhikḥ, with very new or young mares bearing male progeny of many.

1 The text has only apo dakhšiṇataḥ, the waters from or at the south: there is no verb: Sāyaṇa considers the dakhšināyana to be intended the sun’s course south from the northern limit of the tropics, which, in India, is in fact the commencement of the rainy season.

2 Vivāchah the commentator renders vividhastutirūpā vācha yeshām, they of whom the speech has the form of many kinds of praise, which meaning he assigned to the same word in the first verse of Śūkta xxxi.: he is probably right, although the more simple explanation would be, of various speech.
4. Do thou, Indra, who art all-pervading, be a friend, and a protector with irreproachable protections for our prosperity; when warring in number-thinning conflicts,¹ we invoke thee for the acquirement of wealth.²

5. Do thou, Indra, now and at (all) other times be verily ours: be the bestower of happiness according to our condition and in this manner, worshipping at dawn,³ and glorifying thee, may we abide in the brilliant and unbounded felicity of thee who art mighty.

SUKTA XI. (XXXIV.)
Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Many praises, Indra, are concentrated in thee: from thee abundant commendations diversely proceed:⁴ to thee, formerly and at present, the praises of the sages, their prayers and hymns, vie (in glorifying) Indra.

² Swarshátá is explained sushtu arániyam dhanam tasya sambhajanáartham, very precious wealth for the sake of enjoying it, that is, by the spoils of the enemy.

⁴ Vi cha tvad yantí manisháh, twattah stotriñam matayo vívidham nirgachchhanti: from thee the praises, or approbations of the praisers variously go forth, is the explanation of Sáyana,
2. May that Indra ever be propitiated by us who is the invoked of many, mighty and chief, especially honoured by sacrifices, and to whom, as to a conveyance, we are attached for (the attainment of) great strength.

3. All praises contributing to his exaltation proceed to Indra, whom no acts, no words can harm, since hundreds and thousands of adorers glorify him who is entitled to praise, and so afford him gratification.

4. The mixed Soma-juice has been prepared for Indra, (to be offered) on the day (of sacrifice), with reverence-like adoration, when praises, together with offerings, yield him increase, as when water (revives) a man in desert a waste.

5. To this Indra has this earnest eulogy been addressed by the devout, in order that the all-pervading Indra may be our defender and exalter in the great conflict with (our) foes.

Sūkta XII. (XXXV.)

The deity and metre as before; the Rishi is Nārā.

Varga VII.

1. When may our prayers (be with thee) in thy

1 Divyarchevo máṣā is explained divase sautye ahani archana-sádhanena stotreneva máñena, with respect, like praise, the instrument of worship on the day for the libation: the scholiast cites in illustration a mantra beginning Vṛitraṅgha, slayer of Vṛitra, &c. but he also proposes another explanation, divi dyotake, archeva arkah sūrya iva, máṣa-máṣas chandramah sa iva, which, with the following word, mimiksha, explained vṛish-tvadahānām sektā, the sprinkler of rain-waters, is applied to Indra, ya Indro yantītate, that Indra who is the shedder of rain, like the sun and the moon in heaven: this is scarcely more satisfactory than the interpretation first given, although that is not very explicit.

chariot? when wilt thou grant to thine adorer the (means of) maintaining thousands? when wilt thou recompense my adoration with riches? when wilt thou render sacred rites productive of food?

2. When, INDRA, wilt thou bring together leaders with leaders, heroes with heroes, and give us victory in battles? when wilt thou conquer from the enemy the threefold-food-supplying cattle?¹ (when wilt thou grant) us, INDRA, diffusive wealth?

3. When, most vigorous INDRA, wilt thou grant thy worshipper that food which is all-sufficing? when wilt thou combine (in thyself) worship and praises? when wilt thou render oblations productive of cattle?

4. Grant, INDRA, to thine adorer (abundant) food, productive of cattle, pleasant with horses, and renowned for vigour: multiply nourishment, and (cherish) the kine easily milked, and render them so that they may be resplendent.

5. Direct him who is actually our adversary into a different (course):² mighty INDRA, who art a hero, the destroyer (of enemies), therefore art thou glorified: never may I desist from the praise of the giver of pure (gifts):³ satisfy, sage INDRA, the ANGIRASAS with food.

¹ Tridhātu gāh: cows having three elements of nutriment, as milk, curds, and butter.
² That is, consign him to death, a course different from that of living beings.
³ Má niraram suhradughasya dhenok is, literally, may I not cease from the cow the yielder of pure milk; but dhenok is interpreted by the scholiast in this place vāchas, stotrāt, from praise; or he admits as an alternative, may I never depart from the milk cow given, Indra, by thee.
Sōkta XIII. (XXXVI.)
The deity, Ṛishi, and metre as before.

Varga VIII.

1. Truly are thy exhilarations beneficial to all men: truly are the riches which exist on earth (beneficial to all men); truly art thou the distributor of food; wherefore thou maintainest vigour amongst the gods.

2. The worshipper praises especially the strength of that Indra; verily they rely upon him for heroic deeds: they offer sacrifices to him as the seizer of an uninterrupted series of foes, their assailant, their subduer, and also for the destruction of Vṛitra.

3. The associated Maruts, heroic energies, virile strength, and the Nīyat steeds, attend upon Indra, and praises powerful in sacred song centre in him as rivers flow into the ocean.

4. Glorified by us, Indra, let flow the stream of much-delighting, home-conferring affluence, for thou art the unequalled lord of men, the sole sovereign of all the world.

5. Hear, Indra, (the praises) that may be heard (by thee), thou, who art gratified by our adoration, and, like the sun, (prevail) over the ample riches of the enemy: endowed with strength, being glorified in every age, rendered comprehensible by (sacrificial) food, be to us no other (than such as thou hast been).

1 Syūmagribhe, syūtān avichchhedena varttamānān satrān grihyate, to him who seizes enemies being lines or threads without interruption.

2 Dyaur-na bhūmadhi rayo aryah; arer dhanāni bahutarāṇi sûrya tva abhibhavasi: the prefix abhi, as is frequent in the Veda, being put for the compound verb abhibhū.

3 Aso yathā nah is, literally, not he as to us: Sāyana, to make this intelligible, says, yena prakāreṇa asmāham asādharareṇa asi.
Sókta XIV. (XXXVII.)

Deity and metre as before; the Rishi is Bhradwája.

1. Fierce Indra, let thy harnessed steeds bring down thy all-desired chariot: thy devoted adorer verily invokes thee: may we to-day, partaking of thine exhilaration, increase to-day (in prosperity).

2. The green Soma-juices flow at our sacrifice, and, purified, proceed direct into the pitcher: may the ancient, illustrious Indra, the sovereign of the exhilarating Soma libation, drink of this our offering.\(^1\)

3. May the everywhere-going, straight-proceeding, chariot-bearing steeds, bring the mighty Indra in his strong-wheeled car to our rite: let not the ambrosial Soma waste in the wind.

4. The very strong Indra, the performer of many great deeds instigates the donation of this (institutor of the ceremony) amongst the opulent, whereby, wielder of the thunderbolt, thou removest sin, and, firm of purpose, bestowest riches upon the worshippers.

5. Indra is the donor of substantial food: may the very illustrious Indra increase (in glory) through our praises: may Indra, the destroyer (of enemies), be the especial slayer of Vritra: may he, the animator, the quick-mover, grant us those (riches which we desire).

Sókta XV. (XXXVIII.)

Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. May the most marvellous Indra drink from this Varga X.

\(^{1}\) The Soma-juice, it is said, if allowed to remain some time in the vessel containing it, may be dried up by the air: Indra is therefore urged to drink it before it evaporates.
(our cup): may he acknowledge our earnest and brilliant invocation: may the munificent (Indra) accept the offering and the praiseworthy adoration at the sacrifice of the devout worshipper.

2. Reciting (his praise, the worshipper) calls aloud, that by the sound he may reach the ears of Indra, although abiding afar off: may this invocation of the deity, inducing him (to come), bring Indra to my presence.

3. I glorify thee with hymns and with pious worship, the ancient undecaying Indra, for in him are oblations and praises concentrated, and great adoration is enhanced (when addressed to him);

4. Indra, whom the sacrifice, whom the libation exalts, whom the oblation, the praises, the prayers, the adoration exalt, whom the course of day and night exalts, whom months, and years, and days exalt.

5. So, wise Indra; may we to-day propitiate thee who art manifested, to overcome (our foes), thee who art greatly augmenting, mighty and free, for (the sake of) wealth, fame, and protection, and for the destruction of (our) enemies.

Śūktā XVI. (XXXIX.)

Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Drink, Indra, of that our sweet, exhilarating, inspiring, celestial, fruit-yielding Soma, commended by the wise, and entitled to praise and preparation:¹

¹ Several of the epithets in the text are unusual, and, agreeably to European notions, very inapplicable to a beverage: they are, severally, mandra; exhilarating; havi, explained vihrama, heroic; dīya, divine; vahini rendered vodha, bearing fruit; vipramanman, of which sages are the praisers, stotāraḥ; vachana laudable, stutya; sachana to be served or honoured, serya.
bestow upon him who glorifies thee, divine (Indra), food, the chiefest of which is cattle.¹

2. Determined (to recover) the cattle hidden in the mountain, associated with the celebrators of pure rites, (the Angirasas), and animated by (their) veracious (praise), this (Indra) fractured the infrangible rock of Bala, and overwhelmed the Panis with reproaches.

3. This Soma,² Indra, (quaffed by thee), has lighted up the unlustrous nights, and days and nights, and years: (the gods) of old have established it as the ensign of days, and it has made the dawns generated in light.

4. This radiant (Indra) has illumined the non-radiant (worlds): he has pervaded many dawns with true lustre: the benefactor of men moves in (a chariot) drawn by horses, harnessed by praise, laden with riches.

5. Sovereign of old, do thou, when glorified, bestow upon him who praises thee, and to whom affluence is due, abundant food: grant to the worshipper water, plants, innoxious woods, cattle, horses, and men.

Isho yuvaswa grnate go agrah is explained annam sanyojaya, combine or supply food to the praiser: yasam isham gavo agre, of which viands, cows are in the first place: is this to be understood literally? and were cows, in the time of the Vedas, a principal article of food? of course a Brahman would interpret it metonymically, cows being put for their produce, milk and butter: Sāyana is silent, but there does not seem to be any thing in the Veda that militates against the literal interpretation.

² The text has ayam Induh, which, as a synonyme of Soma, implies both the moon and the Soma-juice: it is the former that is here held in view at the expense of consistency: according to Sāyana, Soma is here chandrāmā nabhasi vartamānah, the same as the moon present in the sky, and as, chandragaty-Deity, Ṛishi, and metre as before.

Varga XII.

1. Drink, Indra, (the Soma) that is effused for thy exhilaration: stop thy friendly steeds: let them loose: sitting in our society, respond to our hymns: 1 give food to him who lauds and worships thee.

2. Drink, Indra, of this (libation), of which thou, mighty one, hast drunk as soon as born, for excitement to (great) deeds; that Soma-juice which the kine, the priests, the waters, the stones, combine to prepare for thy drinking.

3. The fire is kindled; the Soma, Indra, is effused: let thy vigorous horses bring thee hither: I invoke thee, Indra, with a mind wholly devoted to thee: come for our great prosperity;

4. Thou hast ever gone (to similar rites): come now with a great mind disposed to drink the Soma: hear these our praises: may the worshipper present to thee (sacrificial) food for (the nourishment of) thy person.

5. Whether, Indra, thou abide in the distant heaven, in any other place, or in thine own abode, or adhinatwāt tithivibhāgāḥ, the divisions of lunar days are dependent upon the motions of the moon, it may be said to be the cause of days, weeks, months, and years, the first term, aktān, is said by the scholiast to imply fortnights, months, and years, or the longer periods of time: the phrase in the parenthesis is not in the text, but is supplied by the scholiast, tvayā pīyamanāḥ, to be drunk by thee, but it is justified by the pronoun ayam, this, which could not apply, as something present to the moon.

1 Utaprayāya gate ā nishādyā: prayāya is explained asābhik kritam stotram upasloka, return verses to the praise made by us.
wheresoever (thou mayst be), from thence do thou, who art propitiated by praise, putting to thy steeds, protect, together with the Maruts, well pleased, our sacrifice, for our preservation.

Sôkta XVIII. (XLI.)
Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Unirascible (Indra), come to the sacrifice: the effused juices are purified for thee: they flow, thunderer, (into the pitchers), as cows go to their stalls: come, Indra, the first of those who are to be worshipped.

2. Drink, Indra, with that well-formed and expanded tongue wherewith thou ever quaffest the juice of the sweet (Soma): before thee stands the ministrant priest: let thy bolt, Indra, designed (to recover) the cattle, be hurled (against thy foes).

3. This dropping, omniiform Soma, the showerer (of benefits), has been duly prepared for Indra, the showerer (of rain): lord of steeds, ruler over all, mighty (Indra), drink this over which thou hast of old presided, which is thy food.

4. The effused Soma, Indra, is more excellent than that which is not effused: it is better (qualified) to give pleasure to thee, who art capable of judging: overcomer (of enemies), approach this sacrifice, and thereby perfect all thy powers.

5. We invoke thee, Indra, come down: may the Soma be sufficient for (the satisfaction of) thy person: exult Satakraţu with the libations, defend us in combats, and against the people.1

SUKTA XIX. (XLII.)

Deity and Ṛishi as before; the metre of the first three stanzas is Anushṭubh, of the last Brahīṭā.

Varga XIV.

1. Offer, (priests), the libation to him who is desirous to drink; who knows all things; whose movements are all-sufficient; who goes readily (to sacrifices); the leader (of holy rites), following no one. ¹

2. Proceed to the presence of that deep quaffer of the Soma, with the Soma-juices; to the vigorous Indra with vessels (filled) with the effused libations. ²

3. When, with the effused and flowing Soma-juices, you come into his presence, the sagacious (Indra) knows your wish, and the suppresser (of enemies) assuredly grants it, whatever it may be. ³

4. Offer, priest, to him, and him (only) this libation of (sacrificial) food, and may he ever defend us against the malignity of every superable adversary.

SUKTA XX. (XLIII.)

The deity and Ṛishi as before; the metre is Usñih.

Varga XV.

1. This Soma, in the exhilaration of which it is known⁴ that thou hast subdued Śambara for (the sake of) Divodāsa, is poured out, Indra, for thee: drink.⁵

³ Tam tam id ektate: the repetition of the relative with reference to the antecedent kāmam may perhaps be so rendered.

⁴ Yasya tyachchambaram made: tyat is explained by Sāyana, as equivalent to tat prasiddham yathā bhavati tathā, such as that which is notorious.

⁵ Sāma-Veda, i. 392.
2. This Soma, the exhilarating draught of which, when fresh effused (at dawn), or at noon, or at the last (or evening worship), thou cherishest, is poured out, Indra, for thee: drink.

3. This Soma, in the exhilaration of which thou hast liberated the cattle, firm (fastened) within the rock, is poured out, Indra, for thee: drink.

4. This Soma, exhilarated (by drinking) of which (sacrificial) food thou possessest the might of Maghavan, is poured out, Indra, for thee: drink.

ANUVĀKA IV.

Sūkta I. (XLIV.)

The deity is Indra; the Rishi is Samyu, the son of Brihaspati; the metre of the first six stanzas is Anuṣṭubh, of the next three Virāj, of the rest Tristubh.

1. Opulent Indra, the Soma that abounds with riches, and is most resplendent with glories, is poured out: it is thy exhilaration Indra, lord of the offering.

2. The Soma, possessor of felicity, which gives thee delight, and which is the bestower of riches on thy votaries, is poured out: it is thy exhilaration, Indra, lord of the offering.

3. The Soma, whereby thou art augmented in strength, and, together with thy defenders, (the

4. (Worshippers), for you I glorify that INDRA who disappoints not (his adorers); the lord of strength, the all-subduing, the leader (of rites), the most beautiful, the beholder of the universe.

5. The divine heaven and earth adore that vigour of his, which our hymns augment, the appropriator of the riches of the foe.

6. (Worshippers), the efficacy of your eulogy is to be manifested to that INDRA, whose protections, like (those) of a sensible man,¹ are displayed as abiding along with him.

7. INDRA appreciates him who is skilled (in holy rites): a recent friend, quaffing (the libation), he heaps excellent (wealth) upon the devout: partaking of (the sacrificial) food, (and brought) by his robust agitators² (of the earth, his steeds), he, through his benevolence, is a protector to his friends.

8. The Soma, creator (of all), on the path of sacrifice, has been drunk: the worshippers have presented it to gratify the mind (of INDRA): may he, the humiliator (of his foes), possessing a vast body, propitiated by our praises, become manifest to our view.

¹ Vi̇po na, medhávīna iva; that is, the protective measures or expedients of a sensible or wise man are capable for all affairs, sarva kāryakūtalāḥ.

² Sthulābhhiḥ dhauratābhhiḥ is explained sthulābhhiḥ kampana-kāriṇābhhiḥ, with the stout causes of trembling: the scholiast supplies vaḍāvābhhiḥ yuktāh, joined with such mares; or the epithets, although feminine, the scholiast says may be applied to the Maruts.
9. Bestow upon us most brilliant vigour: oppose the numerous enemies of thy worshippers: grant us, for our pious acts, abundant food: secure us in the enjoyment of wealth.

10. Indra, possessor of affluence, we have recourse to thee, the bountiful: lord of steeds, be not unfavourable to us: no other kinsman is beheld (by us) amongst men: why else have they called thee the bestower of wealth?

11. Give us not up, showerer (of benefits), to the obstructor (of our rites): relying upon the friendship of thee, the lord of riches, may we be unharmed: many are the hindrances (opposed) to thee amongst men: slay those who make no libations, root out those who present no offerings.

12. As Indra, when thundering, raises the clouds, so he (heaps upon his worshippers) riches of horses and cattle: thou, Indra, art the ancient upholder of the sacrificer: let not the opulent wrong thee, not presenting (oblations).

13. Ministrant priests offer libations to the mighty Indra, for he is their king, he who has been exalted by the ancient and recent hymns of adoring sages.

14. In the exhilaration of this Soma, the wise Indra, irresistible, has destroyed numerous opposing enemies: offer the sweet-flavoured beverage to that hero, the handsome-chinned, to drink.

15. May Indra be the drinker of this effused Soma-juice, and, exhilarated by it, become the destroyer of Vritra by the thunderbolt: may he come, although from afar, to our sacrifice, (he who is) the giver of dwellings, the upholder of the celebrator (of religious rites).
16. May this ambrosia, the appropriate beverage of Indra, of which he is fond, be quaffed (by him), so that it may inspire the divinity with favourable feelings (towards us), and that he may remove from us our adversaries, and (all) iniquity.

17. Exhilarated by it, valiant Maghavan, slay our unfriendly adversaries, whether kinsmen or unrelated (to us): put to flight, Indra, hostile armies menacing us (with their weapons), and slay them.

18. Affluent Indra, facilitate to us (the acquirement of) vast riches in these our battles: (enable us) to gain the victory: make us prosperous with rain, and with sons and grandsons.

19. Let thy vigorous steeds, harnessed of their own will, drawing thy wish-bestowing chariot, guided by shower-yielding reins, quick-moving, hastening towards us, youthful, thunder-bearing, well-yoked, bring thee to the bountiful, exhilarating (libation).

20. Showerer (of benefits), thy vigorous watersheding steeds, like the waves (of the sea), exulting, are harnessed to thy car; for they, (the priests), offer to thee, the showerer (of benefits), ever youthful, the libation of the Soma-juices expressed by the stones.

21. Thou, Indra, art the showerer of heaven, the bedewer of earth, the feeder of the rivers, the supplier of the aggregated (waters): for thee, showerer (of desires), who art the most excellent shedder of rain, the sweet Soma, the honey-flavoured juice, is ready to be quaffed.1

1 In this and the two preceding stanzas we have the usual abuse of the derivatives of Vṛisha, to sprinkle, to rain; Indra's horses are vṛishanā; they draw a vṛisha rathā, and are guided
22. This divine Soma, with Indra for its ally, crushed, as soon as generated, Pani by force: this Soma baffled the devices and the weapons of the malignant secretor of (the stolen) wealth, (the cattle).

23. This Soma made the dawns happily wedded to the sun: this Soma placed the light within the solar orb: this (Soma) has found the threefold ambrosia hidden in heaven in the three bright regions.¹

24. This (Soma) has fixed heaven and earth:² this has harnessed the seven-rayed chariot (of the sun): this Soma has developed of its own will the mature deeply-organized secretion in the kine.³

Sūkta II. (XLV.)

Indra is the deity of thirty stanzas, Brahma of three; the Rishi is Samyú; the metre of the twenty-ninth verse is Atnichrid, of the thirty-third Anushthubh, of the rest Gāyatrī.

1. May that youthful Indra, who, by good guidance, brought Turvasa and Yadu from afar, (be) our friend.

by vrisha rāpmanyah: again, the steeds are vrishaya, explained, nityatwrunau, always young, and Indra is vrishan, vrish, and vrishabha, the showerer of rain or of benefits: in most of the instances a grosser sense is probably implied.

¹ Ayam tridháto divi rochaneshu, triteshu vindat amrītam nigūlham: according to the scholiast, this may merely mean that the Soma becomes as it were ambrosia when received or concealed in the vessels at the three diurnal ceremonies, which ambrosia is properly deposited with the gods abiding in the third bright sphere, or in heaven.

² These functions are ascribed to the Soma as being the source of the energies of Indra, who is the real agent, both in this and the preceding verse, this Indra has made the dawns, &c.

³ Daśayantram utsam is literally a well with ten machines: here utsa is explained by Sāyaṇa, utsaraṇāsīlam, having the
2. Indra gives sustenance, even to the undevout: he is the conqueror of wealth accumulated (by enemies), through (going against) them with a slow-paced steed.

3. Vast are his designs, manifold are his praises, his protections are never withdrawn.

4. Offer worship and praises, friends, to him who is to be attracted by prayers; for he verily is our great intelligence.

5. Slayer of Vṛitra, thou art the protector of one (adorer), or of two, and of such as we are.

6. Thou removest (far from us) those who hate us: thou prosperest those who repeat thy praise: bestower of excellent male descendants, thou art glorified by men.

7. I invoke with hymns Indra, our friend, who is property of flowing forth, payas, milk: the epithet daśayantram is of a less precise purport, and is somewhat mystified: in one sense it implies aggregated bodily existence, or organs and functions of the body, which are the result of the nutriment furnished to the child by the matured milk, agreeably to a khila, or supplementary verse quoted by the scholiast: chakshuscha, ātmanam, vāh-cha, prānapāṇau, deha, idam partrim, dvau pratyanchāv-anulomau visargāv-stam tam manye daśayantram utsam, I consider the eye, the ear, the mind, the speech, the two vital airs, the form, the body, the two creations inverted and direct, as the tenfold utsa, or state of being: another explanation makes the phrase imply the Soma's being offered with nine texts to Indra and other deities at the morning sacrifice: Aitareya Brāhmaṇa, Panchaha 3, Adhyāya 1.

1 Sukra is here explained pohananir vīraik putrapautrédbhir dātavyair-upetaḥ, endowed with or possessed of sons, grandsons, and the like to be given.
Brahma, who is attracted by prayer and entitled to adoration, to milk him as a cow.

8. In the hands of whom, the heroic subduer of hostile armies, (the sages), have declared are all the treasures in both (heaven and earth).

9. Wielder of the thunderbolt, lord of Sachi, demolish the strong (cities) of men: (baffle), unbending (Indra), their devices.

10. Veracious Indra, drinker of the Soma, provider of sustenance, we, desirous of food, invoke such as thou art.

11. (We invoke) thee, such as thou art, thee who hast been invocable of old, and who art now to be invoked for the wealth held (by the foe): hear our invocation.

12. (Favoured) by thee, Indra, (who art propitiated) by our hymns, (we overcome) with our steeds the steeds (of the enemy), and we conquer abundant food, and the wealth held (by the foe).

13. Heroic and adorable Indra, verily thou art mighty in battle, and victor of the wealth held (by the enemy).

14. Destroyer of enemies with that thy velocity, which is of exceeding swiftness, impel our chariots (against the foe).

15. Victorious Indra, who art the chief of charioteers, conquer the wealth that is held (by the enemy) with our assaulting car.

1 Brahmanum, the scholiast interprets parivridham, great, mighty.

2 Tam tuJu ahJmahi, we invoke thee (who art) that, or such as has been described in the preceding verses.

3 The stanza is literally, with praises, by horses, horses, food, excellent Indra by thee, we conquer deposited wealth.
16. Praise that Indra who alone has been born the supervisor (of all), the lord of men, the giver of rain.

17. Indra, who hast ever been the friend of those who praise thee, and the insurer of their happiness by thy protection, grant us felicity.

18. Wielder of the thunderbolt, take the bolt in thy hands for the destruction of the Rākshasas, and utterly overthrow those who defy thee.

19. I invoke the ancient Indra, the giver of riches, (our) friend, the encourager of his adorers, who is to be propitiated by prayer.

20. He alone rules over all terrestrial riches, he who is entitled to especial praise, he who is irresistible.

21. Lord of cattle, (coming) with thy mares, satisfy our desires completely with (abundant) food, with horses, and with kine.

22. Sing praises, when your libation is poured out, to him who is the invoked of many, the subduer (of foes), giving him gratification, like (fresh pasture) to cattle.¹

23. The giver of dwellings verily-withholds not the gift of food conjoined with cattle, when he hears our praises.

24. Then the destroyer of the Dasyus, proceeds to the cattle-crowded folds of Kuvitsa, and by his acts opens them for us.²

25. Indra, performer of many exploits, these our praises repeatedly recur to thee as parent (cows) to their young.

² Ibid. ii. 1017-18; kuvitsa is termed merely a certain person who does much (kuvit) harm, (syati).
26. Thy friendship, Indra, is not easily lost: thou, hero, art (the giver of) cattle to him who desires cattle, (of) horses to him who desires horses.

27. Delight thy person with the (beverage of the) libation (offered) for the sake of great treasure: subject not thy worshipper to his reviler.

28. These our praises tend, as the libations are repeatedly poured out, eagerly to thee who art gratified by praise, as the milch kine (hasten) to their calves.

29. May the praises of many worshippers offered at the sacrifice,¹ (accompanied) by (sacrificial) viands, invigorate thee, destroyer of multitudes.

30. May our most elevating praise² be near, Indra, to thee, and urge us to (the acquirement of) great riches.

31. Bṛibu presided over the high places of the Paṇis,³ like the elevated bank of the Ganges.⁴

32. Of whom, prompt as the wind, the liberal donation of thousands (of cattle) has been quickly given to (me) soliciting a gift.

¹ Vivāchi, at the sacrifice called Vivāch, because various praises and prayers are then repeated.

² Stomo vāhīshṭhah, vodhyitama, most bearing, uplifting, elevating.

⁴ Uruh kaksho na gāngyah is explained by the scholiast gāṇ-gāyāh kuṭe vistīrṇe iva, as on the broad bank of the Ganges, that is, as the bank is high above the bed of the river.
33. Whom, therefore, we all, who are the profferers and bestowers of praise ever commend, as the pious Bribu, the donor of thousands (of cattle), the receiver of thousands (of laudations).

Súkta III. (XLVI.)

The deity and Rishi as before; the metre of the odd verses is Brihatí, of the even, Satobrihatí.

Varga XXVII.

1. We worshippers invoke thee for the acquirement of food; thee, Indra, the protector of the good, (do) men (invoke for aid) against enemies, and in places where horses (encounter).

2. Wonderful wielder of the thunderbolt, Indra,

1 This and the two preceding stanzas form a Tricha in praise of the liberality of a person named Bribu to Bharadwája, the Rishi of the hymn: Sáyana calls him the Takshá, the carpenter or artificer of the Pañis: the legend is preserved by Manu, 10. 107., Bharadwája kshudhárittas-tu sapuro nirjane vane, bahvir-gáh prati-jagráha Bribos-takshno maháyasah, the illustrious Bharadwája, with his son, distrest by hunger in a lonely forest, accepted many cows from the carpenter Bribu: the Niti Manjari tells the same story, and attributes the Tricha to Sáyu, the son of Bharadwája: the moral of the illustration in Manu and the Niti Manjari is, that Brahmane, in times of distress, may accept assistance from persons of low castes: the object of the Súkta, although it might be so understood, is rather that persons of inferior condition become eminent by liberality; in which sense Sáyana interprets it játito híno api dátritwát sarvatra sreshtho bhavati, a person inferior by caste becomes everywhere distinguished by generosity.

2 Káshbháru arvatah, in the quarters or regions of the horse, where horses are engaged, or, according to Sáyana, the field of battle: Mahidhara, Yajur-Veda, 27. 37., separates the two words, and explains them, as men invoke thee for victory.
the lord of clouds,\(^1\) mighty in resolution, being glorified by us, grant us cattle, and horses fit for chariots, as (thou grantest) abundant food to him who is victorious (in battle).\(^2\)

3. We invoke that Indra who is the destroyer of mighty foes, the supervisor (of all things): do thou, the many-organized, the protector of the good, the distributor of wealth, be unto us (the insurer of) success in combats.\(^3\)

4. Such, Indra, as thou art represented in holy texts,\(^4\) assail (our) adversaries with fierceness like (that of) a bull in close conflict: regard thyself as our defender in war, (that we may long enjoy) posterity, water, and the (sight of the) sun.\(^5\)

5. Indra, bring to us most excellent, most invigorating and nutritious food, wherewith; wonderful wielder of the thunderbolt, the handsome-chinned, thou sustainest both heaven and earth.

\(^1\) Adri means, more properly, wielder of the thunderbolt, but we have just had that epithet in vajrahasta.

\(^2\) Satrā vājam na jīgyushe: the scholiast has satrā, prabhū-tam, abundant: Mahādhara, Yajush, 27. 38., makes it an epithet of vājam sa-trānam, together with protection: it pleases him also to understand jīgyushe, valorous, not as applicable to a man, purushāya, but to a horse or elephant, aswāya hastine vá, which is quite gratuitous: see also Śāma-Veda, ii. 160.

\(^3\) Śāma-Veda, i. 286: this is said to be the first verse of a Pragātha.

\(^4\) Rikśahama is explained by Śaitya rigyādriśam rápam prati-pādayati tādṛig-rúpendraḥ: such form as the Rik exhibits, such in form is Indra.

\(^5\) The text has only tanúshu, apsu, súrye, in descendants, in waters, in the sun, but they may be connected with what precedes, asmáham bodhi avitá mahádhane, know thyself to be our
6. We invoke for protection thee, royal Indra, who art mighty amongst the gods, the subduer of men; granter of dwellings, repel all evil spirits,¹ and render our enemies easy of discomfiture.

7. Whatever strength and opulence (exist) amongst human beings, whatever be the sustenance of the five classes of men, bring Indra to us, as well (as) all great manly energies.²

8. Whatever vigour, Maghavan, (existed) in Triksu, in Druhyu, in Puru, bestow fully upon us in conflicts with foes, so that we may destroy our enemies in war.

9. Give, Indra, to the affluent, and to me also, a sheltering and prosperous dwelling, combining three elements,³ and defending in three ways; and keep from them the blazing (weapon of our foes).

10. Affluent Indra, propitiated by praise, be nigh to us, as the defender of our persons (against those) who assault (us as) enemies, with a mind bent upon carrying off (our) cattle, or who assault us with arrogance.

proteCTOR in battle, in descendants, &c., that is, in securing to us these good things and long life.

² Sáma-Veda, i. 262.

³ Tridhátu śarānam trivarútham, according to Sáyana, of three kinds, triprakáram trihúnikam, as if the houses were constructed of more than one material, or wood, brick, and stone: in his scholia on the Sáman, i. 266, he explains it variously, as containing three kinds of beings, gods, men, and spirits; or three precious things, gold, silver, diamonds; or three states of being, desire, action, avarice: trivarútham is similarly explained in both his scholia as sheltering or protecting from three conditions of the atmosphere, cold, heat, rain.
11. INDRA, be (favourable) at present to our success: protect our leader in battle when the feathered, sharp-pointed, shining shafts fall from the sky.

12. When heroes rest their persons (until abandoning) the pleasant abodes of their progenitors:^1 grant us, for ourselves and our posterity, an unsuspected defence,^2 and scatter our enemies.

13. (At the time) when, in the effort (made) in an arduous conflict, thou urgest our horses over an uneven road, like falcons darting upon their food through the difficult path (of the firmament).

14. Rushing rapidly like rivers in their downward course, and although neighing loudly through terror, they yet, tight-girthed, return repeatedly (to the conflict) for cattle, like birds darting on their prey.

SÚKTA IV. (XLVII.)
The deities of this hymn are very various: that of the first five stanzas is the Soma-juice; of the first quarter of the twentieth the gods; of the second, the earth; of the third, Brīhaspati;

1 Priyā pārma pitrīnām is explained priyāni sthānāni jana-kānām sambandhiṁ, the beloved places in relation with progenitors, but the want of a verb makes the sense doubtful: the scholiast extends to it the government of vitanvate, tano vitanvate, they spread out or rest their persons; or they spread out, he says, before the enemy the sites won by their forefathers until they abandon them, parityajanti yāvat: perhaps it should be, until they, the enemy, desist from the attack.

2 Chhardirachittam the commentator renders havacham satrubhir ajnātam, armour unknown by the enemies; the connexion of the sense runs through the two following verses: the unknown armour is solicited when a charge of horse takes place: it may possibly allude to the superiority of the arms of the Aryas, the mail worn by them being unknown to the Dasyus, or barbarians, like the steel helmets or cuirasses of the Spaniards to the Mexicans and Peruvians.
and of the fourth, Indra; the deity of the twenty-second and three following verses is Prastoka, the son of the Raja Srinjaya, whose liberality they celebrate; of the twenty-sixth and two succeeding verses, forming a Tricha, the Ratha or chariot is the deity; of the next three, another Tricha, the Dundubhi or drum; Indra is the deity of the rest; the Rishi is Garga, the son of Brihaspati; the metre of the nineteenth stanza is Brihati, of the twenty-third Anushthubh, of the twenty-fourth Gāyatri, of the twenty-fifth Dvipadi, of the twenty-seventh Jagati, of the rest Trishtubh.

Varga XXX.

1. Savoury indeed is this (Soma); sweet is it, sharp, and full of flavour: no one is able to encounter Indra in battles after he has been quaffing this (beverage).

2. This savoury Soma, drunk on this occasion, has been most exhilarating: by drinking of it Indra has been elevated to the slaying of Vṛitra, and it has destroyed the numerous hosts of Sambara and the ninety-nine cities.

3. This beverage inspires my speech; this develops the desired intelligence: this sagacious (Soma) has created the six vast conditions, from which no creature is distinct.

4. This it is which has formed the expanse of the earth, the compactness of the heaven: This Soma has deposited the ambrosia in its three principal (receptacles), and has upheld the spacious firmament.

1. Dehyah is the term in the text for dehar, explained by Sāyana, digdháh, the smeared or plastered, implying purth cities; as if they consisted of stuccoed or plastered houses: the ninety-nine cities of Sambara have frequently occurred: see vol. ii. p. 256, &c.

2. They are said to be heaven, earth, day, night, water, and plants.

3. In plants, water, and cows.

4. See vol. i. p. 235: here, as in that Sūkta, there is an ob-
5. This makes known the wonderfully beautiful and inspiring (solar radiance) at the appearance of the dawns, whose dwelling is the firmament: this mighty (Soma) has sustained the heaven with a powerful support, the sender of rain, the leader of the winds.

6. Hero, Indra, who art the slayer of foes in contests for (the acquirement of) treasures, drink boldly from the pitcher: drink copiously at the noon-day rite: receptacle of riches, bestow riches upon us.

7. Like one who goes before us, Indra, (on the road), look out, bring before us infinite wealth; be our conductor beyond the bounds (of want), convey us safely over (peril); be our careful guide, our guide to desirable (affluence).

8. Do thou, Indra, who art wise, conduct us to the spacious world (of heaven), to a blessed state of happiness, light, and safety: may we recline in the graceful, protecting, and mighty arms of thee the ancient one.

9. Place us, possessor of riches, in thy ample chariot, (behind) thy powerful horses: bring to us from among all viands the most excellent food: let not, Maghavan, any opulent man surpass us in wealth.

10. Make me happy, Indra; be pleased to prolong my life: sharpen my intellect like the edge of an iron sword: whatsoever desirous (of propitiating) thee, I Previously designed confusion between the Soma plant, and Soma, the moon.

1 Pra nah pura eteva pasya, like one who is preceding us, look: the scholiast says, look after the travellers under the charge of the mārgarakshaka, the protector of the road, an escort, or, possibly, the leader of a kāfila, may be intended.
may utter, be pleased by it: render me the object of divine protection.

11. I invoke, at repeated sacrifices, Indra, the preserver, the protector, the hero, who is easily propitiated, Indra the powerful, the invoked of many:
may Indra, the lord of affluence, bestow upon us prosperity.¹

12. May the protecting, opulent Indra be the bestower of felicity by his protections: may he, who is all-knowing, foil our adversaries: may he keep us out of danger, and may we be the possessors of excellent posterity.

13. May we continue in the favour of that adorable (deity) even in his auspicious good-will: may that protecting and opulent Indra drive far from us, into extinction, all those who hate us.²

14. To thee the praises and prayers of the wor-shipper hasten like a torrent down a declivity; and thou, thunderer, aggregatest the immense wealth (of sacrificial offerings), copious libations, and milk, and the juices of the Soma.³

15. Who may (adequately) praise him? who may satisfy him? who offer worthy adoration? since Maghavan is daily conscious of his own terrible (power):
by his acts he makes first one and then the other precede and follow, as (a man) throws out his feet (alternately in walking).\textsuperscript{1}

16. The hero \textit{Indra} is renowned; humiliating every formidable (foe), and repeatedly changing the place of one (worshipper) with that of another; \textit{Indra}, the enemy of the arrogant, the sovereign of both (heaven and earth), calls again and again (to encourage) the men who are his worshippers.

17. \textit{Indra} rejects the friendship of those who are foremost (in pious acts), and, despoiling them, associates with (their) inferiors: or (again) shaking off those who neglect his worship, \textit{Indra} abides many years with those who serve him.

18. \textit{Indra}, the prototype, has assumed various forms, and such is his form as that which (he adopts) for his manifestation:\textsuperscript{2} \textit{Indra}, multiform by his illusions, proceeds (to his many worshippers), for the horses yoked to his car are a thousand.\textsuperscript{3}

19. Yoking his horses to his car, \textit{Twashtri}\textsuperscript{4} shines in many places here in the three worlds: who (else), sojourning daily amongst his present worshippers, is their protector against adversaries?

\textsuperscript{1} That is, \textit{Indra}, at his pleasure, makes the first of his worshippers the last, and the last the first.

\textsuperscript{2} \textit{Indra} presents himself as \textit{Agni}, \textit{Vishnu}, or \textit{Rudra}, or any other deity who is the actual object of worship, and is really the deity to be adored: he is identifiable with each.

\textsuperscript{3} His chariots and horses are multiplied according to the forms in which he manifests himself: agreeably to the \textit{Vaidanith} interpretation of the stanza, \textit{Indra} is here identified with \textit{Paramesvara}, the supreme first cause, identical with creation.

\textsuperscript{4} \textit{Sadyana} regards this name as, in this place, an appellative of \textit{Indra}.

20. We have wandered, gods, into a desert where there is no track of cattle: the vast extant earth has become the protectress of murderers: direct us,
Bṛihṣpati, in our search for cattle: shew the path,
Indra, to thy votary being thus astray.

21. Indra, becoming manifest from his abode (in the firmament), dissipates, day by day, the resembling glooms, (so that he may distinguish) the other portion, (or the day); and the showerer has slain the two wealth-seeking slaves, Varchin and Sambara, in (the country of) Udavrajā.

22. Prastoka has given to thy worshipper, Indra, ten purses of gold, and ten horses, and we have accepted this treasure from Divodāsa, the spoil won by Atithigwan from Sambara.

23. I have received ten horses, ten purses, clothes, and ample food, and ten lumps of gold from Divodāsa.

24. Aśwaththa has given to Pāyu ten chariots with their horses, and a hundred cows to the priests.

1 Agavyūti kṣetram, gosanchārurahitam desam, a place devoid of the grazing of cattle.
2 Garga, the author of the Sūkta, having, it is said, lost his way in a desert, repeated this stanza to Bṛihṣpati and Indra, who thereupon enabled him to regain his road.
3 So Sāyaṇa explains Udavrajā, desa viseshah, a sort of country, one into which the waters flow, udākāni vrajantyasmin.
4 Daśa koṣayah, svarrnapūrṇān dasakoṣān, the ten bags or chests full of gold.
5 Prastoka, Divodāsa, and Atithigwan, are different names of the same person, a Rāja, the son of Śrinjaya.
6 Atharvabhyah is the term in the text which Sāyaṇa explains, to the Rishi of the Atharvagotra: Pāyu is the brother of Garga; Aśwaththa is the same as Prastoka.
25. The son of Śrīnāya has reverenced the Bhāradvājas who have accepted such great wealth for the good of all men.

26. (Chariot made of the) forest lord, be strong of fabric; be our friend; be our protector, and be manned by warriors:¹ thou art girt with cow-hides:² keep us steady; and may he who rides in thee be victorious over conquered (foes).

27. Worship with oblations the chariot constructed of the substance of heaven and earth, the extracted essence of the forest lords; the velocity of the waters; the encompassed with the cow-hide; the thunderbolt (of Indra):

28. Do thou, divine chariot, who art the thunderbolt of Indra, the precursor of the Maruts, the embryo of Mitra, the navel of Varuṇa,³ propitiated by this our sacrifice, accept the oblation.

¹ Suvīro bhava; Sāyāṇa explains śūrabhaṭṭaiḥ putradībhīr vā yuktah, joined with warriors, or with sons and the rest: the latter could scarcely be predicated of a car, except as the source; figuratively speaking, of prosperity, and so far of descendants.

² Gobhiḥ sannadhosi: literally, thou art bound together by cows: but both Sāyāṇa and Mahīdhara, Yajur-Veda, 29. 52., explain this govīhāraṇih, by what are formed from cattle: so, in the next verse, gobhīr-āvṛītam is interpreted charmabhīh parīta dvesṭītām, encompassed round with hides, as if the exterior of the war-chariot especially were so strengthened: Mahīdhara gives us an alternative, encompassed with rays of light, or with splendours, gobhīh, tejobhīh.

³ Marutām anīkam, Mitrasya garbhō, Varuṇasya nābhīḥ: anīkam the scholiast interprets agrabhūtam, being before, outstripping in speed; Mahīdhara explains it mukhyam, principal or leader; the garbha of Mitra, Sāyāṇa endeavours to make
29. War-drum, fill with your sound both heaven and earth; and let all things, fixed or moveable, be aware of it: do thou, who art associated with Indra and the gods, drive away our foes to the remotest distance.

30. Sound loud against the (hostile) host: animate our prowess: thunder aloud, terrifying the evil-minded: repel, drum, those whose delight it is to harm us: thou art the fist of Indra; inspire us with fierceness.

31. Recover these our cattle, Indra; bring them back: the drum sounds repeatedly as a signal: our leaders, mounted on their steeds, assemble: may our warriors, riding in their cars, Indra, be victorious.¹

¹ This and the two preceding verses occur in the Yajush, 29. 55—57.
SÓKTA V. (XLVIII.)

This hymn presents an unusual variety of deities and metres; the deity of the first ten stanzas is Agni; the metre of the first, third, fifth, and ninth is Brihati; of the second, fourth, and tenth, Satobrihati; of the seventh, Mahábrihati; and of the eighth and tenth, Mahástobrihati: the deities of the next five verses are the Maruts; the metre of the eleventh is Kakuhi; of the twelfth, Satobrihati; of the thirteenth, Puru-ushnih; of the fourteenth, Brihati; and of the fifteenth, Atijagati; Púshan is the deity of the next four stanzas, and their metres are respectively Kakuhi, Satobrihati, Puru-ushnih, and Brihati: Prišni is the divinity of the twentieth and twenty-first verses, as well as of the twenty-second, which, however, may be dedicated to Heaven and Earth: the metres of these last three stanzas are, severally, Brihati, Yavamadhyá-Mahábrihati, and Anushthubh.

1. At every sacrifice (honour) the mighty Agni with your reiterated praise, whilst we glorify him, the immortal, who knows all things, our dear friend—Varga I.

2. The son of strength, for he verily is propitious to us; to whom let us offer oblations as to the conveyer of them (to the gods): may he be our defender in battles: may he be our benefactor and the grandsire of our offspring.

4. Agni, who art the showerer (of benefits), mighty, and exempt from decay, thou shiniest with (great) splendour; thou art resplendent, brilliant (Agni), with unfading lustre: shine forth with glorious rays.

4. Thou sacrificest to the mighty gods: sacrifice (for us) continually, for (sacrifice is perfected) by thy wisdom and thy acts: bring them down, Agni, for our salvation: present (to them) the sacrificial food, partake of it thyself.

5. (Thou art he) whom the waters, the mountains, the woods, nourish as the embryo of sacrifice; who, churned with strength by the performers (of the rite), art generated in the highest place of the earth.

6. He who fills both heaven and earth with light, who mounts with smoke into the sky, this radiant showerer (of benefits) is beheld in the dark nights dispersing the gloom; this radiant showerer (of benefits) presides over the dark nights.

7. Divine, resplendent Agni, youngest (of the gods), when kindled by Bharadwaja, shines with many flames, with pure lustre, (conferring) riches upon us; shine, resplendent purifier.

8. Thou, Agni, art the lord of the dwelling, and of all men the descendants of Manu: protect me, youngest (of the gods), when kindling thee, with a hundred defences against iniquity: (grant me) a hundred winters, (as well as to those) who bestow gifts upon thy worshippers.

9. Wonderful (Agni), giver of dwellings, encourage us by (thy) protection, and (the gift of) riches, for thou art the conveyer, Agni, of this wealth: quickly bestow permanence upon our progeny.

10. Thou protectest with uninjurable, irremovable defences (our) sons and grandsons: remove far from us celestial wrath and human malevolence.

11. Approach, friends, the milk-yielding cow with a new song, and let her loose unharmed.

12. She who yields immortal food to the powerful, self-irradiating band of the Maruts, who (is anxious) for the gratification of the self-moving Maruts, who traverses the sky with (the passing waters), shedding delight.

13. Milk for Bharadwāja the two-fold (blessing), the cow that gives milk to the universe, food that is sufficient for all.

14. I praise you, the (company of Maruts), for the distribution of wealth; (the company that), like Indra, is the achiever of great deeds; sagacious like Varuṇa; adorable as Aryaman, and munificent as Vishnu.
15. I now (glorify) the brilliant vigour of the company of the MARUTS, loud-sounding, irresistible, cherishing, whereby hundreds and thousands (of treasures) are bestowed collectively upon men; may that (company) make hidden wealth manifest; may it render the wealth easily accessible to us.

16. Hasten, PÚSHAN, to me: (repel), bright deity, (all) deadly assailing foes: close at thy side I repeat thy praise.¹

17. Uproot not, PÚSHAN, the forest lord, with its progeny of crows:² utterly destroy those who are my revilers: let not the adversary ensnare me, as (fowlers) set snares for birds.³

18. May thy friendship be unbroken, like (the surface) of a skin without a flaw, containing curds.⁴

19. Supreme art thou above mortals: equal in glory art thou to the gods: therefore, PÚSHAN, regard us (favourably) in battles: defend us at present as (thou hast defended) those of old.

20. MARUTS, agitators, especially to be adored, may your kind and true speech be our conductress; that pleasant (speech which is the guide) to desirable (wealth) for both gods and sacrificing mortals.

² Kákambrāram vanaspatim: the first is said by the scholiast to imply metaphorically the author of the Súkta, with his children and dependants.

³ Evá chana griva údadhate vah, even as sometimes they place snares for a bird: grívā is said to have here the unusual signification of dámam, jálarúpam, a snare of the nature of a net.

⁴ Such a skin of curds, Sáyana says, is always carried in Púshán’s chariot.
21. Whose functions spread quickly round the heavens, like (the light of) the divine sun, since the Maruts possess brilliant, foe-humiliating, and adorable foe-destroying strength, most excellent foe-destroying strength.

22. Once, indeed, was the heaven generated; once was the earth born;¹ once was the milk of Prisni drawn: other than that was not similarly generated.²

Śūkta VI. (XLIX.)

The deities are the Viswadevas; R̐jīswan, the son of Bharādwaśa is the R̐śhi; the metre is Tr̐shūbha, except in the last verse, in which is Ṣaṁkari.

1. I commend with new hymns the man observant of his duty,³ and the beneficent Mitra and Varuṇa: may they, the mighty ones, Varuṇa, Mitra, Agni, come to our rite, and listen (to our praises).

2. (I incite the worshipper) to offer worship to Agni, who is to be adored at the sacrifices of every man; whose acts are free from arrogance; the lord of two youthful (brides, heaven and earth); the child of heaven, the son of strength, the brilliant symbol of sacrifice.

¹ This is rather at variance with the doctrine of the succession of worldly existences, but the scholiast so understands it: sakrī ḍa drau. ājaya, utpaḍya, and once born it is permanent, sakrī-utpaṇnaiva sthitā bhavati, or, being destroyed, no other similar heaven is born, na punaś-tasyām nashtāyām anyā tatsaḍriśa ṭyaṛu. jyāyate.

² Tatānyo nānuyāyate is similarly explained; tatha param anyah padārthastasaḍārīśa naṭpadyate, after that another object or thing like that (object or thing) is not produced.

³ Sūktas janam suvratam the scholiast interprets daivīyam janam, the divine people, devasaṁghaṁ, the company of the gods, which is not incompatible with the purport of the hymn.
3. May the two daughters of the radiant (sun) of various form, of whom one glitters with stars, the other (is bright) with the sun, mutually opposed, proceeding diversely, purifying (all things), and entitled to our laudation, be pleased by the praise they hear (from us).

4. May our earnest praise proceed to the presence of Vāyu, the possessor of vast riches, the desired of all, the filler of his chariot (with wealth for his worshippers): most adorable (Vāyu), who art riding in a radiant car, and driving your Niyut (steeds), do thou, who art far-seeing, shew favour to the sage, (thine adorer).

5. May that splendid car of the Āswins, which is harnessed at a thought, clothe my form (with radiance): that (car) with which, Nāsatyas, leaders (of rites), you go to the dwelling (of the worshipper) to fulfil his desires for his posterity and himself.

6. Parjanya and Vāta, showerers of rain, send from the firmament available waters: sage Maruts, hearers of truth, establishers of the world, multiply the moveable (wealth of him) by whose praises (you are propitiated).

7. May the purifying, amiable, graceful Sāra-

2 Kavim iyākshasiprayajyo: Mahidhara, Yajur-Veda, 33. 55., applies prayajyo to the priest, the Adhvaryu; worship, venerable priest, the wise Vāyu, &c.
3 Jagad ākriṇudhvam: according to Sāyana, jagat here comprehends fixed as well as moveable, all living things, jagat sthāvarajangamātmaham sarvam prāṇi jātām.
4 Kanyā, literally a maiden, is here explained kamanīya, to swatī, the bride of the hero, favour our pious rite: may she, together with the wives of the gods, well pleased, bestow upon him who praises her a habitation free from defects, and impenetrable (to wind and rain), and (grant him) felicity.

8. May (the worshipper), influenced by the hope (of reward), approach with praise the adorable (Pūshan), protector of all paths: may he bestow upon us cows with golden horns: may Pūshan bring to perfection our every rite.

9. May the illustrious Agni, the invoker of the gods, worship (with this oblation), Twashtri, the first divider (of forms), the renowned, the giver of food, the well-handed, the vast, the adored of householders, the readily invoked.

10. Exalt Rudra, the parent of the world, with these hymns by day; (exalt) Rudra (with them) by night; animated by the far-seeing, we invoke him, mighty, of pleasing aspect, undecaying, endowed with felicity, (the source of) prosperity.

\(^1\) Nakshanto angirasvat the scholiast renders angirasaḥ, gamanasīlaśmayah, rays endowed with motions: te yathā sīghram nabhaśtalam vyapnvaṃti tad vat, as they spread quickly through the sky, so (do the winds): or if angiras retain its more usual signification of Rishi or Rishiś, so named, then the property of rapid movement is assigned to them, yad vā Rishayastad vach-chhīghraśāminah.

\(^2\) Achitram chid hi jinvathā: chitram is said to mean a place thick with shrubs and trees: with the negative prefix it implies the contrary, a place with little timber: the Maruts are solicited to satisfy such a place, with rain understood.

\(^3\) Buddhna is explained antariksha, firmament, and buddhnya is, what or who is there born: ahi is interpreted he who goes, that is, in the sky, but the etymology is not satisfactory.

\(^4\) The commentator is rather at a loss to explain Parvata: it may mean, he says, the filler, pūrayitri, or the wielder of the thunderbolt, parvavād-vajram, tadoṇ; or enemy of the mountain, gireḥ satru: in either sense it is obviously Indra.

\(^5\) Tad oshadhibhir-abhi; oshadhayas tilamāshādayah, the vegetables are sesamum, pulse, and the like.
Bhaga be propitious (to us) for (the acquirement of) riches.

15. Grant us, (universal gods), riches, comprehending chariots, numerous dependants, many male offspring, (wealth) the giver of efficiency to the solemn rite, and a dwelling free from decay, wherewith we may overcome malevolent men and unrighteous (spirits), and afford support to those people who are devoted to the gods.

ANUVĀKA V.

Sūkta I. (L.)

The deities are various; the Rishi is Rūșwān; the metre is Trishtubh.

1. I invoke with adorations, for the sake of felicity, the divine Aditi and Varuṇa, Mitra and Agni, Ar-yaman, the overthrower of foes, worthy of devotion, Savitri and Bhaga, and (all) protecting divinities.

2. Radiant Sūrya, render the luminous deities, who have Daksha for their progenitor, void of offence towards us; they who are twice born, desirous of sacrifice, observant of truth, possessors of wealth, deserving of worship, whose tongue is Agni.

3. Or bestow, Heaven and Earth, vast strength:

1 Dakshapitrin, dakshapitāmaho yeshām, they of whom Daksha is the grandfather: the grandchildren of Daksha, however, were sundry sentiments and passions: see Vishnu Purāṇa, 55., and pitri, therefore, must here be understood, according to Sāyana, only in the general sense of priority or seniority.

2 Dwijamānaḥ, they who have two births, means, agreeably to Sāyana, they who are manifest or present in two spheres, heaven and earth.
give us, Earth and Heaven, a spacious habitation for our comfort: so arrange, that infinite wealth may be ours; remove, beneficent deities, iniquity from our abode.

4. May the sons of Rudra, givers of dwellings, the un subdued, invoked on this occasion, stoop down to us, inasmuch as we call upon the divine Maruts that they may be our helpers in difficulty, great or small.

5. With whom the divine Heaven and Earth are associated; whom Pūshan, the re warder (of his wor shippers) with prosperity, honours: when, Maruts, having heard our invocation, you come hither, then on your several paths all beings tremble.

6. Praise, worshipper, with a new hymn, that hero, Indra, who is deserving of praise: may he, so glorified, hear our invocation: may he, so lauded, bestow upon us abundant food.

7. Waters, friendly to mankind, grant uninterrupted (life)-preserving (food) for (the perpetuation of our) sons and grandsons; grant us security and the removal (of all evil), for you are more than maternal physicians; you are the parents of the stationary and moveable universe.

8. May the adorable, golden-handed Sāvitrī, the preserver, come to us; he, the munificent, who, like the opening of the dawn, displays desirable (riches) to the offerer of the oblation.

9. And do thou, son of strength, bring back to day the deities to this our sacrifice: may I be ever in

(the enjoyment of) thy bounty: may I, through thy protection, Agni, be blessed with excellent male descendants.

10. Wise Násatyás come quickly to my invocation (united) with holy acts: (extricate us) from thick darkness, as thou didst extricate Atri: protect us, leaders (of rites), from danger in battle.

11. Be unto us, gods, the donors of splendid, invigorating riches, comprising male descendants, and celebrated by many: celestial Ádityás, terrestrial Vasus, offspring of Priñi, children of the waters, granting our desires, make us happy,

12. May Rudra and Saraswati, alike well pleased, and Vishnu and Vayu, make us happy, sending rain; and Ribhuksin, and Vaja, and the divine Vidhátri: and may Parjanya and Vata grant us abundant food.

13. And may the divine Savitri and Bhaga, and the grandson of the waters, (Agni), the prodigal of gifts, preserve us; and may Twashtri with the gods, and Earth with the seas, (preserve us).

14. May Ahibudhya, Aja-Zkapád, and Earth and Ocean, hear us; may the universal gods, who are exalted by sacrifice, they who are invoked and praised (by us), to whom mystical prayers are addressed, and who have been glorified by (ancient) sages, preserve us.²

15. Thus do my sons, of the race of Bharadwaja,

Sūkta II. (I1.)
The deities and Rishi as before; the metre of the thirteenth and two following verses is Ushnīk, of the sixteenth Anuśṭubh, and of the rest Tristubh.

Varga XI.

1. The expansive, illuminating, unobstructive, pure, and beautiful radiance of the sun, grateful to Mitra and Varuna, having risen, shines like the ornament of the sky.

2. He who knows the three cognisable (worlds); the sage (who knows) the mysterious birth of the divinities (abiding in them); he who is beholding the good and evil acts of mortals, he, the sun, the lord, makes manifest their intentions.

3. I praise you, protectors of the solemn sacrifice, the well-born Aditi, Mitra and Varuna, and Aryan and Bhaga: I celebrate the gods whose acts are unimpeded, the bestowers of wealth, the dispensers of purity;

4. The scatterers of the malevolent, the defenders of the virtuous, the irresistible, the mighty lords, the donors of good dwellings, ever young, very powerful, omnipresent, leaders of heaven, the sons of Aditi: I have recourse to Aditi, who is gratified by mine adoration.

5. Father Heaven, innocent mother Earth, brother

6. Subject us not, adorable (deities), to the robber or his wife;¹ nor to any one designing us harm; for you are the regulators of our persons, of our strength, of our speech.

7. Let us not suffer for the sin committed by another: let us not do that which, Vasus, you prohibit: you rule, universal gods, over the universe: (so provide that) mine enemy may inflict injury on his own person.

8. Reverence be to the potent (company of universal gods): I offer (them) reverence: reverence sustains both earth and heaven:² reverence be to the gods: reverence is sovereign over them: I expiate by reverence whatever sin may have been committed.

9. Adorable (deities), I venerate with reverential salutations all you who are mighty, the regulators of your sacrifice,³ of pure vigour, dwellers in the chamber of worship, unsubdued, far-seeing, leaders (of rites).

² The scholiast says that earth and heaven, by receiving the namas or namaskāra, the reverential salutation or homage of mortals, continue throughout a long period for their enjoyment.

³ Ritasya rathyah, yajnasya ranhitin, netrin, the leaders or conveyers of the sacrifice offered to them.

11. May they, Indra, Earth, Pūshan, Bhaga, Aditi, and the five orders of beings, give increase to our habitations: may they be to us granters of happiness, bestowers of food, guides to good, our gracious defenders and preservers.

12. May the presenter of the oblation, Bhara-dwaja quickly obtain, gods, a celestial abode, as he solicits your good-will: the instigator of the ceremony, together with pious associates, desirous of riches, glorifies the assembly of the gods.

13. Drive away, Agni, to a distance the wicked, felonious, malignant enemy: grant us felicity, protector of the virtuous.¹

14. These our grinding stones are anxious, Soma, for thy friendship: destroy the voracious Panī, for verily he is a wolf.²

15. You are munificent and illustrious, gods, with Indra for your chief: be with us, protectors, on the road, and grant us happiness.

16. We have travelled along the road prosperously traversed and free from evil, and by which (a man) avoids adversaries and acquires wealth.

Sūkta III. (LII.)
The deities and Rishi as before; the metre of the first six, the thirteenth, and three last verses, is Trishtubh, of the second six Gāyatrī, and of the fourteenth Jagati.

Varga XIV.

1. I do not regard it as worthy (of the gods) of heaven, or (of those) of earth, as (fit to be compared) with the sacrifice (I offer), or with these (our) sacred rites: let, then, the mighty mountains overwhelm him; let the employer of Atiyāja be ever degraded.¹

2. Maruts, may the energies of that man be enfeebled: may heaven consume that impious adversary² who thinks himself superior to us, and who pretends to depreciate the worship that we offer.

3. Why have they called thee, Soma, the protector of pious prayer? why (have they called thee) our defender against calumny? why dost thou behold us subjected to reproach? cast thy destroying weapon upon the adversary of the Brahman.

4. May the opening dawns preserve me: may the swelling rivers preserve me: may the firm-set mountains preserve me: may the progenitors (present) at the invocation of the gods preserve me.

5. May we at all seasons be possessed of sound minds: may we ever behold the rising sun: such may the affluent lord of riches, (Agni), render us, ever most ready to come (at our invocation), charged with our oblation to the gods.

² Brahmadwīśha, and again, in the next verse, brahmadwīshe: the first is explained by Sāyana simply tam satrum, that enemy, with reference to the word brahma, which has gone before, religious act or praise, the enemy or obstructer of prayer or praise: in the second place he interprets it brāhmaṇa dvēshṭri, the hater or enemy of the Brahman.
6. May Indra be most prompt to come nigh for our protection, and Saraswati dwelling with (tributary) rivers: may Parjanya, with the plants, be a giver of happiness; and may Agni, worthily praised and earnestly invoked, (be to us) like a father.

7. Come, universal gods, hear this my invocation: sit down upon this sacred grass.

8. Come, gods, to him who honours you with the butter-dripping oblation.

9. May the sons of the immortal\(^1\) hear our praises, and be to us the givers of felicity.

10. Universal gods, augmenters of sacrifice, listening to praises (uttered) at due seasons, accept your appropriate milk-offering.\(^2\)

11. Indra, with the company of the Maruts, Mitra, with Twashti and Aryaman, accept our praise and these our oblations.

12. Agni, invoker of the gods, cognizant (which of) the divine assembly (is to be honoured), offer this our sacrifice according to the proper order.

13. Universal gods, hear this my invocation, whether you be in the firmament or in the heaven: you who (receive oblations) by the tongue of Agni, or are to be (otherwise) worshipped: seated on this sacred grass, be exhilarated (by the Soma).

14. May the adorable, universal deities, and both heaven and earth, and the grandson of the waters, hear my praise: let me not utter words to be disregarded, but let us, (brought) most nigh unto you, rejoice in the happiness (you bestow).

15. May those mighty deities, having power to destroy,\(^1\) whether they have been manifested upon earth or in heaven, or in the abode of the waters, bestow upon us and our posterity\(^2\) abundant sustenance both by night and day.

16. Agni and Parjanya, prosper my pious acts: (accept), you who are reverently invoked, our praise at this sacrifice: one of you generates food, the other posterity:\(^3\) grant us, therefore, food productive of descendants.

17. When the sacred grass is strewn; when the fire is kindled, and when I worship (you) with a hymn, and with profound veneration, then, adorable universal gods, rejoice in the oblation (offered) to-day at this our sacrifice.

Sókta IV. (LIII.)

2. Conduct to us a gracious householder, friendly to men, liberal in (bestowing) wealth,¹ the giver of pious donations.

3. Resplendent Púshan, instigate the niggard to liberality, soften the heart of the miser.

4. Fierce Púshan, select (fit) roads for the passage of provisions: drive away all obstructors, (thieves, or the like), so that our holy rites may be accomplished.

5. Pierce with a goad² the hearts of the avaricious, wise Púshan, and so render them complacent towards us.

6. Pierce with a goad, Púshan, the heart of the avaricious; generate generosity in his heart, and so render him complacent towards us.

7. Abrade, wise Púshan, the hearts of the avaricious; relax (their hardness), and so render them complacent towards us.

8. Resplendent Púshan, with that food-propelling goad which thou bearest, abrade the heart of every miser, and render it relaxed.

9. Resplendent Púshan, we ask of thee the service of that thy weapon, which is the guide of cows, the director of cattle.

10. Make our pious worship productive of cows, of horses, of food, of dependants, for our enjoyment.

¹ Vasuvíram, literally, a hero of riches, that is, according to the scholiast, one who is especially the instigator of poverty to acquire wealth, dhanam abhépíptaṁ víram dáridraśyā viśeṣeṇaśrayitaṁ.

² Paríyindhi árayá: árá is described as a stick with a slender point of iron; pratoda, a goad; the common vernacular derivative, áraḥ, is a saw.
FOURTH ASHTAKA—EIGHTH ADHYAYA.  495

SUKTA V. (LIV.)
Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

1. Bring us, Pushan, into communication with a wise man who may rightly direct us, who may even say, this is so.¹

2. May we, by the favour of Pushan, come in communication with (the man) who may direct us to the houses (where our goods are secreted), and may say, verily these are they.

3. The discus of Pushan does not destroy; its sheath is not discarded, its edge harms not us.

4. Pushan inflicts not the least injury on the man who propitiates him by oblations: he is the first who acquires wealth.

5. May Pushan come to (guard) our cattle, may Pushan protect our horses; may Pushan give us food.

6. Come, Pushan, to (guard) the cattle of the institutor of the rite presenting libations, and also of us repeating (thy) praises.

7. Let not, Pushan, our cattle perish; let them not be injured; let them not be hurt by falling into a well; come, therefore, along with them unharmed.

8. We solicit riches of Pushan, who hears (our eulogies); who is the averter (of poverty); the preserver of that which is not lost, the ruler (over all).

¹ Ya evedam iti bravat: Sāyana's explanation of this is curious, and is justified by what follows: by Vidushā, a wise man, he understands a cunning man, a conjurer: the last phrase he therefore interprets to mean, one who says, this, your property, has been lost, and the passage that precedes he explains as directing the way to the recovery of the lost or stolen goods: this is a new attribute of Pushan as the patron of fortune-tellers and recoverers of stolen property.
9. May we never suffer detriment when engaged, Púshan, in thy worship: we are at this time thine adorers.¹

10. May Púshan put forth his right hand (to restrain our cattle) from going astray: may he bring again to us that which has been lost.

Sókta VI. (LV.)
Deity, Rishi, and metre as before.

Varga XXI.

1. Come illustrious grandson of Prajápati² to (my thy) worshipper:³ let us two be associated: become the conveyer of our sacrifice.

2. We solicit riches of our friend, (Púshan), the chief of charioteers, the wearer of a braid (of hair),⁴ the lord of infinite wealth.

3. Illustrious Púshan, thou art a torrent of riches: thou, who hast a goat for thy steed, art a heap of wealth; the friend of every worshipper.

4. We glorify Púshan, the rider of the goat, the giver of food, him who is called the gallant of his sister.⁵

² Vimúcho napáti: the first is rendered by Prajápati as he who, at the period of creation, lets loose, vimunchati, visrijati, all creatures from himself, swasakását sarváh prajáh.
³ Ehi vám: vá, according to Sáyana, here means praiser, from the root vá, to go, to have odour, vám gantáram stotáram mám, Ehi, ágachchha.
⁴ Kaparddinam, kapardaschúdā tadvantam; but it is more usually an epithet of Śiva, importing a braid of hair, not the chúdā, or lock left on the crown of the head at tonsure.
⁵ Svasur yo jára uchyate, the sister of Púshan is the dawn, with whom he, as the sun, may be said to associate amorously.
5. I glorify Púshan, the husband of his mother: may the gallant of his sister hear us; may the brother of Indra be our friend.

6. May the harnessed goats, drawing the deity in his car, bring hither Púshan, the benefactor of man.

Sókta VII. (LVI.)

Deity and Rishi as before; the metre is the same, except in the last verse, in which it is Anushṭubh.

1. No (other) deity is indicated by him who declares the offering of mixed meal and butter to be intended for Púshan.

2. He, the chief of charioteers, the protector of the virtuous, Indra, destroys his foes, with his friend Púshan for his ally.

3. He, the impeller, the chief of charioteers, (Púshan), ever urges on that golden wheel (of his car) for the radiant sun.

4. Since, intelligent Púshan, of goodly aspect, the praised of many, we celebrate thee to-day, therefore grant us the desired wealth.

5. Gratify this our assembly, desirous of cattle, by their acquisition: thou, Púshan, art renowned afar.

6. We deserve of thee well-being, remote from 1 Mātur didhīshum, rātṛeh patim, the lord or husband of the night.

2 As one of the Ádityas, or sons of Áditi, he may be called the brother of Indra, who is also one of the number.
3 Karambhāt itī: karambha is said to be a mixture of parched barley-meal and butter.
4 Parushe gavi: the first is explained parvavatī, bhāswati vā, the period-having, or the shining: the second is rendered Áditya, he who moves or revolves, gachchhatiti gaur-ádityah

VOL. III.
evil, approximate to wealth, both for the sake of general sacrifice to-day, for the sake of general sacrifice to-morrow.¹

SÚKTA VIII. (LVII.)
The deities are INDRA and PÚSHAN; the Rishi and metre as before.

Varga XXIII.

1. We invoke you, INDRA and PÚSHAN, for your friendship, for our well-being, and for the obtaining of food.²

2. One (of you) approaches to drink the Soma poured out into ladles, the other desires the buttered meal.³

3. Goats are the bearers of the one, two well-fed horses of the other, and with them he destroys his foes.

4. When the showerer INDRA sends down the falling and mighty waters, there is PÚSHAN along with him.⁴

5. We depend upon the good-will of PÚSHAN, and of INDRA, as (we cling) to the branches of a tree.

6. We draw to us, for our great welfare, PÚSHAN and INDRA, as a charioteer (pulls tight) his reins.

SÚKTA IX. (LVIII.)
The deity and Rishi as before; the metre of the second verse is Jāgati, of the rest Trishtubh.

Varga XXIV.

1. One of thy forms, (PÚSHAN), is luminous, one is

¹ Adyà cha sarvatātaye, svas-cha sarvatātaye: the substantive is explained yajña, that which is conducted by all the priests, sarvair-ritvīghbis-tāyate; or it may mean for the dissemination of all enjoyments, sarveshām bhogānām vistārāya venerable; so that the day is variously complexioned: for thou art like the sun: verily, bestower of food, thou protectest all intelligences: may thine auspicious liberality be manifested on this occasion.

2. The rider of the goat, the protector of animals, in whose dwelling food is abundant, the propitiated by sacred rites, who has been placed over the whole (world), the divine Pūshan, brandishing his loosened goad, proceeds (in the sky), contemplating all beings.

3. With those thy golden vessels, which navigate within the ocean-firmament, thou dischargest the office of messenger of the sun: desirous of the sacrificial food, thou art propitiated by (that which is) willingly offered.

4. Pūshan is the kind kinsman of heaven and earth, the lord of food, the possessor of opulence, of goodly form; whom the gods gave to Śūrya, vigorous, well-moving, propitiated by (that which is) willingly offered.

1 Pūshan is here identified with both day and night, or is considered as their regulator.
2 Sāma-Veda, r. 75., also Nirukta, 12. 17., Sāyana follows Yāska.
3 Placed so by Prajāpati, according to the scholiast, in his capacity of nourishing all things, poshakatwena.
4 As identical with the sun.
5 Yāsī dūtyam sūryasya: Sāyana relates a legend which says, that on one occasion, when Śūrya, with the gods, had set out to fight the Asuras, he sent Pūshan to his abode to console his wife, who was greatly afflicted by his going to the wars; for which office Pūshan is here commended.
6 Kāmena kṛitah is the whole text; the scholiast fills it up with papuvādīvishayena stotribhir väśkritah asi, thou art subjected or propitiated by worshippers by means of the Paśu and other offerings,
Súkta X. (LIX.)

Indra and Agni are the deities; the Rishi is Bharadwája the first six stanzas are in the Brihatí metre, the four last in the Anushhtubh.

Varga XXV.

1. When the libation is effused I celebrate, Indra and Agni, your heroic exploits: the Pitris, the enemies of the gods, have been slain by you, and you survive.

2. Your greatness, Indra and Agni, is after this fashion, and is most deserving of praise: the same is your progenitor: twin brethren are you, having a mother everywheré present.

3. You approach together, when the libation is effused, like two fleet courser to their forage: we invoke to day Indra and Agni, deities armed with the thunderbolt, to this ceremony for our preservation.

4. Divine Indra and Agni, augmenters of sacrifice, by whom the acclamation (of praise) is received, you partake not of the (Soma) of him who, when the libation is effused, praises you (improperly), uttering unacceptable eulogies.

5. What mortal, divine Indra and Agni, is a judge

---

1 By Pitris, in this place, the scholiast says Asuras are intended, as derived from the root pí to injure, píyati-hinsáharmme.

2 Ihehamátarou, of whom the mother is here and there:
Aditi is their mother, in common with all the gods, and she is here identified with the wide extended earth, visténá bhúmik, according to Sáyana.

3 Yo vám stavat is explained by the commentator, he who may praise you badly, kutsitam stúyat.

4 Joshaváham vadatāk: the first is explained, pritihetutveca karrtavyam swayam apritiharam vāham, speech to be uttered of that (your act), when one of you, harnessing his diversely-going horses, proceeds in the common car.\textsuperscript{1}

6. This footless (dawn), Indra and Agni, comes before the footed sleepers, animating the head\textsuperscript{2} (of living beings with consciousness), causing them to utter loud sounds with their tongues, and passing onwards she traverses thirty steps.\textsuperscript{3}

7. Indra and Agni, men verily stretch their bows

\textsuperscript{1} Vishúcho aśwán yuyuyána iyate ekah samáne vathe: the one is Indra, who, as identical with the sun, goes over the world in a car which is common to him and Agni, as being also identified with the sun: the same identity being kept in view, Indra yokes the multiform horses, months, weeks, days, to a moniform car, or the year.

\textsuperscript{2} Hituv śiras, literally, exciting the head, which is the whole of the text, is explained právinám siro prerayitri, urging or animating the head of living beings: or it may apply to the dawn, as being headless, śiras tyaktvā swayam aśiraskā satī, she having abandoned the head, being of herself headless, though what they may mean is doubtful: so Sáma-Veda, i. 281, and Yajush, 33. 93: Mahidhara, after proposing the same interpretation as Sáyana, suggests another, in which he refers the epithets to vách, speech, apád, footless, meaning prose, gadyát-mikā, and so on, but this is obviously fanciful.

\textsuperscript{3} The thirty mukhárttas, the divisions of the day and night.
with their arms, but do not you desert us contending for cattle in the great combat.

8. Indra and Agni, murderous, aggressive enemies harass us: drive away mine adversaries: separate them from (sight of) the sun.

9. Indra and Agni, yours are both celestial and terrestrial treasures: bestow upon us, on this occasion, life-sustaining riches.

10. Indra and Agni, who are to be attracted by hymns; you, who hear our invocation (accompanied) by praises, and by all adorations, come hither to drink of this Soma-libation.

Súkta XI. (LX.)
The deities and Ṛishi as before: the metre of the three first stanzas is Trishtubh, of the next nine Gāyatrī, of the thirteenth Trishtubh, of the fourteenth Bṛihati, and of the last Anushṭubh.

1. He overcomes his enemy, and acquires food, who worships the victorious Indra and Agni, the lords of infinite opulence, most powerful in strength, desirous of (sacrificial) food.

2. Indra and Agni, verily you have combated for (the recovery of) the cows, the waters, the sun, the dawns that had been carried away (by the Asuras): thou reunitest, Indra, (with the world), the quarters of the horizon, the sun, the wonderful waters, the dawns, the cattle, and so dost thou, Agni, who hast the Niyut steeds.

3. Slayers of Vṛitra, Indra and Agni, come down with foe-subduing energies, (to be invigorated) by (our) offerings: be manifest to us, Indra and Agni, with unblameable and most excellent riches.
4. I invoke those two, the whole of whose deeds of old have been celebrated: Indra and Agni harm us not.¹

5. We invoke the fierce Indra and Agni, the slayers of enemies: may they give us success in similar warfare.²

6. Counteract all oppressions (committed) by the pious: counteract all oppressions (committed) by the impious:³ protectors of the virtuous, destroy all those who hate us.

7. Indra and Agni, these hymns glorify you both: drink, bestowers of happiness, the libation.

8. Indra and Agni, leaders (of rites), whose Niṣya steeds are desired by many, come with them to the donor (of the libation).

9. Come with them, leaders (of rites), to the effused libation, to drink, Indra and Agni, of the Soma.⁴

10. Glorify that Agni who envelopes all the forests with flame, who blackens them with (his) tongue.

11. The mortal who presents the gratifying (oblation) to Indra in the kindled (fire), to him (Indra grants) acceptable waters for his sustenance.

12. May those two grant us strengthening food, and swift horses to convey (our offerings).⁵

² Sáma-Veda, ii. 204., Yajur-Veda, 33. 61.
³ Hato vritraṇy-āryā hato dāsānī, vritrāṇi and dāsāṇi, being neuter, can scarcely signify āryas and dāsas themselves; therefore the scholiast interprets them āryaih and dāsaih kri-tāni, things done by them severally, that is, upudravajātāni, things generated by violence or oppression and the like: also Sáma-Veda, ii. 205.
⁴ This and the two preceding occur Sáma-Veda, ii. 341—343.
⁵ Sáma-Veda, ii. 499—501.
13. I invoke you both, Indra and Agni, to be present at the sacrifice; and both together to be exhilarated by the (sacrificial) food; for you are both donors of food and riches, and therefore I invoke you both for the obtaining of sustenance.

14. Come to us with herds of cattle, with troops of horses, with ample treasures, divine friends, Indra and Agni: givers of happiness, we invoke you as such for your friendship.

15. Hear, Indra and Agni, the invocation of the instituter of the rite as he offers the libation: partake of the offering: come, quaff the sweet Soma beverage.

Sūkta XII. (LXI.)

The deity is Saraswati; the Rishi as before; the metre of the three first stanzas and of the thirteenth is Jagati, of the fourteenth Tristubh, and of the rest Gāyatri.

Versa XXX.

1. She gave to the donor of the oblations, Vadhryaswa, a son. Divodasa1 endowed with speed, and acquitting the debt (due to gods and progenitors); she who destroyed the churlish niggard, (thinking) only of himself: such are thy great bounties, Saraswati.

2. With impetuous and mighty waves2 she breaks down the precipices of the mountains, like a digger

1 The Vishnu Purana makes the father of Divodasa, Bhawaswa, but this is a various or erroneous reading: it is another representation of the name Bandhyaswa: a MSS. of the Vayu Purana is cited in the note for the reading of our text, Badhryaswa. Vishnu Purâna, p. 454, note 51.

2 Pani as usual.

3 In the first stanza Saraswati has been addressed as a goddess: here she is praised as a river: the confusion pervades the entire Sūkta.
for the lotus fibres: we adore for our protection, with praises and with sacred rites, SARASWATI the undermixer of both her banks.

3. Destroy, SARASWATI, the revilers of the gods, the offspring of the universal deluder, VRISAYA: giver of sustenance, thou hast acquired for men the lands (seized by the Asuras), and hast showered water upon them.

1 Bisa-khā iva, bisam khanati, who digs the bisa, the long fibres of the stem of the lotus, in delving for which he breaks down the banks of the pond.

2 VRISAYA is a name of TWASHTRI, whose son was VRITRA: in Sāyana’s introduction to the BLACK, or Taittirīya Yajush, a curious legend is related, intended to illustrate the importance of correctly accentuating the words of the Veda: INDRA, it is said, had killed a son of TWASHTRI, named VIŚVARUṆA, in consequence of which there was enmity between them, and, upon the occasion of a SOMA-sacrifice, celebrated by TWASHTRI, he omitted to include INDRA in his invitations to the gods: INDRA, however, came an uninvited guest, and by force took a part of the SOMA-libation; with the remainder TWASHTRI performed a sacrifice for the birth of an individual who should avenge his quarrel and destroy his adversary, directing the priest to pray, now let a man be born and prosper, the killer of INDRA: in uttering the MANTRA, however, the officiating priest made a mistake in the accentuation of the term INDRAGHĀTAKA, slayer of INDRA, in which sense, as a TAT-purusha compound, the acute accent should have been placed upon the last syllable; instead of which the reciter of the MANTRA placed the accent on the first syllable, whereby the compound became a BAKUVRHI epithet, signifying one of whom INDRA is the slayer: consequently, when, by virtue of the rite, VRITRA was produced, he was foredoomed by the wrong accentuation to be put to death by INDRA, instead of becoming his destroyer: Tuittiriya Yajush, p. 43.

5. Divine Sarasvatī, protect him engaged in conflict for the sake of wealth, who glorifies thee like Indra.

6. Divine Sarasvatī, abounding in food, protect us in combat, and, like Pūshan, give us gifts.

7. May the fierce Sarasvatī, riding in a golden chariot, the destructress of enemies, be pleased by our earnest laudation.

8. May she whose might, infinite, undeviating, splendid, progressive, water-shedding, proceeds loud-sounding.

9. Overcome all our adversaries, and bring to us her other water-laden sisters,¹ as the ever-rolling sun (leads on) the days.

10. May Sarasvatī, who has seven sisters,² who is dearest amongst those dear to us, and is fully propitiated, be ever adorable.

11. May Sarasvatī, filling (with radiance) the vast expanse of earth and heaven, defend us from the reviler.

³ Septadhatu, as before, either the metres or the rivers.
13. She who is distinguished amongst them\(^1\) as eminent in greatness and in her glories; she who is the most impetuous of all other streams; she who has been created vast in capacity as a chariot,\(^2\) she, SARASWATÍ, is to be glorified by the discreet (worshipper).

14. Guide us, SARASWATÍ, to precious wealth; reduce us not to insignificance;\(^3\) overwhelm us not with (excess of) water; be pleased by our friendly (services) and access to our habitations, and let us not repair to places unacceptable to thee.
